ROOSEVELT WILL ASK REIMBURSEMENT OF FARMERS FOR THEIR LOSSES ON TERMINATED AAA CONTRACTS

WILSON APPROVED FOREIGN 'CREDITS,' PROBERS ARE TOLD

German Acts, Not Lending of American Dollars, Led U. S. Into War Morgan Asserts Before Munitions Committee.

BANKS FRIENDLY TO ALLIES' CAUSE

State Department's Disapproval of Loans to Belligerents Related by New York Financier.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—With J. P. Morgan seated placidly before it, the senate munitions committee filled an important gap in World War history today with a disclosure that Woodrow Wilson himself removed obstacles to the first of many American loans to allied nations.

From the head of the powerful House of Morgan, however, there came assertions also that German acts, and not the lending of American dollars, drew this country into the war.

The financier and his associates at the same time readily told the committee that the sympathies of the American banking fraternity lay actively with the allies from the start; and, as quickly as diplomatic barriers were removed, the loans began to flow in increasing volume.

Cablegrams gleaned from the Morgan files revealed, moreover, that scarcely three days after France entered the war, that country made roundabout overtures to the Morgans for a loan or commercial credit.

"Credits" Permitted.

The State Department, under William Jennings Bryan, disapproved, testimony and correspondence showed. President Wilson, however, altered the situation by drawing a broad distinction which permitted "credits" but maintained the ban on loans.

"When the government turned itself loose, we turned ourselves loose," Morgan chuckled, after committee members had elicited statements that for all practical purposes the effect of loan and credits was the same.

Seeking to determine—for purposes connected with pending neutrality legislation—whether the vast loans extended to the allies by American bankers exerted a controlling influence in shoving America into the conflict later, the committee had summoned Morgan, his partner, Thomas W. Lamont, and Frank A. Vanderlip, president in 1914 of the National City Bank of New York.

With the others, Morgan sat bulky and immobile before it. He displayed a ready amiability when answering questions, but otherwise leaned solemnly but comfortably back in his chair. He was dressed in dark blue. A broad cravat, under a wide gatesajar

Italy May Obtain Oil From Germany

(Copyright, 1936, by United Press.)

PARIS, Jan. 7.—(UP)—A plan is being negotiated here to supply Italy with oil from an American refinery in Hamburg, Germany, before the coming session of the League of Nations can attempt an oil ban against the fascist state, it was reported tonight.

The reported plan calls for exchange of Italian-owned real estate in Paris—a block of buildings on the Champs Elysees—for frozen credits in Germany, to be used to finance purchase of the oil by Italy.

Senator Barkley To Be Speaker At Jackson Day Dinner Tonight

Event on Ansley Roof To Be Largest of Eighty Meetings To Honor Day in Georgia; Roosevelt To Speak by Radio.

Georgia tonight will join the rest of the nation in the observance of Jackson Day, with more than 80 meetings scheduled in the state's 159 counties, the central session being scheduled for Atlanta at which Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, will be the speaker.

The meeting here, on the Ansley hotel roof, will begin at 7:30 o'clock and, like the others over the state, will be concluded at 9 o'clock when all present will listen to President Roosevelt's Jackson Day address in Washington over the radio. Barkley's speech will be broadcast by WATL.

At Savannah Assistant Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring will be the speaker.

Judge Shepard Bryan, of Atlanta, will speak at Macon; Speaker E. D. Rivers, of the house of representatives, at Augusta; United States Attorney Lawrence Camp, at Jonesboro, and Representative Paul Lindsay, of DeKalb county, at Newnan.

Elsewhere local speakers will predominate.

The gathering here is being sponsored by a special committee, headed by Major Trammell Scott, the Georgia Roosevelt Clubs and the Roosevelt Young Voters Clubs.

Major Scott will preside and present Mayor Key who will introduce Senator Barkley. The Kentucky senator will arrive from Washington at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon and will be met by Major Scott and Colonel G. P. O'Keeffe, secretary of the Georgia Roosevelt Clubs.

Colonel O'Keeffe reported a brisk ticket sale yesterday, anticipating that about 1,000 would be present to hear Senator Barkley. The tickets will be on sale today at the Ansley, the Winecoff, at Room 454 in the Piedmont

RAINS MAY FORCE FASCIST RETREAT

Downpour Cheers Ethiopians as They Celebrate Native Christmas Day.

ADDIS ABABA, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Continuous heavy rains in the north cheered the Ethiopian people today as they celebrated their Christmas.

Natives were confident the rains, bogging up the soil, will compel the fascist invaders to fall back from their advanced positions 'out Makale.

The lay is known as "Ganna" by the Ethiopians. An imperial service was held in the Little Church of St. Gabriel's in the lower palace compound.

Crown Prince Asfa Wosan represented his father, Emperor Haile Selassie, at the service—which lasted for five hours. The emperor attended services at h field headquarters at Dessye.

Ethiopia's foreign "brain trust" was strengthened today by the addition of another American, John H. Spencer, 30, formerly of Grinnell, Iowa.

Spencer, a specialist in international law, arrived last night. He will be an assistant political adviser to the government. Everett Andrews Colson, an American, is the emperor's financial advisor.

Two European advisors, General Eric De Vergin and Jacques Auberson, recently departed, leaving Colson's tasks even more arduous.

Spencer, who has spent the past three years in Europe, was recommended for the post by Professor Pitman Benjamin Potter, American, who was an Ethiopian representative on a commission which sought to conciliate

DEMOCRATS FACE NEW IMPLICATIONS

Roosevelt Will Speak at Jackson Day Dinner in Washington Tonight.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Administration democrats gravely pondered the situation of the party tonight on the eve of the quadrennial festivities in honor of President Andrew Jackson.

Implications of the adverse AAA decision for the New Deal—and the presidential campaign—predominated in their discussions preliminary to hearing President Roosevelt address the dinner tomorrow evening.

A reminder of more trouble ahead came in another attack on Postmaster-General Farley by the American ed that he had solicited campaign funds as party chairman in violation of the law against such solicitation by federal officeholders.

Uncertainty over the precise administration attitude toward possible amendment of the constitution aroused speculation among the party committeemen. While clinging to its AAA objectives, the New Deal was believed Liberty League. A statement repeatby some to be ready to leave any offensive for another farm relief plan to organized farmers.

To Follow Farmers.

Mr. Roosevelt was expected by them to champion only such legislation of the constitution in the AAA upon by farmers' spokesmen to meet here Friday and Saturday. The leaders prepared to follow those proceedings closely.

Officials were frankly skeptical whether the supreme court construction of the consttiution in the AAA case left room for a program as extensive as that thrown out.

Should this prove the case, and expectations of more judicial blows at the New Deal be fulfilled, indications were that the administration would foster popular discussion of a constitutional amendment rather than advocate one.

"Sit tight" seemed to be the official position for the present. The President refrained in press conference this afternoon from any effort to analyze the AAA decision as he quickly did that on NRA.

He said he had not decided whether to go into the situation in his address to the dinner tomorrow.

Convention Bidder.

Kansas City was added tonight as a possible bidder for the democratic party convention, along with Philadelphia and Chicago. The choice will be made Thursday by the national committee.

Democratic headquarters hoped to wipe out the $400,000 party deficit from the 2,000 dinners estimated to draw 250,000 across the country. Of the $50 charge here, $45 is for the party chest.

The Liberty League charged Farley had appealed directly to at least five officials in the financial drive, naming them as presidents of young democratic clubs, A. J. Zirpoli, of San Francisco; Charles F. Brannan, of Denver; Donald Martha, of Fargo, N. D.; A. P. Lassiter, of Monroe, La., and Patrick Cooney, of Madison, Wis., now employed here.

Contributing to the growing constitutional discussion, Colonel Frank Knox—a potential republican nominee—said in Chicago that supreme court decisions had proved "the New Deal philosophy of law and government can find no place within the constitution.

"President Roosevelt has reached the fork in the road. He can abandon

Soldiers Called Out In Buenos Aires Strike

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 7.—(UP) Federal troops were called to avert further disorders today in the 24-hour general transportation strike after five persons were killed and several wounded in clashes between police and strikers.

At least 15 street cars and a few buses were burned by the strikers in violent demonstrations against the Anglo-Argentine Company, operating the street railway system, for not joining the walkout. A tramway station also was burned.

Strikers' activities were limited for the most part to he downtown section and the rest of the city was reported relatively quiet.

ANTI-KEY FACTION OF CITY COUNCIL LAUNCHES BATTLE

Administration Is Facing Fight Over Finance Sheet; Pay Cut, Other Policies Are Under Fire.

By HERMAN D. HANCOCK.

Forebodings of a prolonged council battle over adoption of a finance sheet for 1936 were seen yesterday as smoke of the organization meeting of council cleared and disclosed a large bank of storm clouds on the political horizon.

A rocky road for administration policies was forecast by veteran political observers as a result of the committee assignments at the organization session, the replacement of Councilman Max M. Cuba, member of the budget commission, by former Mayor Pro Tem. Ed A. Gilliam, and the attack on intangibles classifications led by Councilman J. Allen Couch.

The latter sally was in direct opposition to Key's recommendations to council, and gained considerable strength. It also is destined to get further support, according to usually reliable sources, because the $131,000 which Couch contended the city lost in 1935 through the classification of intangibles would provide funds to restore not only 5 per cent of the salary cuts as recommended by the budget commission, but an additional 5 per cent.

Anti-Key Bloc Active.

City employes are not without friends in council. This has been proven before, and they will get strong support of the anti-Key bloc, submerged for the past year, but awaiting a propitious moment to break into the open and again harass the administration.

EUROPEAN STORMS TAKE LIVES OF 27

France Ravaged by Floods; Death Toll in Sea Disasters Heavy.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Twenty-seven persons were known dead tonight in shipwrecks at sea and accidents in northern Europe since Sunday. France was ravaged by floods.

It was feared the death toll in the Irish sea, where a hurricane struck over the week-end, may be at least a dozen more because of reports of the disappearance of coastal vessels.

Ten died in the foundering of the drifter Shore Breeze, three were killed aboard the Blue Funnel liner Ulysses by a big wave, and one person was washed from the fishing boat Feasible, all in the Irish sea.

Nine were drowned off Hangoe, Finland, when a military transport was wrecked. Four were drowned near Hamburg, Germany, in the collision of a tug and a launch.

The coastal steamer Dromaine, unreported since it took on a pilot off Newcastle, Northern Ireland, Sunday, returned to Newcastle tonight. She was badly battered but the crew of six and the pilot were safe.

Flooded rivers menaced hundreds of cities and towns in France. There was only boat traffic in the streets of Nantes, where the river Loire was at its highest since 1910.

Lyon and Avignon were inundated by the water of the Rhone.

Parisian authorities halted all barge traffic in the Seine, where floods destroyed produce piled on wharves. The Seine, however, was expected to begin dropping tonight. Other rivers caused much damage to farms.

A mild flooding of some inland parts of England was not serious but more rain was predicted.

The Moor liner Pearlmoor, which sent out an SOS from the Irish sea Sunday, reached Barry, Wales, safely. The Cunard-White Star liner Ausonia reached Tilbury Docks, Essex, although she was reported by the Exchange Telegraph agency to have sent out SOS messages last night.

BONUS VOTE SEEN FRIDAY IN HOUSE; APPROVAL LOOMS

Democratic Leaders Forecast 'Overwhelming Approval' of Immediate Cash Payment Measure.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP) The bonus bill headed today toward house action late this week would mean that:

A veteran applying for cash payment before April 6, 1937—20 years from the date of American entrance into the World War—would receive the full face value of his certificates, minus the principal of any loan.

A veteran applying after April 6, 1937, will receive the face value, less any loans, plus 3 per cent annual interest from the date of enactment of the legislation until January 1, 1945, until his death, or until receipts of cash payment, whichever is earliest.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A veterans' organization bonus bill, slightly amended as to its financing features, tonight was steered toward a house vote on Friday which democratic leaders conceded would approve it by "an overwhelming majority."

Speaker Byrns said there was no disposition among the leadership to postpone action on the bonus until next week unless its backers wanted that. Members of the appropriations committee said they had no objection to laying aside the independent offices appropriation bill, which is to come up tomorrow for general debate.

That opened the door for the ways and means committee to ask for a rule on the bonus tomorrow, bring it up for house discussions Thursday and a vote Friday.

The bill would authorize immediate cash payment of the bonus, but offer a 3 per cent interest inducement to

COUNTY PRIMARY SET ON MARCH 11

Rule Change To Avoid Presidential Primary Date Features Session.

The Fulton county democratic primary was set for March 11 yesterday by the democratic executive committee during a hectic session where rules were changed to avoid holding the county election on the same date as the presidential preferential primary which is in prospect for Georgia.

Candidates for offices must be qualified on or before February 8, according to the ruling of the executive committee.

Official announcement of the county primary date will bring candidates for the various positions out into the light in a hurry, party leaders said.

Over the vehement protests of A. J. Hartley, a member of the executive committee, the governing body of the party discarded a rule which provided that when presidential preferential primaries are held in the state, the county primary will be automatically set for the same date.

Loses in Committee.

Hartley succeeded in having the rule change referred to the rules committee, but it reported favorably for the change within 15 minutes.

The city-county merger proposal did not come up at the meeting, over which Chairman George L. Bell presided. Hartley had previously announced he would bring up the issue.

He asserted he would seek a call meeting of the committee within a few days for reconsideration of the primary date and for the county-city consolidation proposal.

After adoption of the election rules, entrance fees for candidates were set by the finance and rules committee, of which Hughes Spalding was chairman. With the exception of two county commissioners, coroner, county surveyor and treasurer, all fees were placed at $500.

Committeeman Hartley asked for

California Jury May Investigate Sterilization Charge of Heiress

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—(AP)—District Attorney Matthew Brady said tonight the sterilization plot charge of Ann Cooper Hewitt, 21-year-old heiress, against her socially prominent mother, "will in all probability be presented to the grand jury."

The prosecutor's announcement followed a declaration by attorneys for the mother, Mrs. Maryon Hewitt McCarter, blaming "outsiders" for the $500,000 suit brought against her by her daughter.

Brady said he was co-operating with police in investigating "all phases" of the operation which Miss Hewitt claims was performed on her in 1934 at her mother's order.

"I am not prepared to make a definite statement on the law in this case," the district attorney said. "There are many angles to be investigated. I can say, however, that it will in all probability be presented to the grand jury."

The district attorney said he knew of but one state law pertaining in general to sterilization operations. That, he added, empowered superintendents of state mental hospitals to authorize operations on persons legally adjudged feeble-minded or otherwise incompetent. There is no record, however, of her having been pronounced incompetent by a court here.

Miss Hewitt was given a mental test by Mrs. Mary S. Scally, psychologist for the San Francisco Board

Yearly Pay of $100,000 Not Rare, List Submitted to Treasury Shows

Publisher Hearst Takes Lead With Annual Check of $500,000; Mae West Is Paid $339,166 During 1934.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The natural curiosity of man to know how much money the other fellow makes was partly satisfied today with the congressional disclosure of salaries paid all corporation employes in the country receiving $15,000 or more a year.

Such 12-month pay checks as $500,000 for William Randolph Hearst and $339,166.65 for Mae West were sprinkled among the 1934 salary lists made public by the house ways and means committee.

Submitted by the treasury, as required by the 1934 revenue act, the figures covered some 8,000 corporations, involving more than 18,000 pay checks.

Hundreds of corporation officials were revealed as making as much salary in one year as most men dream of accumulating in a life-time of work. Salaries of $100,000 and more were not rare.

Small sums add up, one proof of which was that S. S. Kresge, chairman of the board of the S. S. Kresge Company, received $107,000. Another proof that nickles run into money was shown in some of the salaries Kresge paid, among them $106,365 to C. B. Van Dusen, president, and $107,000 each to C. B. Tuttle, treasurer, and R. R. Williams, vice president.

Edsel Ford, president of the motor company and generally regarded as one of the nation's wealthiest men, was listed for only $90,036. P. E. Martin, a Ford vice president, received $107,341, and Charles E. Sorensen, general superintendent, $103,435.

Most people who press electric light switches know Henry L. Doherty. Doherty received $100,000 from the company which bears his name.

Bing Crosby, Inc., Ltd., paid Bing Crosby, listed as an actor, $104,449 in

TALMADGE CALLS FOR TAX REFUNDS

U.S. Should Return Processing Assessments to Farmers, He Declares.

Governor Talmadge yesterday called on the federal government to return to the farmers the processing taxes collected on cotton during the life of the AAA, which was killed by a decision of the supreme court Monday.

In a letter to G. A. Moore, of Dover, who wanted to know how to go about filing a claim for taxes his grandmother paid on a bale of cotton, the Governor said the government "owed" Moore's grandmother $50 for taxes collected on the one bale of cotton she was permitted to grow on her 15-acre farm.

The state's chief executive suggested that Moore write President Roosevelt and Senators George and Russell about the matter. Asserting that only the farmers were forced to pay the taxes while the issues involved in the AAA were in litigation, the Governor wrote:

"The government should pay these widows and orphans and hard working people from whom they have illegally taken money.

"Congress should introduce a bill today, providing that this money be paid back to the farmers.

"Remember this: Most of the packing plants protected themselves from this processing tax by a temporary injunction. They did not pay it to the government, although it was knocked out of the price that the packing companies paid to the farmer for his hogs.

"And remember, also, most of the textile mills had a temporary restraining order where they did not pay the processing taxes of 4 1-2 cents per pound to the government. Yet it was knocked off the price that was paid to the farmer for his cotton.

"Peanuts, wheat, rice, corn, tobacco are in the same class.

"Now, let's see what congress is going to do for the dear old farmer they love so well (especially in election years).

"He has been robbed by an illegal and unconstitutional law. He is not asking for you to give him something, but only to pay back just debt and let him alone—quit directing him and surveying him."

Commenting on the decision of the supreme court, Chairman Hugh Howell, of the democratic state executive committee, said yesterday:

"A few months ago in a speech I made to the Fulton County Bar Association on Constitution Day, I said the nine old men in Washington would be regarded by history as the saviors of America. I repeat that statement today."

Cobb Says: Virginia Now Bride of U. S.

By IRVIN S. COBB.

(Copyright, 1936, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

CULVER CITY, Cal., Jan. 7.—Before she seemed to despair of ever getting a start on husbands again and sort of slowed up, I used to think Peggy Hopkins et cetera Joyce had the best claim to the title, "The Bride of Her Country." But a new champion has arisen.

So rally around, you earnest Hollywood contenders for the all-American matrimonial sweepstakes, and salute your queen. She's Mrs. Virginia Overshiner Patterson Stark Seeger Gilbert Kahn Cogswell Gould-Porter, who has just been coaxed to the altar for the eighth time in that many years. And she is still but a mere chit of a girl.

If ever that record-busting lady holds a family reunion, won't there be a crowd! And, if she keeps on marrying around, to and fro, the day is coming when the rest of her name will have to run as a second section.

I wonder how it happened she never met any of the Mdivani boys!

AAA DEATH RULING HIKES HOG VALUES

Cotton and Flour Drop; Sugar Shows Sharp Gain During Day's Trading.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Commodity markets of the nation churned today under the stimulus of the removal of processing taxes, but economic observers foresaw no likelihood of any decided change in the prices of meat and bread to the eventual consumer.

Spectacular gains of around $1 a hundredweight were marked up by hogs.

At the same time, millers slashed wholesale flour prices at a number of points for the full amount of the tax levied under the act outlawed by the supreme court decision—around $1.35 a barrel.

Cotton slumped $1.50 to $2 a bale in the New York market, but sugar spurted the maximum of 25 points permitted in a day's trading there.

In the confusion of trends, many important branches of the food industry declined comment. Chicago packers were among them as they saw hog quotations bound as much as $1 in one of the most spectacular sessions in the history of big stockyards market, with the top touching $10.35.

Little Change Expected.

A spokesman for the industry, however, asserted that the price of pork was finally determined by the law of supply and demand and intimated the supreme court's ruling would have little effect, in the immediate future at least, on the production of pork or the demand of the consumer for meat.

All the other principal livestock markets saw advances similar to the hog price gains registered. Kansas City called its 36 to 90-cent gain the "sharpest in years;" at St. Joseph, Mo., the top advance reached $1.25; East St. Louis prices were as high as 85 cents above yesterday's, and East Buffalo's 50 to 60 cents.

Trade authorities in the milling industry generally agreed that the removal of the processing tax would

Outstanding Checks On AAA To Be Paid

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The treasury tonight advised commercial banks of the nation that all AAA checks outstanding are good and may be cashed.

Treasury officials said there was no intention of trying to repudiate any outstanding AAA checks.

The information was conveyed to commercial banks through the 12 regional Federal Reserve banks.

WALLACE CALLS TWO-DAY PARLEY TO DISCUSS PLANS

Secretary of Agriculture Warns Against Return to Conditions of 1932; Field Activities of Agency Ordered Ended.

PRESIDENT CITES U. S. OBLIGATIONS

Congressional Leaders Unsuccessful in Attempts To Gauge Effects of High Court's Ruling.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Surveying the ruins of his farm-aid program, President Roosevelt reported tonight his only decision so far is to ask congress to reimburse farmers for suddenly-terminated AAA contracts.

Secretary Wallace, however, called 70 farm leaders to the capital for a conference Friday and Saturday "to discuss plans for agriculture in light of the supreme court's decision in the Hoosac Mills case."

Earlier, Wallace warned in a radio speech against a return to farm conditions of 1932. All field activities of AAA were halted. Employes here reported for work as usual, although the treasury reported it had stopped writing checks for administrative expenses as well as payments to farmers under the invalidated law.

Congressional leaders tried to gauge the effect of the decision in the nation, with no immediate conclusions. Some advisors were known to have suggested that the President issue a statement; others warned against an immediate pronouncement.

Other Deal Legislation.

The effect on other New Deal laws received renewed appraisal, with considerable sorrowful head-shaking. Cabinet members continued their study of the court verdict and tried to digest its vast implications.

Wallace cleared up one question when he announced that in the Agriculture Department's opinion, provisions of the adjustment act governing sugar quotas were not affected.

Tired-eyed but still smiling, Mr. Roosevelt received more than 200 reporters at his regular press conference with the usual announcement that there was "no news." He ended the conference with the same declaration.

The President's only positive assertion in reply to eager questions was that he felt the government had a moral obligation to reward farmers for performance under existing con-

Woman Ends Life In Plunge in Tampa

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 7.—(UP)—In sight of horrified crowds on a downtown street today, Mrs. Elizabeth Beckner, 25, Huntington, W. Va., plunged to her death from the ninth floor of the Tampa theater building. Police said her headlong dive was suicide.

Dr. H. A. Nelson, chiropractor, who glimpsed Mrs. Beckner as she leaped from the window, caught her by one ankle. For a moment she dangled headlong in space, almost pulling Nelson with her before he was forced to release his grasp.

She fell six stories, crashing onto the roof of an adjacent three-story building. She was dead when she was taken to a hospital.

CONSTITUTIONAL FIGHT SEEN AS 1936 ISSUE

Ruling of U. S. Supreme Court on NRA, AAA Measures To Cause Battle.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The constitution and the supreme court promised today to become the subjects of perhaps the hottest political debate since John Marshall outraged the Jeffersonians and Roger G. Taney read the Dred Scott decision that lighted the fuse to the Civil War.

The sweeping aside of the NRA and AAA, with tests of yet other New Deal measures to come, in the opinion of many political analysts, thrust the question of constitutional amendment squarely into the 1936 campaign with all that may mean in the course of American politics for years to come.

Whether it will be a head-on collision depends, of course, upon the strategy of President Roosevelt, who has left no doubt but that he favors national action to deal with national economics.

At least twice before in American history there have been periods of great constitutional debate.

"Strong Arm" Tactics.

The first big battle was over adoption of the constitution itself. There was a lot of fervid oratory then, and even some "strong arm" tactics—scandalizing dignified patriots then even as occasional fisticuffs and near riots in our big city conventions and caucuses do today.

The fighting carried over into the day when Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton were the giant politicians of the land.

The second struggle that brought forth the constitutional gladiators culminated in the Civil War.

How the constitution was adopted, why it was written in the form it was, the personalities of those epic knock-down, drag-out struggles, how the politicians of that day crossed themselves up in contending now for strict construction, now for loose construction of the constitution, how presidents criticized the supreme court and even laid themselves open to the charge of "packing" the court—these may make lively reading before the hurly-burly campaign of 1936 is over.

Authority of Delegates.

In those periods, as now—metaphorically—there were Franklin D. Roosevelts and Herbert Hoovers, J. P. Morgans, William Borahs and John D. Rockefellers.

And the issues, surprisingly, were much the same.

The first big battle, that over adoption, was waged in an atmosphere of emergency, and there were charges it was a "rush job."

In the space of 27 months the call went out for a constitutional convention, delegates were selected, the constitution was drafted and submitted to 13 states, delegates to state conventions were chosen, approval was voted by 11, a national election was held, and George Washington was installed as first president.

It takes longer for most important national issues to be incubated and decided today.

Many people were taken by surprise. When the delegates to the constitutional convention met they only had authority to amend the old articles of confederation and to submit the changes to congress and the states.

Instead, they wrote an entirely new outline of government, as different from the confederation as day is from night, and submitted the result to special state conventions. And instead of requiring unanimous approval, as had been the understanding, they declared ratification by nine of the 13 states sufficient.

Delegates Dragged in Hall.

Today, when candidates must file expense accounts and lobbyists may be called to testify before a senate investigating committee, there undoubtedly would be charges of "political trickery."

And so there were then. Patrick Henry—a rampaging political fire-eater of his day—who had refused to attend the convention because he said he "smelt a rat," made some powerful orations against it.

Some of the other firebrands who had egged the patriots on to fighting King George and the Redcoats had no part in the convention, among them old Sam Adams and Thomas Paine, the "press agent" of the Revolution.

Opponents in the Pennsylvania legislature, finding themselves in a minority, walked right out of the hall to prevent a quorum, a federalist mob hunted them down and dragged them back.

Many students of the records have concluded that New Hampshire, New York and Massachusetts voted against the constitution, although their conventions voted for it after considerable thimblerigging.

Rhode Island and North Carolina refused to ratify until the new government was a going concern.

All in all, students of the period have concluded, it was only by a narrow squeak that there ever was a constitution.

Debt moratoria, inflation, power of taxation, regulation of trade, speculation—these were the issues, issues to the fore even today, although in different forms.

HOG PRICES ADVANCE, COTTON, FLOUR SLUMP

have little effect on bread prices. They pointed out 300 loaves of bread could be made from a barrel of flour on which the impost was around $1.35.

But in the country's largest milling center, Buffalo, wheat flour prices dropped from 95 cents to $1.25 a barrel. At Minneapolis, the largest western mill operators, announced they expected reductions in wheat flour values by $1 a barrel and rye flour by $1.25. These figures about equaled the processing tax on the breadstuffs.

One Kansas City grocery company announced a reduction of 17 1-2 cents on 24-pound sacks of flour, and John W. Cain, general manager of a leading milling firm, said lower prices to the consumer might eventually result from the ban on the AAA wheat processing levy.

In St. Louis, where the flour market was suspended yesterday, trading resmed on a basis of a $1.38 cut in barrel prices. Toledo millers marked down prices to flour buyers about $1.35 a barrel.

COMMODITIES REVIVE; STOCKS SHOW ADVANCES

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Securities markets met the test of the AAA downfall with rousing recoveries today, and commodities, while still somewhat confused, displayed reviving tendencies.

After a highly irregular start, stocks jumped ahead in the final hour of dealings $1 to $2 or more a share. Losses of the morning and of yesterday's session were regained and highs for the past several years were registered by many issues.

The rails and utilities led the upturn, but scattered industrials turned in a strong performance. Bonds also pushed ahead at a brisk rate. Cotton and grains did not do so well, but hogs and sugar moved substantially higher.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 90 cents to $56.60, a new 1935-36 top. Both the carrier and power equity composites reached new tops for a year or longer. Transfers totaled 3,097,510 shares.

Financial circles, generally, attributed the stock and bond rallies partly to a renewal of optimism over the business and industrial outlook and to a broader view of the supreme court's overruling of the agricultural relief act in the decision rendered yesterday.

The extent to which the consumer will benefit by the abolition of processing taxes was a matter of discussion in Wall Street offices and wholesale quarters.

Rail stocks came to life when the principal carrier companies, in the District of Columbia supreme court, challenged the constitutionality of the railway pension law.

Utility issues reflected expectations of trades and investors that the highest court would soon rule on the TVA and that the government might again be on the losing side.

Shares of Allied Chemical got up $4 to $163 as the company announced it was calling its outstanding preferred stock. Other conspicuous share gainers included Union Pacific at $112.50. Santa Fe at $99, Northern Pacific at $26.50. Southern Pacific at $25.75, Consolidated Gas at $33.37, Peoples' Gas at $46.25, Public Service of New Jersey at $47.50, American Telephone at $159, United States Steel at $49.62, Westinghouse at $99.50, Douglas Aircraft at $56.75, John Morrell at $54, Continental Baking "A" at $13.59 and Evans Products at $39.75.

The so-called farm stocks, under pressure earlier because of fears that agricultural incomes would be depleted by the stopping of government relief, steadied. Issues of food companies finished firm, but not at their best.

ROOSEVELT WILL ASK AAA REIMBURSEMENTS

Appropriations To Be Asked.

He said congress would be asked as soon as possible to make an appropriation for this purpose, and that he had no doubt of its power to do so. The amount needed, he believed, would be small.

The AAA said yesterday that it still owed some $283,000,000. In addition, officials said they already have disbursed $200,000,000 more than the treasury has received in processing taxes.

Asked if he intended to address the conference called by Secretary Wallace, President Roosevelt replied he had no plans now to do so. To another question, he said he had not yet written his speech for the Jackson Day democratic dinners tomorrow night, and had not considered whether he would discuss the AAA.

The President said there was no news on whether new farm-aid legislation was possible under the court's majority AAA opinion, and that no decision had been reached on continuance of the AAA machinery.

Flicking the inevitable cigaret, Mr. Roosevelt observed as the questions kept popping that there were many problems involved in the situation and he was taking them up one at a time. The refunding of processing taxes already paid, he said, was one that he had not considered so far.

Decision Studied.

All members of the administration, he added, are studying the two decisions of the court and they required a good deal of study. Somebody asked what was meant by two decisions, and Mr. Roosevelt replied that two opinions would be a more accurate description. He apparently referred to the majority and minority views on AAA.

With regard to payment for existing contracts, Mr. Roosevelt explained only one related to 1936 crops—winter wheat which was planted last fall. These contracts were based on planting 95 per cent of the basic acreage, he said, and therefore payments they called for would be small.

To a question about his statement in his annual message to congress last Friday night that congress "has the right and can find the means to protect its own prerogatives," Mr. Roosevelt said that spoke for itself and was a recommendation to congress.

Told some writers were interpreting this as putting a constitutional issue in the 1936 campaign, the executive again flicked ashes from his cigaret and declined to comment on interpretations.

AAA Personnel.

Only once did he indicate any irritation. That was when a questioner asked about the future of AAA personnel, and Mr. Roosevelt said he had answer terminated the conference, Mr. been considered so far.

When reporters gave their usual "thank you" when his final no news answe rterminated the conference, Mr. Roosevelt joined in their laughter and waved them on.

But at the Agriculture Department, where AAA's ponderous machine had come to a halt, Secretary Wallace and his aids met in frequent conferences as they planned for Friday's parley.

From it, Wallace said, may come a new farm program.

Apparently, there was to be no limitation on the anticipated discussions. In some quarters, it was held not improbable that farmers and their representatives might recommend a constitutional amendment.

But belief was expressed that the administration would strive for approval of some form of immediate, concrete program to conserve aid given farmers through the AAA.

"Epochal." Says Wallace.

In his first public statement since the decision, Wallace called both majority and dissenting AAA opinions "epochal" and said they should be studied carefully in every American home.

"We hope the immediate effect of the supreme court decision on farm prices will not be serious," Wallace said in a five-minute radio talk. "Exactly what the effect will be, six or nine months hence, it is impossible to say."

Wallace centered attention on the week-end parley recalling a similar one held March 10, 1933. He reminded that on March 16 of that year a farm bill was introduced in congress and became law as the adjustment act May 12.

Major questions concerning the state of AAA activities went begging. Haggard officials pointed to congress for most answers.

Concerning payments still due farmers, Wallace said:

"For the benefit of those who are still owed money by the government on contracts entered into before the supreme court decision, the majority leaders of congress have given assurance that they will do everything in their power to speed the enactment of special appropriations to enable the government to make good on these contracts."

"Meanwhile," he continued, "we are studying every possible avenue of approach to a sound, satisfactory farm program."

"Avenues Limited."

High officials who were reluctant to answer any questions, indicated that the "possible avenues" were limited. Three were reported receiving principal consideration.

First was the temporary use of a domestic allotment plan, financed with an excise tax.

Second was a plan for AAA's in the states, financed by federal government grants.

Third was a new proposal for establishing farmers' co-operative associations for voluntary and self-imposed production control.

Several department economists, speaking privately, said they believed the domestic allotment plan might be the only program which could be adopted speedily. It would call for establishing quotas for each farm for amounts of produce to be sold for domestic consumption.

Growers could produce as much as they pleased for foreign consumption. Excise taxes, similar to processing taxes, would be enacted to finance direct subsidies to farmers on crops grown for domestic consumption. There would be no subsidy for crops in excess of allotments.

Base Production.

One official reminded that the AAA already has established base production records for principal cash crops. The domestic allotment plan, it was said, could be placed in effect quickly with use of these bases.

The "little AAA" proposal was reported to have found some disfavor because enactment of special laws would be necessary in some states. That might delay the plan for months.

Under the co-operative association proposal, it was explained that farmers growing one commodity could band together to control their own production. One association might be formed of cotton farmers; another of wheat farmers; another of corn-hog producers. Each association would regulate itself.

Direct government grants could be made to the associations "in the interest of agriculture." The associations presumably would use the grants for some form of payments to members. The associations would be for production control only and not for marketing control.

Farmers' Committees.

It was said that AAA has been operated in the field largely by farmers' committees and that the farmers should be well prepared to handle such associations. Further, it was said farmers who four years ago would have scorned such a movement today might be willing to co-operate after nearly three years of AAA.

It was indicated that each of these, as well as other suggestions, might receive considerable attention at the farmers' meeting. How they would square with the supreme court limitation of federal activities was a matter of much conjecture.

Some significance was attached to the roster of delegates invited to the conference. The list included both leaders of farm organizations and many persons known to be "dirt farmers." Every section of the country was represented.

At the Agriculture Department, Wallace, AAA Administrator Chester C. Davis, and their assistants worked at top speed behind closed doors. Subordinate officials hurried through the halls, their faces drawn, and their eyes bloodshot from a sleepless night and from hours in hope-filled conferences.

Telephones Busy.

Long distance telephones rang almost incessantly. Telegrams poured into the department as frantic field workers and some farmers asked "What shall we do?"

There appeared little at the moment to occupy clerks, stenographers, and other minor employes. Many busied themselves with handling routine correspondence or answering telephones.

There was confidence among some that they would be given some sort of job under what they hoped would be a new regime. AAA officials said every effort would be made to keep the adjustment machinery intact for the time being.

But worried lines of doubt appeared on the faces of other workers nearing the end of their first day without pay. Their superiors could not tell them when they would be paid again. One opinion was expressed that an executive order or a ruling from treasury officials might be all that would be necessary to restore the AAA pay roll.

However, officials admitted the possibility that the supreme court's decision might require an act of congress before money could once again oil the wheels of the broken down adjustment machine.

The employes were to report for work again tomorrow. One looked forward to completing reading a story in a magazine he bought today.

New Hapeville Mayor Takes Oath of Office

Just before giving up his chair as mayor of Hapeville, Quincy Arnold, left, welcomed his successor, O. M. Huie, right, who was officially installed as mayor last night. Six Anti-AAA Justices Are Hanged in Effigy

AMES, Iowa, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The six United States supreme court justices who voted the AAA unconstitutional were found hanged in effigy on a highway near the Iowa State College campus today.

Cardboard effigies of the justices were attached to an advertising sign and were found by Harry Davis, of Boone, Iowa. He notified police, who cut the figures down.

All six figures were dressed in black robes which police said were made from cloth similar to that used in college graduation gowns. The figures and faces were life-size, and each was identified by a cardboard sign bearing the name of the justice.

The police said they would investigate the incident.

WILSON'S APPROVAL OF WAR CREDITS TOLD

collar almost concealed a starched shirt front.

A massive gold watch chain was strung loosely across a well-filled vest. Tiny rimless spectacles on a broad black braid slipped repeatedly from his nose to click faintly against his watch chain. His bushy eyebrows seemed to have lost some of their blackness since his appearance two years ago before the senate banking committee in its investigation of Wall Street ways and wiles.

Beside Morgan sat Lamont, small, lithe and smiling. Vanderlip, nervous but emphatic in his replies to questions, sat next to Lamont. Behind the three were grouped Morgan attorneys and employes.

John W. Davis, counsel for the firm, was present but did not mingle with the throng surrounding the financier. Instead he sat to one side with Frank Leffingwell, another Morgan partner.

Midget Incident.

The huge, ornate, senate caucus room was only comfortably filled, in sharp contrast with Morgan's appearance two years ago before the senate committee, when there occurred the now-famous press-agent enterprise of posing a midget on his lap.

The shift in Wilson policy, altering attitudes previously expressed by Bryan, was disclosed in a heretofore unknown memcrandum prepared after a talk with the President by Robert Lansing, then counsel to the State Department, on October 23, 1914.

"From my conversation with the President," he wrote later in the privacy of his office at the State Department, "I gathered the following impressions as to his views concerning bank credits of belligerent governments in contra-distinction to a public loan floated in this country.

"There is a decided difference between an issue of government bonds, which are sold in open market to investors, and an arrangement for easy exchange in meeting debts incurred in trade between a government and American merchants.

"The sale of bonds draws gold from the American people. The purchasers of bonds are loaning their savings to the belligerent government, and are, in fact, financing the war.

"The acceptance of treasury notes or other evidences of debt in payment for articles purchased in this country is merely a means of facilitating trade by a system of credits which will avoid the clumsy and impractical method of cash payments. As trade with belligerents is legitimate and proper it is desirable that obstacles, such as interference with an arrangement of credits or easy method of exchange, should be removed.

"The question of an arrangement of this sort ought not to be submitted to this government for its opinion, since it has given its views on loans in general, although an arrangement as to credits has to do with a commercial debt rather than with a loan of money.

HUIE ASSUMES OFFICE AS HAPEVILLE MAYOR

Quincy Arnold, Retiring As Head of City, Is Presented Watch.

O. M. Huie was officially installed as mayor of Hapeville, and three others sworn in as councilmen, last night before 200 citizens who had come through rain to attend ceremonies in the Hapeville city auditorium. Quincy Arnold, retiring mayor, spoke, and chairman of councilmanic committees and Andrew Simpson, city clerk, read reports.

Those installed as councilmen were W. A. Walker, J. R. Cathy and Forrest Garrard. Judge John D. Humphries, of the Fulton superior court, administered the oath of office to Mayor Huie and to the councilmen.

Though the naming of all city officers was scheduled to take place, the election was deferred until Friday night. Mayor and councilmen postponed the election in order to consider applications for various city officerships, it was said.

Arnold, retiring mayor, was presented a watch by councilmen and citizens of Hapeville, in appreciation of his four years of service. In thanking citizens, Arnold said that during the last four years the bonded indebtedness had been greatly reduced. He recommended that the sewer system be completed and that a municipal park be developed.

Councilman R. L. Mullins, in reporting for the fire committee, said for 1935, 76 calls had been answered, and that there had been a property loss within the city limits of only $1,740, though $34,270 worth of property had been exposed. The city clerk reported a balance of $2,323.97 in the treasury.

Huie was elected mayor December 3. His term is for two years. Of the five city councilmen, the terms of L. A. Norton, Mullin and Garrard expire at the end of 1936.

JURY MAY INVESTIGATE STERILIZATION CHARGE of Health, at the request of one of two physicians named in the suit, prior to the operation.

As a result, Dr. J. C. Geiger, director of the health department, ordered that henceforth all requests for examinations must be made in writing and approved by his office.

Miss Hewitt charged the operation was arranged by her mother in a bizarre scheme to gain control of a $10,000,000 trust fund which would have been shared by any children born to the young woman. The fund was established by the girl's father, the late Peter Cooper Hewitt, inventor.

Aaron Sapiro, attorney for Mrs. McCarter, said the surgery was for "society's sake" and evidence would be offered to show "erotic tendencies" of the young heiress.

Russell P. Tyler, Miss Hewitt's attorney, said one of the nurses who attended the girl during the operation reported she had received a letter threatening harm should she testify in Miss Hewitt's behalf. Police said they had no report of the incident.

Tyler identified the nurse as Miss Grace Wilkins.

Sapiro said the trust fund was about $1,300,000. Two-thirds of its income supposedly goes to Miss Hewitt and the remainder to Mrs. McCarter. In the event the girl died childless, however, the mother would receive the full income.

Mrs. McCarter's attorney said the operation on the heiress was performed "for Ann's sake and for society's sake. The two surgeons who operated said a specialist had advised them the girl was "feeble minded."

Sapiro said he would offer Ann's diary as evidence of her "erotic tendencies" and said affidavits would dispute her assertion her mother abused her and deprived her of "nice clothes."

Virtual Prisoner.

Russell P. Tyler, attorney for Miss Hewitt, said the girl was poorly dressed because her mother had kept her a virtual prisoner and gave her no chance to buy nice clothes.

In Hackensack, N. J., William V. Dreslin, a lawyer representing Mrs. McCarter, said trouble between the mother and daughter began "when certain lawyers entered the case on the girl's behalf."

After her 21st birthday last July Miss Hewitt filed application in Hackensack for an accounting in the trust fund stewardship. Breslin yesterday asked a nine months' extension of the time for filing the accounting.

The police authorities here said they would interest themselves in the case to the extent of determining whether all legal requirements had been met in the operation on Miss Cooper.

ESTATE WOULD BE GIVEN TO COOPER INSTITUTE

HACKENSACK, N. J., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Attorney William V. Breslin said tonight the will of Peter Cooper Hewitt provided that his estate be given to the Cooper Institute if his daughter, Ann Cooper Hewitt, should die childless.

Breslin said instead of gaining control of the entire estate in such an event, Mrs. Maryon Hewitt McCarter, the girl's mother, would, under terms of the will, receive only the income of the estate.

Breslin represents Mrs. McCarter in an action filed by her daughter who sought an accounting of her mother's guardianship since 1923. Miss Hewitt was left a $1,300,000 trust fund by her father. She filed a $500,000 damage suit in California last Monday alleging her mother had duped her into a sterilization operation.

WILLIAM B. O'CONNELL PASSES IN KENTUCKY

Official Claimed by Death Without Serving Day in Office.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Without having served a day in his newly elected office as clerk of the court of appeals, William B. O'Connell died unexpected here today. He was 65 years old.

Less than an hour afterward the court appointed O'Connell's son, 30-year-old Charles K. O'Connell, to fill the place. Chief Justice William Rogers Clay said it was the unanimous desire of the appellate judges that young O'Connell fill the place.

"Billy" O'Connell, as he was known throughout the state, took the oath as clerk yesterday from his bed. He had been suffering from what was considered a mild case of influenza and no fears had been felt for his recovery.

His death was attributed to a heart attack induced by the influenza. His son was at his bedside.

Charles O'Connell was sworn in yesterday as a deputy clerk under his father. He took the oath again this afternoon as clerk from Chief Justice Clay.

"CLEANED" OF $500

Negro Presser Sought; $300 Is Recovered.

Police are hunting a negro presser who is alleged to have removed five $100 bills from a suit containing the money sent to a cleaning establishment by Carlise Fraser, of 37 Golf circle, N. E.

Three of the bills have been recovered and the presser, who disappeared, is believed to have the other two in his possession. Detectives Leo Nahlik and J. J. Chester, assigned to the case, learned that the five bills had been given to John Ware, another negro presser, for safe keeping by the vanished negro.

Ware said that the other man had told him the money had been won in a crap game. Monday the "game winner" obtained two of the bills and set out on a shopping expedition. He has not been seen since. A negro girl, Louise Jackson, of 203 Linden street, told officers that she had accompanied the missing man on his shopping trip and said that he had told her he won the money.

Lower Court Invalidations Flayed As 'Travesty' by Donald Richberg

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Assailing the "assertion of supreme authority" by the judiciary, Donald R. Richberg tonight called on lawyers to urge that congress prevent lower federal courts from passing on the constitutionality of laws.

Making his first public address since retiring as NRA administrator, Richberg told the Bar Association of New York:

"Regardless of the conceded character and ability of the judges, it is, to put it bluntly, a travesty upon representative, popular government to empower one man, serving as the judge of an inferior court, to annul, even temporarily, a law which has been enacted by a body of 531 men, constituting the supreme legislative assembly of the nation, and approved by the chief executive who is elected by all the people."

Asking the "more conservative members of the bar" to recognize that there is "something seriously wrong with the present procedure," Richberg said:

"Unless they advance a reasonable program to meet a reasonable and growing complaint, what forces can be expected to check an inevitable demand for sweeping amendments that will either expand unwisely the powers of the federal legislature or contract unwisely the powers of the supreme court itself?"

Saying congress had authority to deny lower courts power to pass on federal laws, Richberg suggested it might change the procedure so that those courts would merely take evidence and then certify the cases directly to the supreme court for a quick final ruling.

In his address the former government official attacked sections of the bench, bar and press which he said—by encouraging the "intolerant use of political and economic power"—were helping movements aimed at making constitutional changes which "might be profoundly injurious to our institutions of government."

Because millions of "bewildered people" were "beginning to lose faith in a natural leadership of brains and experience and to distrust the integrity of either the facts or arguments" furnished by newspapers and magazines, he said the "panacea promoter now has conditions ripe for a national debauchery of public opinion."

"The methods for organizing a fantastic movement and steadily expanding its force," he said, "have all been worked out; and a successful technique has been established in such campaigns as those of the Ku Klux Klan and the Anti-Saloon League. Today a series of such movements are in progress, of which the most menacing is the Townsend plan."

"It seems incredible that thousands of outwardly sane people can be petitioning the government to add 24 billion dollars to their taxes. Millions of sensible and humane men and women believe in reasonable old age pensions. They may generously be willing to pay reasonable taxes for such a purpose. But such a program to take one-third or more of the earnings of the entire working population, in order to support eight per cent of the people in comparatively luxury cannot be seriously advocated by any sane person who understands it."

Prairie States Slip From Icy Grip As Frigid Blasts Move Eastward

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The most intense siege of the winter lifted slowly in the frozen prairie states tonight as the cold wave pushed across the Mississippi river.

Temperatures ventured upward in the northern states between the river and the Rockies after dropping to a minimum of 41 degrees below zero. But the mercury headed downward in Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, lower Michigan and Ohio.

Warroad, Minn., claimed the dubious distinction of cold capital of America with an unofficial reading of 41 below. Thermometric lows established in the frigid belt included: Bemidji, Minn., —33; Jamestown and Frand Forks, N. D., —27; Brookings, S. D., —26; Oakdale, Neb., —18; Mills City, Mont., —14; Minneapolis and Lander, Wyo., —12.

Northern Iowa felt the sting of 19 below and northwestern Wisconsin 16 below.

A cold wave that toppled temperatures to 18 above in the Texas panhandle moved south. Snow ranging from an inch to a foot burdened the Oklahoma panhandle, New Mexico and western Texas. Icy pavements were blamed for two traffic fatalities in the Amarillo area.

Many roads were blocked in the Dakotas and Montana. Highway crews were dispatched to clear them as moderation set in.

A tractor-driven snow plow attacked drifts as a rescue party sought to reach 20 coal miners and their families marooned for three days at an isolated ranch in Wyoming.

Meteorologists noted two elemental freaks. While Sioux City in the western extremity of Iowa shivered in 12 below zero cold, several points in the eastern portion of the same state revelled in temperatures of 22 above. The mercury shrank to 16 below zero at Hager City, Min., but at La Crosse, Wis., —150 miles to the east—it was one above. Weathermen attributed the pranks to warm air currents from the southwest.

Milwaukee anticipated a 16-degree drop to 10 above overnight. Readings near 15 degrees above were in prospect at Chicago after a fairly comfortable day with temperatures in the low thirties.

COUNCIL ANTI-KEY BLOC LAUNCHES BITTER FIGHT

5 per cent of the salary cuts, but this would leave those employes in the higher brackets still with a 10 per cent cut. He told council unequivocally that the city is not able financially to do more than restore 5 per cent. The Couch move, however, would provide an additional $131,000 in revenue for 1936 if intangibles are accepted at face value for taxation as real estate and tangible personal properties are. It was estimated yesterday that it would require only about $125,000 to restore an additional 5 per cent of the salaries of employes after the budget commission recommendation that the first 5 per cent be restored.

Battle Impending.

Councilman Aubrey Milam, chairman of the finance committee, yesterday was surveying the situation with apprehension. He was known to consider that a battle between the administration and a hostile council is impending, and he was concentrating his efforts in a move to stem the tide and keep the city on as even a keel as possible.

While he had mapped on definite program, it was believed that he will insist that the budget commission recommendations be followed and that the city not attempt to restore more than 5 per cent of the cuts at this time.

Those close to the mayor were confident that he will not relent unless shown conclusively that city receipts will be larger than budget commission anticipations. They content that the mayor will not agree to tax intangibles on the same basis as real property, and this will furnish the issue around which the various council factions will stage their fight.

Merger Referendum Demanded.

Sponsors of the county-wide referendum on the proposed seven-point merger program for Atlanta and Fulton county yesterday prepared to continue that battle, although a balky city council has turned a deaf ear to administration demands in that respect for four consecutive council meetings and has defeated a record vote on the issue. Key is adamant in his demands that the matter be sent to the people, and Councilman Howard C. McCutcheon, chairman of the 1936 charter revision committee, yesterday asserted he will call a meeting of that body within the next few days to hold a public hearing as demanded at the last meeting of the 1935 council, held Monday.

For years, Atlanta's mayors have been forced to contend with antagonistic councils for the last year of the administration, and this fact coupled with the issues as outlined furnished material for many hectic council sessions in the following months of 1936.

BONUS VOTE FRIDAY EXPECTED IN HOUSE

veterans not to cash their adjusted service certificates until 1945, the maturity date under existing law. It would provide no specific method of payment.

The ways and means committee today decided to knock out one provision that would have refunded all interest paid by veterans on loans on the certificates but kept another that would cancel all unpaid interest on such loans.

Representative Vinson, democrat, Kentucky, one of the backers of the legislation, said the refund would have amounted to $7,000,000 and that the cancellation will cost $288,000,000. He said the additional cash outlay immediately on enactment of the bill, backed by the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans, still would be around $1,000,000,000.

Another change by the ways and means committee will impose no extra burden on the treasury, he contended. That alteration would boost from 3 1-2 to 4 1-2 per cent the interest on bonds to be issued to the United States government life insurance fund by the treasury. By issuing the bonds, the treasury would make payment of loans made by the fund upon service certificates.

Government Guarantee.

Vinson said the government has guaranteed that the fund shall earn 4 1-2 per cent interest.

While the face value of the adjusted service certificates is $3,500,000,000, the government aready has put $1,500,000,000 in a sinking fund to retire them in 1945.

Proponents of the plan contend the total would be slashed another $500,000,000 by putting bonds in the life insurance fund and that holders of $500,000,000 in certificates will prefer to receive interest on them rather than cash them now.

hat would leave $1,000,000,000 in cash to be raised immediately.

'Safety Postscript' Idea Spreads In War Against Traffic Accidents

The idea of placing a "Safety Postscript" on all letters, suggested a few days ago by an Atlantan interested in safety, has caught on.

One of the first to recognize the worth of this simple plan whereby the importance of safety can be stressed is Earle M. Holden, manager of the Capitol theater.

In a letter to the Safety Council of The Constitution, which is sponsoring a safe driving-safe walking campaign in this city and surrounding territory, Mr. Holden said:

"The suggestion that you published the other day as regards to a certain man placing a P. S. on all his letters, requesting that motorists drive carefully is indeed a splendid idea.

"We are, therefore, starting immediately using this suggestion on all our mail outgoing from this theater. Signed, Earle M. Holden."

Means Business.

And to show he means business, Mr. Holden adds the P. S.:

"If you drive a car, please drive CAREFULLY during 1936."

Further indication of the interest in The Constitution's campaign, aimed at cutting down the tremendous loss of life and limb through motor accidents, is the letter received yesterday from Mrs. Angeline D. Smith, librarian of State Teachers and Agricultural College, Forsyth, Ga., who writes:

"I am enclosing a safe driving pledge cut from an issue of The Constitution, with the required addressed envelope.

"It would be rather effective and constructive if it were possible to procure through the same agency some form of printed rules for driving, such as are sometimes published in some states for reference for applicants for driving licenses.

"I am making a vertical file of articles for safety education and any poster material or free supplementary pamphlet matter will also be very useful in this project.

"It might be profitable to publish a series of articles for right driving rules which could be clipped by individuals who would be interested and would reach a greater number of people who are innocent offenders.

"As we have quite a number of students and faculty members who drive cars, it might be also a good idea to have a campaign for safe driving, using a bulletin board display in the library, talks in chapel and classrooms and projects in the social science department to emphasize this.

"I'll advocate it."

"You could co-operate very effectively in this by placing the library on your mailing list for any suggestions or material for refernce."

The Safety Council welcomes these letters, for they indicate a genuine interest in safety.

44 Volunteer Pledges.

Further encouragement was given the Council yesterday in the fact that 44 persons came to The Constitution offices and signed the safety pledge.

This is all helpful and fine, but the great safety task lies with you motorists who have not yet heeded the safety battle-call. Enlist today in the war against avoidable loss of life of suffering and pain to loved ones.

Sign the Safety Pledge printed in this newspaper, and follow the seven simple rules of safety. It is worth the effort, to be enlisted in the army fighting needless death, or the resultant horrors of useful citizens made useless through carelessness.

Sign the pledge, and obtain the stickers showing that you are in this fight with hundreds of others.

Let's all get behind the movement to reduce the accident toll in 1936!

COUNTY PRIMARY VOTE TO BE HELD MARCH 11

the resignations of Chairman Bell and Secretary Hewitt Chambers, because of "personal" interest in some of the races for county positions. Beyond assuring Hartley that he was not a candidate for any office, Bell made no answer to the committeeman. The secretary likewise did not reply.

A resolution to increase the number of committeemen from wards in the city after the wards are reduced to six was referred to the rules committee, which announced that legal technicalities would necessitate it being studied at length.

At present, there are 12 wards of the city within Fulton county and each has two committeemen. The proposal to increase the number to four to the ward would maintain the same ratio of county and city representatives on the committee, it was said.

Entries Close February 8.

Candidates for offices were directed to pay entrance fees to Secretary Chambers by noon, February 8. Clerks and managers of the polls will be paid $6. It was also resolved that no clerk or manager would be appointed who is related by blood or marriage to any candidate. Candidates and clerks and managers must be duly qualified voters, it was decreed.

The hours for the polls to remain open the day of the election were fixed from 7 o'clock in the morning until 7 o'clock at night, central standard time.

Vice Chairman J. Wilson Parker, who headed a special rules committee, introduced a resolution designed to speed the count of ballots, which was passed by the committee. His plan is to count the votes by districts and to total the results from these figures. Fulton, old Milton and old Campbell county were designated as the districts.

Following is the list of entrance fees:

Clerk of the superior court, $500; commissioner of roads and revenues (to succeed George F. Longino and J. A. Ragsdale) $300 each position; coroner, $300; county surveyor, $100; judge of the criminal court, $500; judge of the municipal court (to succeed Judge Clarence Bell and Judge T. O. Hathcock) $500 each position; ordinary, $500; sheriff, $500; solicitor of the criminal court, $500; superintendent of county schools, $500; tax collector, $500; tax receiver, $500; treasurer, $300.

his attempt to set up a government based upon economic coercion, or he can proposed to congress the constitutional amendments necessary to allow him to proceed."

Former President Hoover, Governor Landon, of Kansas, and Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, at the time had reserved comment on the AAA decision.

Another leading possibility for the G. O. P. leadership, Senator Borah, of Idaho, agreed with the administration plan to seek appropriations to redeem unpaid AAA contracts. His statement did not discuss the significance of the decision.

One of his supporters in the contest with the old guard, Representative Fish, republican, New York, said "the raising of the constitutional issue" made Borah the logical nominee.

UNCERTAIN RECEPTION AWAITING TALMADGE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—An uncertain reception awaits Governor Talmadge, of Georgia, bitter foe of President Roosevelt, when he arrives here tomorrow prepared to take a seat in the national party councils.

The Governor was expected to present his credentials as Georgia's national committeeman when the party chieftains meet Thursday to select a convention city.

Some speculation was heard on a possibility his credentials might be referred to a committee and allowed to rest there without action, but one source said he probably would be seated as any other new member.

STATE RECOVERY LAW UPHELD IN WISCONSIN

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The Wisconsin recovery law of 1935, patterned after the NRA, was held valid today by the state supreme court.

The effect was to sustain 11 state codes of fair competition under which service trades and industries are now operating and to pave the way for adoption of other codes which have been awaiting a test of the law's constitutionality.

The question presented was whether the legislature had constitutional authority to confer upon the governor the power to initiate and impose codes.

Why go to Westphalia for yeast?

Seems a long way, doesn't it? And equally far to the little district of Saaz, in old Bohemia, and the neighboring "gardens" of Bavaria, where Piel's beer gets all its hops.

But Piel's wanted to make in America the same sunny-soft lager that's sipped in cool, slender glasses in the ancient biergärten of Munich and Pilsen. So we use the same materials as the original Münchner and Pilsner beers.

These rare materials are five to ten times more expensive than the domestic kind. But nothing else can make Piel's. Nothing else can give a beer the delicate piquance, the pervasive zestfulness, and the golden, sunny softness of Piel's.

ATLANTA, GA., JAN. 8, 1936.

THE AAA DECISION

The sweeping nature of the decision of the supreme court holding the agricultural adjustment act unconstitutional need create no fears that the farmer will lose the far-reaching benefits he has received from this phase of the recovery program.

When the NRA was overthrown by the supreme court last May it was pointed out by The Constitution that the decision might be a blessing in disguise, with the good features of the Blue Eagle plan being retained by business and industry and public opinion safeguarding against the return of the evils that had been eliminated.

This has taken place and the extent to which business has continued to observe the basic principles of the NRA is largely responsible for the sustained and sound advance recorded since the supreme court's decision was announced.

So, undoubtedly, it will be with the AAA and the agricultural interests of the country. As in the case of the NRA, some of the features of the plan have been proven bad, and their application worse, but there can be no fair denial that it was meritorious in principle and purpose and that the good features have far outweighed the bad.

Never before had the economic condition of the farmer been as critical as it was in 1932. He was burdened to the breaking point with debt and his products were bringing ruinously low prices. Not only for his rescue, but for the upbuilding of business and industry, the prosperity of which is firmly rooted in the well-being of the farmer, heroic measures had to be taken.

In order that agriculture might be revitalized and started on the upward way again, it was necessary to inject into the AAA some features that were extreme—just as an autoist feeds a mixture rich with gasoline to his motor when it has been standing in the cold. He abandons this mixture when his car is warmed up and running smoothly, but it is necessary for a time in order that he may get his car under way again.

Thus it has been with the NRA and undoubtedly will be with the AAA. Stagnating business needed emergency aid to revive it, but when, as the direct result of this aid extended through the NRA, full momentum ahead had been regained, the return to more normal conditions was safely and successfully achieved.

The farmers are not as intensely organized as business and industry and it is notably difficult for them to pull together. For this reason they will probably need continued governmental co-operation, in some form, toward the control of production, the maintenance of livable prices for their products and the assurance that they will receive the same kind of protection that the tariff gives to industry and labor.

It will not be difficult to devise a plan that will, within the limitations of the constitution, retain the far-reaching benefits received by the farmer under the AAA. At the same time, there will be eliminated the evils that have resulted in unequal treatment of individual farmers, boosted the production of competitive commodities in other countries, tended to force American farm products out of world markets and made it increasingly difficult for the cotton textile industry in the United States to compete with not only competitive fabrics manufactured in other countries, but with fabrics manufactured in this country from other materials, but not carrying the burden of the processing taxes.

In one of his immortal passages, Shakespeare says: "The evil that men do lives after them; the good is oft interred with their bones."

Fortunately, the converse has been proven true in the case of the NRA. The evils which were eliminated during its existence have not returned—nor will they—while the good it accomplished has lived on to make American business and industry sounder and safer.

There is no reason why the same shall not prove true in the case of the AAA. Not only has it rescued the farmer from the slough of despond, but it has brought to the country as a whole a new realization of the extent to which national well-being is based on the farmers' prosperity.

With this new realization, and with the bad phases of the plan eliminated, it is certain that, to an extent never known before, there will be universal co-operation between government, finance, industry and commerce toward making permanent the benefits that have come to the farmer under the AAA.

THE FOUNDATION OF PEACE

Much ground for comfort for those who fear that the future may bring trouble between the United States and Japan is to be found in the address delivered in Atlanta Monday before an audience of distinguished Georgians by Toyohiko Kagawa, world-famed Japanese who is in America on a seven-month speaking tour.

Dr. Kagawa emphasizes that mutual understanding between nations and the willingness to co-operate are the foundation stones of world peace, and lists overpopulation, the need of raw materials, international loans, commercial policies and transportation policies as the chief causes of war.

He significantly and correctly adds that "there is little hope of solving these vital questions by debating the radius of the mouths of cannon."

In expressing regret that so large a per cent of the American people are incorrectly informed as to the attitude and ambitions of the Japanese people, Dr. Kagawa points out that no such ignorance as to America exists in his country, where 10,000,000 people can speak English and every school child is required to take eight hours of English instruction each week.

As a result of the large circulation of American newspapers, magazines and books in Japan, the people of the country are intimately acquainted with conditions in America and, in the words of Dr. Kagawa, "99 per cent of them are entirely friendly toward the United States." The attitude of the government is reflected in the recent law enacted by the Japanese parliament forbidding the publication of expressions of bitterness toward America.

Thus, while this country is being constantly deluged with the prejudiced and largely false statements of jingoistic elements, the Japanese government, with the approval of the people, has prohibited the distribution of baseless and dangerous attacks on a nation with which they want to remain on good terms.

Those who know the attitude of respect and admiration of the Japanese people toward America and the desire of the Japanese government for the continuance of friendly relations with the United States hold no doubt that the two nations can work in earnest and peaceful co-operation toward the solution of the mutual problems that face them in the Pacific area, and that if trouble comes it will be largely as the result of a lack of understanding upon our part of the attitude, the needs and the ideals of the Japanese.

It is difficult for those of the west to understand the psychology of the east, but there is a middle ground on which the two can meet and work for the benefit of humanity. The approach to this middle ground is made all the more easy for America, in view of the eagerness of the Japanese for our friendship and understanding and their willingness to meet us more than halfway in order that the goal of international friendship may be permanently achieved.

We of America must more fully recognize that in the Japan of today has arisen a great new nation, populated by a great and progressive people whose place in the sun of international affairs is not to be denied, and that our best and wisest course is to accept in the spirit that it is offered the friendship of this dominant Far Eastern people.

Sentiments In Italy.

ZURICH, Switzerland—"If England understands us at last, it is because we have shown our mettle! . . . If we are made an honorable offer today, it is because we have deserved it." . . . These words sum up the general reaction to the Laval-Hoare peace proposals among the Italian public. "Italy is victorious," they told me in Milan, Turin and Bologna, where I made a quick visit before going to Geneva to watch the League face its hardest crisis. "Our Duce," said one man, a university professor, "has imposed his will upon a hostile world without fighting. Mussolini foresaw everything. He knew he only had to show his teeth and the most powerful nations in Europe would draw in their horns. Italy owes everything to Mussolini, for he made it possible for Italy to have teeth to show. . . . Five months ago the Duce warned the world that the universe would tremble before the fascist power. That was no exaggeration. Even mighty England gave way when the fatal hour of decision drew nigh. Even though London was supported by Paris, England dared not impose the embargo on oil, for that move would have brought forth a smashing reply from the Duce . . . The British navy is no match for our young fascist navy. . . . England knows this. She preferred to keep Mussolini as a friend. The Duce is victorious all along the line."

* * * *

Conquer Without War.

The university professor at Bologna said one thing which is perfectly correct and which supports the theory I have upheld right along. He said: "Our Duce has imposed his will upon a hostile world without fighting."

Five months ago I began writing that there would be no war in Ethiopia, that war would not be necessary, that Ethiopia was for the taking, and that Mussolini would have his way in Africa by intimidation and keeping a stiff upper lip. So it has come to pass. There has indeed been a military expedition. But there has been no war, no decisive battle, no victory, no conquest, except then the occupation of a few outlying points.

At the very moment, mark well, at the very moment when the Italian army is about to come into contact with the Ethiopian forces, that is when a big battle appears imminent and a decision might be obtained in the military field, Britain switches around completely from supporting the negus to the open support of the Duce.

* * * *

Why This Change?

The most general view of the sudden switch in Britain foreign policy is that M. Pierre Laval, the prime minister of France, won the British cabinet over to his point of view. The real motif is as follows: The Italian army in Ethiopia is stuck and cannot move backward or forward. The financial and economic situation of Italy is disastrous, the melting down of wedding rings and medals makes little difference there. Another three months will produce a debacle in Italy. That prospect frightened England.

The idea that Mussolini could be upset, swept out of power and the fascist regime come to an end, loomed as a very great likelihood. If that should happen, Austria is without defense and the land-hungry German reich would gobble it up without much ado. Mussolini is the guarantor of Austrian independence at present. With Mussolini gone, Europe would face war at short notice. That is the thought at the back of the British cabinet. That and something else. Some members in the Baldwin government have enough of the League. They want England to get her hands free and start an armament campaign. So the League is given a mortal blow. I don't see how it can possibly recover now unless world opinion intervenes.

Talmudic Tales

BY DAVID MORANTZ.

Number 224.

(Based upon the legends and philosophy found in the Talmud, which work contains the civil and canonical laws and traditions of the Jewish people, dating back as far as 3,000 years.)

HOW SOLOMON CHOSE THE TEMPLE SITE.

King Solomon, after he had determined to build the temple, found it very hard to decide upon the most suitable location for it.

He was directed to go one night to Mount Zion, to a farm there which was owned by two brothers, and to watch what would happen.

One of these brothers, a bachelor, was very poor. While the other one was not only extremely wealthy, but was the head of a large, happy family.

That night when everyone about the farm was apparently asleep, King Solomon, from his hiding place saw the unmarried brother stealthily leave his humble dwelling, go to the barn where his grain was stored, and carry several loads of his own grain to his brother's storehouse, because he felt that his brother, with his large family, needed the grain more than he.

After he had returned to his hut, imagine King Solomon's surprise to see the wealthy brother open his door quietly and steal forth to his own storehouse and carry several loads of his grain to the storehouse of the poor brother, as he felt that his brother, being so much poorer, was in greater need of it than he. Then he returned to his home.

After witnessing these beautiful examples of brotherly love, he decided that no better site for his temple could be found than this.

Accordingly, the next day he called upon the brothers and bought the farm, and it was on the site of this field that Solomon's magnificent temple was built.

Due to the extensive interest in Talmudic Tales, 128 of the legends and over 500 pearls of wisdom have been collected in an attractive book of 195 pages, handsomely bound in grained blue vellum cloth, with gold stamped title. Birth of X-Ray.

Discovery of what he named X-rays (because of the uncertainty of their nature) was reported by 50-year-old Wilhelm Konraw Roentgen, German physicist in 1896. The discovery was an accident, and X-rays weren't thought of as treatments for ailments until they had been discovered to be injurious to health! They were first used medically to cure a hairy mole.

War on Slavery.

Charles Sumner was born in Boston in 1811, destined to become a senator at 40 and the leader of the fight in congress on slavery. After the war on slavery was won, Sumner became the bitter foe of U. S. Grant, who won it. One day when George F. Hoar was passing Sumner's house in Washington with President Grant, Hoar casually remarked that Sumner didn't believe in the Bible. "Of course not," said Grant, "he didn't write it."

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

BY PAUL MALLON.

BACKFIRE? WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Always serene, Chief Justice Hughes was vexed when the anti-AAA decision was handed down. He leaned forward further than necessary to nod grimly toward Justice Roberts as a signal to start the decision. During it, he locked his jaws and fixed his eyes with equally extraordinary determination.

It was so noticeable that court lawyers speculated whether Mr. Hughes had read the full page display of his legal opinions in a local newspaper a few days earlier. Included therein was an opinion he once expressed as a lawyer in a legal brief. The delicate but obvious point presented by the citation was that Hughes would be reversing himself if he overthrew the AAA.

Court lawyers also wondered if Mr. Hughes had heard the same inside yarn about it as they did, to wit:

That the old brief was dug up by an eminent lawyer-economist in Williams street, New York, and brought to the highest of New Dealers here, who planted it in a spot where all could see, including Mr. Hughes.

DISDAIN? Flippant rumors were spawned when the supreme court failed to attend the house session at which President Roosevelt spoke. One, now current, is that the court was not invited. The inside facts are these:

House Doorkeeper Sinnott went to the marshal of the court and asked if the court wanted to attend in a body. He also said he would find seats for any justices who wanted to attend unofficially. Apparently the court wanted nothing, because no applications were received.

The court frequently attends the opening of congress and the delivery of presidential messages. It is not a rigid custom, but a sufficiently established one to cause comment when it is not followed.

SURPRISE Uppermost New Dealers expected to be reversed on AAA, but not as reversed as they were. What they anticipated was invalidation of the processing tax, leaving the way open for an easy substitute. They were floored when the court cut out legal ground on which the whole New Deal was built. A couple of farm authorities were with the President 20 minutes before the decision was announced. He had no tip on the decision then. He still thought the way would be left open.

That was also what was in his mind when he transferred the AAA to the permanent budget in his budget message. The idea was to make it more constitutional.

REJECTIONS Current mention of Justice Roberts' name as a republican presidential candidate is not exactly new. Months ago a couple of republican authorities put out indirect feelers toward Roberts, Chief Justice Hughes and even Justice Stone (who has since aligned himself with the so-called New Deal school of legal thought). In each instance, feelers shriveled. The three apparently were not interested.

Most republican technicians are personally convinced that supreme court justices do not make good campaigners. They remember 1916.

JUDICIAL PERSONALITY Justice Roberts has more judicial personality than anyone seen in a toga around here in a long time. He does not read his decisions, as the other justices do, but speaks them. This permits him to make his points with more emphasis. His voice is stronger, and his delivery convincing. He speaks as if he deeply believes what he says. However, if you compare his spoken words with the later written opinion, you will find he has followed text exactly. He learns his decisions by heart at home ahead of time.

PREPARATION Postmaster-General Farley has the postmaster situation well in hand for the campaign. Proof of his quiet activities during the congressional recess may be found behind the hundreds of postmaster nominations sent to the senate for confirmation the other day. The appointments were nearly all for new men, meaning, of course, that holdover republicans are no longer holding over.

A check of the vital states shows that 16 out of the 19 appointees for California are new men; five out of five in Connecticut; 14 out of 15 in Iowa; five out of six in Kansas; 28 out of 28 in Minnesota; 17 out of 17 in Missouri; 19 out of 19 in New York; 16 out of 16 in Ohio, and 31 out of 34 in Pennsylvania.

NOTES Two house pages also failed to receive official cards of admission for the President's speech. They were hurt more than the supreme court.

Rail Co-ordinator Eastman's job is likely to be shelved by congress, although he wants it continued.

The reason why Republican Chairman Fletcher backed out of his proposal to have one man answer Mr. Roosevelt's opening message immediately was because too many republicans wanted the job. There would have been considerable inner antagonism if he had named anyone but himself, and he did not want the job.

Add signs of political campaigning: The democratic national committee has employed a top-notch Washington newsman (Edward L. Roddan) as assistant to Publicizer Michelson.

Several house committees are quietly arranging for authority to employ their own experts. Apparently they cannot understand all these bills coming before them.

SILHOUETTES

BY RALPH T. JONES.

A policeman met a burglar,
Working late one night,
The policeman caught the burglar,
Which is nothing less than right.

The burglar told his captor,
"I hope they probe you good,
You cops are too officious,
You irk my honest blood."

"You're always interfering
With a fellow and his art,
Won't let crooks make a living—
Say, ain't you got no heart?"

Information? Call the Library.

Do you ever wonder why it is so many scribes manage to get their quotations as straight as they do? The answer is a certain very obliging and very efficient young lady at the Carnegie Library.

Want to know exact wording of an apt quotation? Want to know who first said it? In what book, play or poem, in which volume and what was the name of the character on whose lips the words were put?

Just call the library, tell 'em what you want to know and in five minutes—or ten at the most—you'll have your information in full.

That young woman is uncanny, she hasn't failed yet. Try her some day when you're stuck.

Pre-digested Facts About Georgia.

Godsend to anyone who wants to know the basic historical, geographic, agricultural and so forth facts about Georgia is a little folder just put out by the chamber of commerce. In 20 pages of three by six inches, this folder tells more about our state than has been compressed in anything like such limited space before. "From the landing of good old General Oglethorpe at Yamacraw to the words of the state song, it is complete, succinct, terse and valuable. An education about Georgia offered you for 15 minutes reading.

Do You Remember The Fire Horses?

Memories of the days when galloping steeds raced through the streets, hauling the fire-fighting equipment, with sparks flying from paving as the steel shod hooves pounded along, came back the other day when William Lewis Hardy paid a visit to this office.

Hardy was a driver for the Atlanta fire department in the days before gasoline had destroyed the equine romance of a fireman's job.

He had pictures of his team, two famous horses then, named Eagle Bird and Red. Eagle Bird was known as the fastest horse in the department and used to beat the chief in his buggy, despite the heavy hose wagon he pulled, with insulting regularity.

Eagle Bird was also notable for his fondness for a popular soft drink, which he would drink either from glass or bottle.

Whether or not a horse can die of a broken heart is a matter for debate, but there is an item for the affirmative in the death of Eagle Bird, which occurred just three days after the Atlanta department was motorized and Eagle Bird, with his mates, was retired to the pasture.

Hardy also showed another interesting picture, a colored postcard showing the entire department, with their trucks and all, drawn up in an open field in front of the Atlanta railroad depot in 1856.

Reminiscences In 1995.

I suppose, in 1995 or thereabout, pictures of the fire fighting equipment we use today will be just as outmoded and as amusing as these pictures of 80 years ago are to us.

I can just picture the pilots of the fast fire planes who will quench each incipient blaze by dumping on few chemicals or something as they fly over the conflagration, laughing at the old style auto trucks of 1936.

A Shot Of News.

And I also suppose, by that time, your newspapers will have been discarded for a more scientific way of learning what the world is doing. Perhaps the news of the day will be condensed into a liquid, placed in a capsule and delivered at your home to be taken by means of a hypodermic needle.

At that, there are newspapers today whose ultimate effect is something like unto a "shot in the arm."

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

A new utility was born on this day twenty-five years ago. The Constitution for Sunday, January 8, 1911, reported:

"Active work on the Fairburn and Atlanta street railway, a new electric line connecting the two cities named and passing through Union City, began yesterday morning when, with appropriate ceremonies, Mrs. W. T. Roberts, wife of the president of the line, drove home the gold spike and fastened the first rail."

And Fifty Years Ago.

They were excited over water, fifty years ago. In The Constitution of Friday, January 8, 1886, we read:

"It is an eager and speculative crowd that from morning until night surrounds the spout of the artesian well. If the pump stops for a moment the theory is at once set afloat that the well has failed. A dirty tumbler convinces the crowd that the water is impure."

"Silhouettes in Rhyme," selected verses from this column, now available in book form. Send 25 cents to "Silhouettes," care of The Constitution. Leather covered gift edition $1.

Over-Water Hop.

The first sustained flight over water, the first flight from nation to nation, the first flight with a "pay load" was made in 1785 by Pierre Blanchard. French aeronaut in crossing the English channel in a balloon with Dr. John Jeffries, American physician, as paying passenger. The large crowd on the French side which had assembled to see them land got a shock as well as a thrill. Because of too rapid cooling of the hot air filling the bag, they had to throw everything overboard to keep aloft, including their clothing, and they arrived without a stitch.

FAIR ENOUGH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Shearer A Mystery. PARIS, Jan. 6.—The name of William Shearer, the old battleship salesman, somehow has a sinister sound to me, so when Commendatore Rota, manager of the Ambassador hotel in Rome, confided that Shearer was in the house I looked shrewdly mysterious like a cub reporter around a police station.

"Yeah," I said to Signor Rota. "Yes, you know him?" said Rota. Said I, "not personally, but he's the guy who sort of, well you know—Geneva. You remember the Geneva naval conference? That's the guy."

"Is that a fact?" exclaimed Signor Rota. "Well, he's here. I'm lunching with him." "Did he bring his sample case?" I snapped back. "I don't know," my host said. "Do they carry little samples?"

Shearer was the name of a sordid materialist, a peddler of warships, who went to Geneva that time and by casting suspicion on naval formulas proposed by our loving friends the British had gummed up a great and noble effort by a round table of diplomats, admirals, munitions salesmen and similar conspirators to reduce the navies of the world, most of all ours. Mr. Shearer was one of those shadowy characters who work by stealth in the dark chancelleries of Europe, as Woodrow Wilson used to call them, while young men die and mothers cry.

The oil crowd had been in Rome a few days before trying to cut themselves a slice of cake, and the contrast between these manipulators, so cynical and utterly practical about their business plans, and the poor dumb Italian soldiers sinking up to their armpits in the military morass of Ethiopia, pro patria, had been a revelation. It was like living in a book or standing by a roadside in Georgia watching buzzards wheel above a dying cow.

"I Wrecked Conference." A few nights after I entered the room where Shearer was, and a voice that dominated the whole shrill prattle of the gathering was a big, noisy boom: "I'm the man who wrecked the Geneva conference." It was impossible to figure Mr. Shearer's angle in Rome under existing conditions. How could he sell any warships to Italy even if Italy wanted warships? The United States wouldn't stand for that. And how could he sell Italy any merchant boats when Italy would want to pay off in chianti, spaghetti and olives? Still, there he undoubtedly was, the man who unquestionably did smear the Geneva conference, telling one and all just what he said to Admiral Standley and Admiral Wiley and Claude Swanson and Curtis Wilbur and Farley and Nye and all.

All American reporters in Rome took a whirl at the noisy man to learn what he was up to, but finally they let him be, and after a week or so he checked out for Paris. Here I begin to meet old trimmers who were in Geneva and hear from them that Shearer knows his stuff about naval tonnage comparisons, tonnage and types, and is a very good man at reading the backs of the cards when the British are playing them right up against their buttons. So, meeting him again, I asked if he was going to London to give us once more the benefit of his patriotic interest in a square deal for the American navy. No, he said, he wasn't going to London this time. That one was washed up before it started. He was going home within 24 hours, and the best purchase he had made on this side of the water was a ticket back.

Ignores Interruption. Mr. Shearer is one of those main strength talkers. It is impossible to break through his service. He ignores all efforts to interrupt—a very annoying trait, because all of us like to crack wise occasionally to tell about the time we saw Charlie Chaplin personally in a railroad station. But you pull your Charlie Chaplin on him and he will top you with Winston Churchill. You come back with someone like Otto Kahn and he will simply knock the racket out of your hands with King George V., Mussolini and Franklin D. Roosevelt—"you know Frank."

Next to George M. Cohan, who has a curious way of gesturing with his little fingers, he has the most eloquent hands I ever saw. He doesn't wave them like a bowery merchant selling a second hand suit, but sweeps them in graceful, vigorous strokes and winds up by jabbing himself on his yellow vest with both thumbs.

He is sandy, with a small moustache and not much hair, and he looks about 55. One minute he is down in Mexico with oil, next he is in London managing Queen's theater, again in Singapore, then he is the naval expert and the next thing you know he is up in a hotel room in Washington with a United States senator—and both of them are cockeyed on 40 whisky sours—telling the senator what to say in his important speech on naval requirements tomorrow.

Still An Enigma. Still it doesn't develop whether he has a job or a commission from some shipbuilding company on this trip to Europe or is merely on a flier at his own expense to see what he can do for himself.

He stops at The Ritz, and his clothes are pressed, and like all professionals in the propaganda business when they are talking with newspapermen, he poisons his conversations with his angle. Shearer's business is boats, so his poison concern the British, the pacifists and the bolshevski who would rather we didn't have too many ships, naval or otherwise.

Fascinated by his career, I asked Mr. Shearer as he was leaving if he could play a banjo.

"Yes," he said, and added with a note of modesty, "but only one at a time."

"The Rosary."

Robert Cameron Rogers was born in Buffalo, N. Y., in 1862. He wrote the words of "The Rosary," as part of what he expected to be a great American epic, but concealed the fact from his friends because of the low esteem in which poets were held in his time, and the poem was not identified with him when it was published in an obscure magazine. The mother of Ethelbert Nevin saw it, and sent a clipping to her son, and he sketched out a musical accompaniment in a single evening. It rolled up one of the largest sales ever enjoyed by a copyrighted piece of music—selling 2,673,000 copies in its first 30 years. Florence Barclay wrote a novel, "The Rosary," with the song as its theme and inspiration, and it became one of the best sellers in history—over 1,000,000 copies. Yet Rogers received only a few hundred dollars for the rights to his poem.

The Dog That Has Felt Many Blows Thinks Every Raised Hand a Threat

BY ROBERT QUILLEN.

Some days ago an editorial compared "mercy killings" and the killing of undesirable citizens. It said quite plainly that all killing is wrong. And then it added, in the broadest and most obvious irony, that if a mere law can make wrong right and justify the killing of criminals, then another law could make it right to kill the sick, the unfit and the ornery.

Irony is dangerous, for the literal-minded fail to recognize it; but in this instance it was so plain that the ordinary reader got it on the first hop. To him the editorial said: "All killing is wrong, no matter what the law says; and no law could make 'mercy killings' right."

But it happens that a certain minority organization is opposing the idea of "mercy killings," and spokesmen of this group, watching the public prints for a sign of the enemy, interpreted the editorial as a defense of such killing.

Minorities that are long mistreated or compelled to fight for their rights usually develop a martyr complex. They become super-sensitive. And whether they are looking for an opportunity to enjoy their martyrdom or looking for an excuse to start an argument, they see in every reference to them or their cause an insult or a challenge.

Thus they do themselves great injury, for in their constant search for enmity they grow suspicious of friendliness itself and pick quarrels with people who mean them no harm. The only way to get along with them is to let them severely alone.

Sensitive individuals make trouble for themselves in the same way. Because they are constantly thinking of the matter that makes them sensitive, they assume that other people are, also. And the most innocent reference to it seems to their warped minds a deliberate offense.

If a man is sensitive about a mole on his nose, anybody who looks at him seems to be looking at the mole.

HEALTH TALKS

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

Provided you have nothing wrong with your tonsils and none of your immediate relatives or friends is in need of treatment for infected tonsils, there is a good deal of sardonic humor in the latest utterance of the American Medical Association on this question.

"When the public learns of the dangers and complications that may occur during the removal of tonsils by electrocoagulation" (or as it is popularly known, diathermy), "and, what may be even worse, leaving a buried focus of infection from an incomplete removal it will shun this operation as it would a rabid dog."

So wrote one Harry E. Mock, M. D., in an elaborate 10-page article discussing all fields of electrosurgery under the aegis of the council on physical therapy.

Nothing humorous about it so far, is there? But give this all-around specialist and authority chosen by the A. M. A. to damn diathermy time.

Here is where you grin. In the very next paragraph Dr. Mock refers to the diathermy extirpation of infected tonsils as the "salvation" of patients who need tonsil removal but are bad risks for the old-fashioned major operation by reason of myocardial degeneration (heart disease) or advanced tuberculosis, or exophthalmic goiter.

So if we take the little men who at present rule the A. M. A. as seriously as they take themselves, we must believe that a method which the public would shun as it would a rabid dog if the pub. knew of the "dangers and complications" involved is the "salvation" of patients whose condition is too grave for the old Spanish custom!

Now, then, doctors and folks, the official spokesman of our great medical oligarchy has established his fitness to judge. Listen, then, to the verdict of this oracle on the pile question.

"In my experience there are few hemorrhoids that are suitable for operation in the office . . . The electrodessication method for removing hemorrhoids is an advance over the Whitehead ligature, clamp and cautery operations and the injection methods, for the radical cure of hemorrhoids."

Physicians who do little writing and talking but much study and practice find that there are few hemorrhoids not suitable for cure in the office, by the injection treatment or by electrodessication. As pointed out here recently, in one of the greatest hospitals in the country the injection or ambulant treatment is now employed almost exclusively for hemorrhoids, and rarely is any type of operation done on such patients.

In my judgment the orthodox surgical attack on hemorrhoids is an atrocity to which only an uninformed or misinformed individual will submit.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Bromide Rash.

Why can some persons take bromides nearly all the time without any trouble, while others have a skin rash if they take it for a little while? . . . (Mrs. M. H.)

Answer—I have no idea. I think most persons who use bromides habitually or frequently show more or less acne (blackheads and pimples). Some physicians prescribe short courses of Fowler's solution (arsenic) from time to time to prevent acne, where patients must take bromides for prolonged periods.

Wheat to Eat.

Please look over this announcement of the new bread and tell me what minerals bread made from white flour, yeast, salt, sugar, water, milk and lard lacks. (Mrs. A. W.)

Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address, for monograph "Wheat to Eat." This tells you the difference between plain wheat (unground or ground) and white flour. It gives you recipes for making most appetizing things with plain wheat. It tells you all about the minerals, calories, vitamins, digestibility of wheat or wheat bread compared with white bread. The announcement of the trick bread is sheer hooey.

Hollywood Today

BY SHEILAH GRAHAM.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 7.—Sidney Howard, well known as a playwright and for his aversion to the movie industry, has been signed by Samuel Goldwyn to adapt "Dodsworth," Sinclair Lewis' epic, for the screen.

Following his work on "Arrowsmith," starring Ronald Colman and Helen Hayes, Howard vowed never to set foot in the movie colony again. But, usurping woman's privilege, the playwright has changed his mind. Maybe a tempting sum of money had something to do with it.

Walter Huston is scheduled to reenact his stage role in "Dodsworth." Ina Claire and Fay Bainter are fighting tooth and nail—via their agents—for the privilege of playing the feminine lead, but in spite of Miss Bainter's excellent stage portrayal of the selfish wife, Ruth Chatterton probably will get the part.

Times have changed in Hollywood. A few years ago, when a lady star became temperamental on the set, producers, directors, cameramen, et al., swooned at her feet and otherwise demeaned themselves to appease her. Nowadays, a star suffering from hysteria isn't even given a chance to get her first scream in.

To wit: A young actress, a cute little bundle of French femininity, decided to stage an off-the-record outburst during the filming of "A Tale of Two Cities." Before the bewildered lady could speak, Darryl Zanuck hustled her into his office, pointed an accusing finger at her curves, and said "You're too fat. You must lose 10 pounds within two weeks." She is so quiet and docile now, they call her the studio angel.

Richard Dix is walking around with a fat contract in his pocket from the new British Gaumont studio in Sydney, Australia, to play the lead in "The Flying Doctor." Richard is in a quandary, on account of having made a promise to his seven-months-old twins, Richard and Robert, not to leave them for five years. However, where there's a good contract, there's usually a way, and if the doctor says it's O. K. to take the babies along, their father will sign on the dotted line, and depart with his entire family for the Antipodes.

When Gene Raymond returns to Hollywood following his month of personal appearances, he will start work on the recently purchased R. K. O. Lewis Foster original, "My Blue Heaven," a comedy with music. Gene, who is a bit of a composer in his spare time, has written two songs for it, and he will sing them—if he sells them to the studio.

Charlie Chan is at it again. This time in the Twentieth-Century Fox production "Charlie Chan at the Circus." As usual, Warner Oland plays the role of the sinister Chinese. Shirley Deane, as a reward for her excellent work in the "King of Burlesque," takes care of the love interest together with John McGuire. Francis Ford, old serial veteran, ex-model Drue Leighton, and the midgets, Olive and George Brasno, complete the cast.

Elizabeth Risdon, stage actress, received a letter from her old friend, Sophie Kerr, addressed to her at the Columbia Studios where she is now doing her share toward making "Money Mad," a big success. The letter was returned to the sender marked "Not known"—This in spite of the fact Elizabeth has been working for Columbia six months. It says a lot for the sweet nature of the grand trouper, who sprang to the film forefront as the Grand Duchess Sophie in Grace Moore's latest picture, that she has already forgiven and forgotten the blunder.

Talking of "Money Mad," one of the most important players in the gambling film, featuring Bruce Cabot and Ann Sothern, is a baby. The cooing infant has a stand-in of her own—a doll, wearing the same clothes and make-up as the real life pint-sized actress. By the way, Mr. Cabot cuddling a baby will be something new for fans who remember his murderous intentions toward Rochelle Hudson and her screen baby in "Show Them No Mercy." In the same film, Nick the Greek, famous big-time gambler, is supervising the gambling scenes.

DEATH HITS TWICE IN GEORGIA HOMES

Sisters Die at Brunswick; Father Follows Mother at Crawfordville.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Death struck twice at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McQuaig here within a period of four hours last night. Their two daughters, Janelle, 16, and Betty Louise, 8, are dead today from pneumonia.

The oldest child was stricken suddenly yesterday afternoon and was taken to the hospital, where she died at 11:30 o'clock last night. The younger child was a patient at the hospital for several days and she succumbed four hours later, at 3:30 o'clock.

Double funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at the First Methodist church.

The children are survived by their parents, two sisters and one brother.

DAUGHTER DIES AFTER MOTHER'S RITES

CRAWFORDVILLE, Ga., Jan. 7. (AP)—Miss Fannie Daniel, popular young woman of Crawfordville, died at her home here yesterday only a few hours after the burial of her mother. Miss Daniel's sister, Miss Mamie Daniel is critically ill of pneumonia.

Two surviving sisters, Mrs. Walter Arnold, of South Carolina, and Mrs. George Markey, of Milledgeville, and a brother, Ewing Daniel, are at the bedside of Miss Daniel.

Funeral services for Miss Daniel were held today.

THIRD MEMBER DIES AT FORT VALLEY

MACON, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Mrs. George F. Johnson, of Fort Valley, died in a hospital here last night of pneumonia, the third victim of the disease in one family within the last few days. Her husband and son, Charles Wayne Johnson, are patients at a hospital here suffering from the same ailment, but are believed on the road to recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Treadwell, parents of Mrs. Johnson, were buried at Fort Valley Sunday, where they died of pneumonia.

NEW HAMPTON, Iowa, Jan. 7.—(AP)—"Surprise! Surprise!" cried Mrs. Mary Kleinfehn's ten children when they gathered at her home here for the first family reunion in 30 years. "Surprise! Surprise!" answered Mrs. Kleinfehn, who is 80, as she handed each a check for $500.

90-Year-Old Negro Dies While Praying

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP) Wesley Bell, 90-year-old negro, died here yesterday as he would have had it—on his knees praying to his Almighty.

"Old Wesley," an ex-slave, became an inmate of the county poor house as the feebleness of years rendered him unable to work.

Deeply religious, he never let the adversities of life interfere with his Christian duties.

Yesterday he went about his daily routine in the poor house, and then knelt beside his bed to offer his daily prayers.

There they found him a short time later—his head leaning on the bed, his arms outstretched—kneeling where he had uttered his final mortal words with God.

16 CHILDREN HURT AS TRUCK HITS BUS

Students Near Savannah Injured When Oil Tank Strikes School Vehicle.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Sixteen school children were hurt near here today as a heavy oil truck crashed into the rear of a school bus.

Only one child, Norman Kline, 12, was reported hurt severely. Hospital attendants said he would be in bed for several days. He suffered lacerations about the face and neck, and back and shoulder injuries as he was catapulted out of the bus by the force of the impact.

The other children were treated and dismissed.

County police announced a charge of reckless driving had been filed against a man listed as O. M. Shealey, of Albany, driver of the oil truck. The accident happened on the Ogeechee road, three miles from Savannah.

W. E. SPENCE NAMED ALPHARETTA MAYOR

ALPHARETTA, Ga., Jan. 7.—W. E. Spence was elected mayor of Alpharetta yesterday in the annual election. Council members elected were W. D. Martin, Jack Ri[illegible] and E. F. Jones.

Spence is the youngest mayor to ever serve the municipality. Before the merger of Milton with Fulton county, Mr. Spence was clerk of the superior court, being also the youngest to ever serve in that capacity. He was elected clerk five days after he was 21 years old.

Georgia Farmers and Mill Owner Strike at Court Decision on AAA

Bartow Group Demands "Immediate Action To Offset This Infamous Reactionary Court"; Forsyth Textile Leader Hits Invalidation of Act.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Voiding of the AAA will cost Bartow farmers more than $180,000 in immediate cash benefits during 1936, M. W. H. Collins, county agricultural agent, said today.

"It is the most demoralizing proposition farmers of Bartow county have ever faced, and I don't believe they will sit down supinely and take it," Collins said in a statement.

He said he feared the value of farm products would drop back to the level in 1932, when "all farm crops of Bartow county were worth less than 50 per cent fo what they were in 1935."

Farmers and businessmen of the county dispatched a number of telegrams to Congressman M. C. Tarver, and to Senators George and Russell. The telegrams read:

"Have just read decision supreme court. We are distressed but determined not to accept this intolerable situation. Representing sentiment preponderant majority farmers Bartow county we demand action immediately to offset this infamous reactionary court."

The telegrams were followed by letters urging Georgians in congress to support legislation restoring benefit payments to farmers.

PERSONS ATTACKS COURT DECISION.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A warning that by the time the next cotton crop is marketed "gamblers will mark on the blackboard the prices for everything the farmer grows" as a result of invalidation of the AAA was contained today in a statement from R. T. (Bob) Persons, Forsyth banker, mill owner and business executive.

In a telephone conversation with a representative of the Macon newspapers, Persons declared that "the money power has again got in control" and farmers "will have no choice in fixing their own prices or the help of the government to stabilize them."

The farmers of the south "are in for some lean years," the Forsyth banker predicted, "and the only thing that will save them . . . will be the season and insects destroying the crops so the supply will be short. Then the law of supply and demand will surely control.

"Farmers who have not been able to realize and appreciate the humanitarian spirit of your President . . . will be told by the republicans and money power to plant and grow all the crops you can which will give them an ample supply and low prices to you," the New Deal supporter declared in his statement.

Explaining that invalidation of the AAA relieves him of "about $30,000 taxes that would have had to be paid," Persons said the position he has taken from the beginning "has been one of principle. . . . I am hoping that you will live long enough to appreciate the principle that was manifested in the efforts of your government in trying to legislate for you."

Persons' bank in Forsyth is said to be the only one in the country which did not close during the national banking holiday because "if a man put his money in my bank," according to Persons, "it was his money and he had a right to it and should never be denied that right by me."

He said today his cotton mill at Forsyth is the only one that did not enjoin the processing tax.

ALL AAA WORK STOPPED IN GEORGIA

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP)—All AAA work was stopped in Georgia today, following action of the United States supreme court in killing the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

Harry Brown, director of the State Agricultural Extension Service, said the AAA work had been ordered stopped immediately. He said he could not estimate the number of workers whose salaries stopped with the order, since this is the dull season, and forces were being reduced.

He said AAA work, at the peak of the season's activity in Georgia, gave employment to about 600 persons, not including committeemen who serve under a $3 per diem rate when on duty.

Brown expressed apprehension that removal of control measures might affect prices of farm products. He said lack of control might cause greatly increased plantings, especially of cotton.

"I may go wrong about this—I hope I am," Brown said. He said he expected farmers would be paid on contracts already signed with the government.

ABOUT $8,000,000 TIED UP IN GEORGIA

MACON, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Effect of the supreme court's ruling on scores of processing tax cases pending in the Middle district of United States federal court here was studied by attorneys today.

While it was considered likely that about $8,000,000 in processing tax funds impounded here as a result of litigation would some day be returned to manufacturers, methods of procedure were undetermined.

Scott Russell, prominent Macon attorney, who has long practiced in federal courts, said cessation of efforts to collect processing taxes was "not necessarily a legal conclusion."

Russell expressed belief that farmers would be powerless to enforce pending contracts with the government, because the government's right to make such agreements had been held invalid.

However, D. F. Bruce, Bibb county agricultural agents, said all but seven local farmers due rental and parity checks have received them, and some checks might be in the mails.

Processing tax litigation began here early last summer. W. E. Page, collector of internal revenue in Georgia, is a resident of the Middle district of federal court.

In Atlanta, Collector Page said about $53,000,000 in processing taxes had been collected in Georgia. He said relatively little had been collected in processing taxes in Georgia since processors began going to federal court last summer. Page said that it was a matter entirely out of his jurisdiction, but that his own belief was that money tied up in litigation would be returned to the litigants. He said his office would mark time about collections, pending instructions from Washington.

Farmer Is Killed Following Raid on Distillery Near Jonesboro.

JONESBORO, Ga., Jan. 7.—J. W. Chapman, a Clayton county deputy, has been ordered held to the grand jury which meets the third Monday in February in the slaying near here last Saturday of Jay Fleming, who, it is alleged, was killed following a raid on a distillery about four miles west of Jonesboro.

Chapman and another officer, it is said, raided and destroyed the still and apprehended two men, one listed as M. O. Knight, and Fleming. According to testimony at the inquest held by Coroner J. L. Reeves, an altercation or scuffle followed the apprehension of Fleming during which Chapman's pistol was discharged, killing Fleming instantly.

Chapman posted bond.

Fleming, who was about 25 years old, was a farmer living in the neighborhood where he was killed. He was not married.

MASONIC HOME AID, G. FRANK DILLARD, DIES

MACON, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP)—G. Frank Dillard, 35, assistant superintendent of the Masonic home here for the last four years, died at a local hospital today after a week's illness. He had charge of the farm operations at the home and was a brother of R. S. Dillard, superintendent of the Bibb county home and farm.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow from Hart's chapel, with Dr. J. P. Boone and Dr. Ed F. Cook conducting the services.

Mr. Dillard, formerly of Moultrie, was a former football and basketball star at Norman Park Institute and at Madison A. & M. school, where he was a student. He was especially interested in athletic work at the home. He also assisted with the home's summer camp at Shellman Bluff.

As a member of he Fifth Georgia regiment in the War Between the States, Jackson says he engaged in 18 major battles, including those at Atlanta, Chickamauga and Seven Pines.

FLOOD STAGE REACHED BY GEORGIA RIVERS

Lowlands Overflowed, But No Serious Damage Is Reported.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Fed by frequent rains, rivers in this section of Georgia began rising today, but nowhere was any serious damage reported. Some points reported no damage at all.

The Ocmulgee here was 18.7 feet this morning, and again on the rise. A higher crest than Sunday's 19.1 foot level was expected.

At Milledgeville, the Oconee was at 25.2 feet and rising, with the level expected to go to 26 feet, or four feet above flood stage.

No damage was reported from the high water at Milledgeville. Jere Moore, Milledgeville newspaper editor, said lowlands there are flooded, but the construction of the Old Capitol bridge last year eliminated any danger of traffic delays in Milledgeville. No homes are in danger, Editor Moore said.

In Augusta, where work on the new lock and dam below the city was halted by flooded marshlands, the Savannah river was at 27 feet, against a level of 31 Sunday. No crop damage was reported there.

Columbus, where the flow of the Chattahoochee is controlled by the Bartlett's ferry dam, said the river was somewhat lower there.

Rains were fairly general over the state. In the section around Albany, downpours were reported.

Albany, in the 24 hours ending at 7 a. m. today, had 3.58 inches of rain. The Flint river there was at only 10.3 feet, however, and no danger of flood stage was foreseen.

Blakely reported 2.96 inches of rain, Thomasville 1.34, Americus 1.22, Bainbridge 2.87, Hogansville .76, LaGrange .40, Atlanta .59, Macon .53.

Skies were generally cloudy over the entire state this morning, with Atlanta reporting fog and rain. Weather generally was warm, Atlanta reporting a minimum in the forties, and other points in the state correspondingly high readings.

Montezuma, on the Flint river, had .83 of an inch of rain. The river there was at 17.8 feet. Flood stage is 20. In northwestern Florida, just below the Georgia line in southwestern Georgia, River Junction reported a river level of 17.4, flood stage 20; Blountsville, Fla., 19.3, flood stage 15. Water was reported high enough there to bother lumbering.

DECREASE REPORTED IN STATE PIG SUPPLY

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Rural letter carriers of Georgia who have been keeping an eye on the pig situation say the fall crop in Georgia is less than it was in 1934.

The Georgia Crop Reporting Service, operated by the United States Department of Agriculture, in co-operation with the State College of Agriculture, said today:

"Data secured from the December 1 pig survey conducted in co-operation with the Postoffice Department through the rural carriers indicated a decrease from 1934 in Georgia of sows farrowed and pigs saved.

"Estimated number of sows farrowing in the fall amounted to 87,000, or a decrease of four per cent from the corresponding figure of 91,000 one year ago, while the number of pigs saved was placed at 478,000 against 494,000, or a decrease of three per cent."

GOLIGHTLY ELECTED FAIRBURN ATTORNEY

FAIRBURN, Ga., Jan. 7.—Henry P. Golightly was elected city attorney for Fairburn at the first meeting of the mayor and council for the year, held last night. His opponent was J. Wilson Parker.

Contract for construction of the new Fairburn sewer system was awarded to Searcy B. Slack, of Decatur.

B. F. Jones, city clerk, was re-elected by a vote of 4 to 3, the mayor casting the deciding ballot, and the entire police board was re-elected for the year.

CIVIL WAR IMMINENT IN INNER MONGOLIA

Jap Officers Protest to 'Insult to Our Army' in North China.

PEIPING, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Japanese officials protested to the new semi-autonomous North China government today against what they called an "insult to our imperial army."

A note to the Chinese officials demanded "suitable retribution" for what was called the firing on Japanese officers by Chinese soldiers.

This incident followed reports that civil war was imminent in inner Mongolia between troops of the governor of Suiyan province and the Mongolian Prince Teh Wang, who heads the "Mongolian Autonomy League," allegedly Japanese-controlled.

(A dispatch from Kalgan, Chahar province, said an invading Manchoukuoan army had most of northern Chahar under its control. The army is installing a Manchoukuoan administration and the Japanese-advised invaders ordered taxes paid from now on to Manchoukuo.

(The dispatch said Manchoukuoans were taking over postoffices and that Chinese officials have been negotiating fruitlessly for the return of lost territory.)

The Japanese protest charged that Japanese officers entering Peiping Sunday night were shot at by troops of General Sun Cheh-yuan, chairman of the semi-autonomous political council of Hopei and Chahar provinces.

Chinese newspapers described the incident differently, asserting the Japanese fired on Chinese soldiers on guard at the city gates when the latter kept the Japanese waiting for the gates to open.

DR. FRANKLIN N. PARKER.

DEAN OF THEOLOGY HONORED AT EMORY

'Surprise' Service Commemorates Dr. Franklin Parker's 50th Year as Minister.

Commemorating his 50th anniversary as a minister, Emory University theology students and faculty held a "surprise" chapel service yesterday morning in honor of Dr. Franklin N. Parker, dean of the Candler School of Theology at Emory.

Speaking at the service were Dr. W. A. Smart, on behalf of the faculty; W. F. Dunkle Jr., on behalf of the students, and Dr. W. A. Shelton, pastor Grace Methodist church, representing the Methodist church in the absence of Bishop Warren A. Candler, who was unable to attend.

A Bible, inscribed in honor of Dr. Parker, was presented to the theology chapel by the students and faculty.

Dr. Parker was born May 20, 1867, in New Orleans, and attended Centenary College, Tulane University and Vanderbilt University. The doctor of divinity degree was conferred upon him by Centenary College in 1901 and by Duke University in 1916. He has been a delegate five times to the general conference of the church; delegate to the Methodist Ecumenical Conference, London, 1901, and in Toronto, 1911; and declined his election as a bishop at the general conference in Atlanta, 1918.

DEFICIT OF $1,518,887 FOR 1935 REPORTED

City Spent $11,867,098, Comptroller Reveals; Assets Listed at $3,547,034.

Atlanta expended $11,867,098.67 in operation of city last year, ended the year with a treasurer's balance of $194,107.68, and had a deficit of $1,518,887.37, according to the annual report of City Comptroller B. Graham West, on file with the city council yesterday.

Collections for 1935 from all sources totaled $11,686,058.87.

The deficit was divided as follows: Pay roll certificates issued for the months of November and December, $798,255.54; merchandise certificates of indebtedness, $732,956.96.

Total assets were listed at $3,547,034.69 and liabilities at the same figure, so the city despite the deficit was regarded as being in good fiscal condition.

Councilman Aubrey Milam, chairman of the finance committee, appended a report to West's, and praised the services of the veteran comptroller and of his staff.

West has been connected with the city for more than a quarter of a century, and has held the post of comptroller for 17 years.

COLLAPSE IS FEARED OF COTTON PROGRAM

Voluntary Agreement Among Planters Seen as Only Hope for South.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—High AAA officials tonight foresaw almost complete collapse of their cotton program, and the production of an unrestricted crop in 1936.

With federal control of production completely removed by the supreme court's decision, one official said a crop of 15,000,000 bales next fall would not be unexpected.

Only one possible solution was seen—growers themselves could organize and voluntarily agree to cut production. But officials conceded there appeared little hope for such action because of the short time remaining before the crop will be planted.

Unfavorable weather last year, combined with previous reduction programs, reduced surpluses of other principal crops. The AAA had planned almost maximum production of hogs this year and only a 5 per cent reduction in wheat. But a 33 per cent reduction in cotton acreage for 1936 was desired.

New Lint Contracts.

The new four-year cotton contracts have not even gone out to the field. An official said that even if a new farm program were worked out speedily it might still be too late to prevent a large cotton acreage this year.

The AAA had fixed the base for cotton at 44,500,000 acres, the average planted from 1927 to 1932. Records showed that the average actually harvested during those years was 40,554,000 acres.

In 1934, 26,987,000 acres were harvested, and in 1935, 27,331,000.

Production from 1928 to 1932 averaged 14,666,000 bales. In 1934, the total was 9,936,000 and in 1935, 10,734,000. The former was the first full year when the cotton program was in effect. The AAA had planned for a crop of from 11,000,000 to 12,000,000 bales in 1936.

Land Rented to AAA.

Farmers who have been renting land to the AAA, it was said, now will need it to produce cotton—and cash. Many of them, officials said, would not be able to wait weeks for a new program before making plans for planting, or financial arrangements for purchasing more fertilizer, more mules and to obtain more labor. Spring plowing already is well under way in some sections of the south.

Officials declined to predict the effect of a pre-AAA crop for 1936. Estimates have been made unofficially that foreign and domestic demand would require a 12,000,000-bale crop this year.

No fear was expressed concerning the 4,450,000 bales held by the Commodity Credit Corporation under 12-cent loans. These loans are due February 1, but belief was expressed that the loans will be extended. It was said some of this loan-cotton will be needed by the trade before the new crop is harvested.

Officials recently predicted that about 1,000,000 bales of the loan-cotton probably would be sold this season.

But a pre-AAA size crop, coming from long-unused acres, might again pile up the carry-over the farm administration has worked steadily to reduce.

Rimes Heads Rail Body.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—John Rimes, Atlantic Coast Line engineer, was re-elected president of the International Railway Association here last night. R. H. Robbins, Pennsylvania Railroad, Long Branch, N. J., was chosen first vice president.

Urban League.

By JESSE O. THOMAS.

During the holidays Atlanta was visited by perhaps the largest number of college-bred negroes that has ever come to the city at any one time in its history.

The Omega Psi Phi fraternity, the first Greek letter fraternity organized in a negro school in America, celebrated its 23d annual conclave in Atlanta from December 27 to the 30th. The Phi Beta Sigma fraternity celebrated its 21st annual conclave during the same period. Some 5,000 college men comprise the membership of the Omega fraternity, who represent 94 local chapters of the fraternity, distributed throughout the United States and Canada.

The host chapters for the Omega conclave were: Eta Omega, which is the graduate chapter in Atlanta; the Alpha Sigma Chapter, which is located at Morris Brown College; Beta Psi Chapter, located in Morehouse College.

Because of the number of fraternities and sororities located in Atlanta, Atlanta is regarded as a "stronghold" of Greek letter organizations.

Welcoming the two fraternities holding their annual conclave in Atlanta were the following fraternities and sororities:

The Delta Sigma Theta sorority, the Sigma Gammo Rho sorority, the Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority, the Zeta Phi Beta sorority, the Iota Phi Lambda sorority, the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, the Phi Beta Sigma fraternity, the Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity.

All of these fraternities and sororities jointly provided entertainment, recreation and other facilities making for the comfort and convenience of visiting delegates.

According to the registrar of the Omega fraternity, there were some 265 delegates to register. This was the largest from the point of view of registration of the conclave in the history of the fraternity. It was also acclaimed as the most successful annual session of the conclave.

The spirit of cordiality was so pronounced among the different sororities and fraternities that one could easily imagine that the local sororities and fraternities were all entertaining their national conclave. There were no lines of demarcation in the cordiality accorded the visitors based on fraternal cleavages.

In addition to the delegates in attendance, there were a large number of women, some of whom were wives of delegates. These two fraternal events attracted to the Gate City, including both men and women, upward of 1,000 college-bred men and women from all over the nation.

The local committee on arrangements so adequately housed these delegates and visitors that, in spite of the fact that Atlanta was in the grip of the worst sleet and snow blizzard it has encountered in 30 years, they all went away testifying as to the hospitality of the Atlanta citizenship.

The entire staff of the Phi Beta Sigma fraternity was re-elected. In the Omega fraternity the following new officers were elected: W. E. Baugh, of Indianapolis, Ind., grand basileus; J. O. Thomas, of Atlanta, vice grand basileus; William Paul, of Philadelphia, grand marshal. The following were re-elected: J. B. Blayton, grand keeper of finances; Herman Dreer, editor of the Oracle and director of the achievement project. Arthur Weiseger was elected at the last conclave for a two-year term as grand keeper of records and seal. Lawrence A. Oxley, retiring grand basileus, was not a candidate to succeed himself.

COMMITTEE POSITIONS DECLINED BY BREWER

School Board's Ex-President Blasts Majority in Announcing Resignation.

Ernest J. Brewer, former president of the Atlanta Board of Education, resigned yesterday as chairman of the athletic and military committee, and as a member of the cafeteria committee.

The resignation was contained in a letter to Ed S. Cook, new president of the board.

In announcing the resignation, Brewer said:

"In a letter today addressed to President Ed S. Cook, I tendered my resignation as chairman of the athletic and military committee and as a member of the cafeteria committee. I realize that I was given the chairmanship of a fairly well balanced committee. However, I am neither pro-Sutton nor anti-Sutton, my interest lies solely in the cause of public education, and therefore I cannot accept any committee appointments which might embarrass me as I am definitely sure that I cannot subscribe to any program offered by the new board set-up, unless it be for the best interests of the Atlanta school system and it is rather far-fetched to anticipate a program of this kind under the present regime. I am not willing to be placed on the spot by a group, and a majority group, which has hindered and handicapped a progressive and constructive program during the year 1935. This same group held up the school building program until I, as president of the board, appealed to the mayor and Congressman Ramspeck for assistance and at that time this matter was satisfactorily adjusted. I do not need, and the minority group on the board does not need a photograph of their efforts to save this program for the city of Atlanta, actions speak louder than political photographs. The leaders in the reorganization of the board were a hindrance in the success of the school bond program yet they now boldly solicit the suffrage of a justly disgruntled constituency. I leave our case in the hands of the thinking people of this city. Nepotism and ward politics must be eliminated from the board and to this end I pledge my unstinted support."

Florida Negro Electrocuted.

RAIFORD, Fla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Lonnie Green, 32-year-old Bradford county negro, paid with his life in Florida's electric chair today for the slaying of an eight-year-old negro girl near Starke, Fla., a year ago.

Grant Park Zoo Keeper Bitten on Face by Camel

A sunstroke in Alaska is news, but not in Cuba. Ethiopians in Abyssinia are not as much news as they would be in Italy. It seems to be a matter of locale. Therefore, the following is news in Atlanta:

Bitten on the face by a camel, John Dilbeck, 23, of 532 Augusta avenue.

Dilbeck was treated at Grady hospital for lacerations of the right side of the face inflicted by a dromedary.

The secret is out when it is explained that Dilbeck is an assistant keeper at the Grant Park zoo. He was bitten yesterday morning by "Greeley," a dromedary camel donated by the Candler estate.

HENRY A. MARTIN DIES IN HOSPITAL

Well Known Furniture Dealer Was Member of Battle Hill Lodge.

Henry A. Martin, pioneer retail furniture dealer in Atlanta and Fulton county, died last night at a private hospital. He was 65 years of age, and retired from business five years ago.

Mr. Martin came here as a young man from Greene county, and established his first store a short time later. He owned and operated stores here and in Fulton county until his retirement.

He was a member of Battle Hill Lodge, F. & A. M., and a Baptist.

He is survived by his wife; two daughters, Mrs. I. Carl Milner, wife of the executive vice president of the Gate City Cotton Mills, and Mrs. J. R. McLucas, and a son, W. H. Martin.

He lived at 305 East North Main street, College Park. Funeral arrangements will be announced by A. C. Hemperly & Sons.

Difficulties of Travel by Motor Car In Sao Paulo, Brazil, Vividly Told

This is the 62d of a series of articles on South American travel by the Rev. Henry Edward Russell, of McDonough, Ga.—Editor's note.

BARRETOS, Sao Paulo, Brazil, Nov. 15.—Tired, soiled and travel worn we came last night to this town in the state of Sao Paulo. The route from Fructal was a hard route. None of the roads in this section of the nation would be a cause of pride for the highway department or the chamber of commerce, if such existed, but each road is a hazard to all who attempt to travel. This is a cattle country and along the way there are fences that divide the ranches. As the road crosses the ranches it encounters these fences and rather than have a gate at each fence a bridge designed to allow cars to pass but to stop the herds is constructed over a hole or ditch. It is made of two large logs placed lengthwise and covered crosswise with smaller logs notched into the lengthwise logs at intervals of several inches. The spaces between the crosspieces prohibit the passage of all stock and cattle, and at best is a rough crossing for an automobile. This construction is known as "mata burro," which means literally a mule killer.

Rev. Russell.

We have encountered other hazards along the way such as driving into a stream the depth of which we did not accurately calculate and more than once we have had to seek help to get out of these streams. There have been narrow roads along high mountain ledges scarcely wide enough for a car to move along and a drop would have meant a fall of several hundred feet. We have come upon large rocks and trees that have fallen on the road but in all the dangers none have been present so consistently as the "mata burro."

Some that we have crossed had no crosspieces at all and this meant that the driver must guide the car across two footlogs spaced to fit the car wheels. Many of these logs are not straight and it is rare to find one that has been chopped more or less level. It is taken for granted that all who travel will sooner or later go into one of these holes. This day we suffered greatly from the damage caused by two crashes.

No Serious Injury.

There is little danger of serious injury for the passengers but the fall, the crash and the jar give the sensation of running off a hill onto the roof of a frame building and crashing to the floor beneath. The impact blew out a front tire, jerked the motor free from the radiator and otherwise bent, broke and abused the car. It seemed that no car could run after such a crash and we found this to be true with ours for some time. After considerable labor beneath a sun that actually blistered us through our shirts, we fixed the tire, mended the radiator and repaired all parts that we could. Then we pushed the car several miles in a sun that seemed to have as its avowed purpose to scorch everything on earth.

Through the rough, wild country we labored slowly while the perspiration that fell from our bodies fairly splashed as it dropped to the ground. Each time we reached the top of a knoll it was a joy ride as gravity would roll us down hill. We decided that we would be able to travel easier and faster without the motor than we could with it.

Samaritan in Truck.

Eventually a truck rumbled over a hill, the driver agreed to take one of our party to the next village in an attempt to secure the needed parts. To the best of our knowledge we were miles from any human habitation, without food or water. We did not eat all day but were fortunate enough to find a small river and down one bank a spring was located. The spring ran through the thick underbrush into the river and although the water tasted warm and flat and there was the ever-present problem of its purity we took the risk and quenched our thirst, which at this time was considerable.

While waiting for the needed parts we sat in the shade of the trees at the river's edge and watched the wild life that held our interest. Lizards of various sizes, shapes and colors would creep slowly from under the brush and then dart suddenly away. Parrots of types ranging from the parakeets to the brilliantly colored macaw screamed through the air overhead. Among the most interesting sights was a species of locust or grasshopper that appeared to be fully five inches long and its legs were covered with saw-like teeth.

Blowing for Ferry.

Toward evening the needed parts came and hurriedly they were fitted in place and we were on our way to a ferry that crosses the Rio Grande, a wide stream that serves as the boundary between the state of Sao Paulo and Minas Geraes. While a long way off we began to blow our horn to let the ferryman know that we wanted to cross. Fortunately he heard our signal and waited for us.

Had he gone on we would have had no choice but to spend the night, for this was the last crossing. This ferryboat was propelled by steam and was constructed to carry hundreds of heads of cattle across this wide river that divides the cattle region of this section. With its tall smokestack it looked like a sawmill that had picked up the cow lot and gone to sea. Large revolvers hung from the belts of the crew. This cattle boat reserved space for only two automobiles.

No Water for Bath.

When we reached the other side we found the roads better, however, we ran off one more "mata burro" before we reached this town. Barretos is an attractive Brazilian town and with joy we anticipated a bath and food after our day of toil and trial. To our dismay we were informed at the hotel that there was not water enough to take a bath and only a paltry amount was provided to wash our hands. The innkeeper stated that he would try to secure enough for a bath tomorrow.

Just out of this town is a village of some 2,000 workmen employed by a British packing house. These laborers have the job of killing an average of 1,000 head of cattle per day. This meat is placed in refrigerated cars and shipped to Santos where it is transferred to ships and sent to feed the people of the British Isles.

GOVERNOR DISBURSES $524,681 TO SCHOOLS

Judge Stephens Draws Salary Advance To Test Opinion on Legality.

Governor Talmadge yesterday signed a warrant for $524,681 for the common schools of the state, completing payment of their 1935 appropriation, saw Judge Alexander Stephens, of the court of appeals, draw the first 1936 salary out of the treasury and departed for Washington to attend the meeting of the democratic national committee today.

The payment to the schools was the last 12 1-2 per cent of their 1935 appropriation and gives them something to start the new year on. Last year they received 80 per cent of the appropriation. In all they have received 92 1-2 per cent of the total, $4,000,000.

Superintendent M. D. Collins said of the funds received by him yesterday the Atlanta city school system would receive $31,800 and the Fulton county system $13,500. Decatur city schools will receive $1,515 and the DeKalb schools $5,349.

To Test Opinion.

Judge Stephens drew 75 per cent of salary due him for the first seven days of the year. It is customary for salaries drawn in advance to be limited to 75 per cent of what is due. The judge's draft was made to test the opinion handed down Monday by Attorney-General Yeomans which quoted the code as providing that all salaries of state officials fixed by law are considered part of a continuing appropriation.

The opinion of the attorney-general was on the desk of State Treasurer George B. Hamilton as Judge Stephens drew his salary.

"The code section quoted by the attorney-general refers to a legislative appropriation," the state treasurer said. "On this basis I am paying Judge Stephens."

Governor Reticent.

The Governor had no comment to make on the situation and likewise refused to discuss reports emanating from Washington that a group of members of the democratic national committee would seek to keep him from sitting with that body by having his credentials referred to a committee which would keep them under consideration for some time.

The Governor was elected by the rules committee of the state democratic executive committee several months ago to serve out the unexpired term of Major John S. Cohen, who died last spring.

Today's session also will be the first attended by Mrs. Susie T. Moore, of Tifton, Georgia's new national committeewoman. She was elected by the state group to serve out the unexpired term of Mrs. Edgar Alexander, who resigned and took up residence in California. No fight on the seating of Mrs. Moore is contemplated, it is said.

ZONING LAW GROUP AGAINST CHANGES

Only 7 of 26 Petitions for Revisions in Zoning Allowed During 1935.

A hard-boiled City Planning Commission last year greeted those wishing changes in the city zoning ordinances, according to the annual report of that body filed with city council yesterday.

Of 26 petitions for changes in the zoning laws, only seven were allowed, 17 were turned down flatly and two others were withdrawn when it appeared certain they would be refused.

Raymond W. Torras, engineer-secretary of the commission, recommended mapping of a thoroughfare plan of Atlanta and Fulton county to save millions of dollars for taxpayers through preservation of their property rights.

A total of 23 meetings of the board of zoning appeals were held during the year and 89 petitions were received. Appeals were granted in 73 of the cases and rejected in 11 others. The other five were withdrawn.

BUST THAT COLD WIDE OPEN

Don't Merely Check It With Half-Way Measures!

Deal with a cold in earnest. Deal with it in seriousness.

A cold is too fraught with danger to be taken lightly. Many a case of flu and pneumonia has started with nothing more than a "common cold".

Treat a cold for what it is—an internal infection. Therefore, internal treatment.

Treat a cold with a preparation made for colds and not a "cure-all". Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is your answer to a cold.

It is a cold tablet, made expressly for the treatment of colds and not for all kinds of ailments.

It is internal in effect and it does four important things.

First, it opens the bowels, an important step in overcoming a cold.

Second, it checks the infection in the system, a vital step.

Third, it relieves the headache and fever.

Fourth, it tones the system and helps fortify against further attack.

These are the four effects a cold calls for and in Bromo Quinine you get them all in the form of a single tablet.

Play safe—make sure! The moment a cold threatens, go right to your druggist for a package of Grove's Bromo Quinine. Begin taking the tablets immediately, two every four hours, until relieved.

Prompt use of Bromo Quinine will often stop a cold in 24 hours and that's the speed of action you want.

Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is safe to take. Ask for it with your mind made up that you're not going to accept a substitute.

PETERSON MAKES PLEA FOR HOMESTEAD BILL

Georgia Lawmaker Says Measure Is Answer to Farm Problem.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—In the confusion trailing the AAA wreckage, Representative Peterson, democrat, Georgia, pleaded before the house today for consideration of his farm homestead bill as a solution to the problem "that now confronts 6,000,000 farm families."

The Georgia estimated when he offered his bill last session it would cost the government not over $10,000,000,000, or "about one-half the amount of money that our nation has donated to the people of Europe since 1914.

"It is not inspired by brain trusters," Peterson shouted, amid applause principally from the republican side.

The measure provides that the general land office buy up farm mortgages, liquidate farm debts and give small homesteads, free of debt, back to deserving farm families. Owners would be prevented by law from mortgaging the free homesteads.

Representative Monaghan, democrat, Montana, asked if the supreme court might not also declare this bill unconstitutional.

"It is not my purpose to tear down the constitution," Peterson shouted, to the accompaniment of more applause. "The farmers do not desire a dole. They want an opportunity to earn an honest living."

RAILROADS BRING SUIT TO VOID PENSION LAW

135 Carriers Seek Permanent Injunctions Against Granting Annuities.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Major railroads sued today to smash the New Deal's railroad retirement pension legislation—1935 successor to the law invalidated last spring by a 5-4 decision of the supreme court.

The District of Columbia supreme court was asked by 135 carriers to grant, before March 1, a permanent injunction against operation of the act granting federal annuities to elderly employes, and the companion measure taxing railroads and employes to raise the funds.

Citing constitutional restrictions against taking property without due process of law, the railroads branded the legislation "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable."

Its purpose, their petition said, is "unlawfully to distribute funds, unlawfully raised . . . to a group of persons especially selected and determined solely by the employment in which they . . . are engaged."

In a statement, the Association of American Railroads said that while yesterday's decision killing AAA will not be controlling, it "will be helpful to the plaintiffs in this case."

Age Retirement Set.

Taxes under the pension system were estimated at $58,000,000 for the first year of operation, with annual increases bringing them to $269,000,000 by 1960.

The laws direct railroads to pay 3 1-2 per cent on pay rolls and employes 3 1-2 per cent on incomes, effective March 1. Neither the carriers or employes, however, would pay taxes on compensation in excess of $300 a month.

Workers would be retired at 65 or after the completion of 30 years of service. They would receive pensions up to $120 a month, based on previous earnings.

The suit prepared by a committee of rail attorneys, said 130,000 employes are eligible for pensions. Saying that the acts constitute a "spoliation and confiscation" of railroads' property, the carriers' petition added that the measures are "co-ordinated" and comprise a "single legislative scheme to establish a railroad pension system."

Obligations Affected.

The tax law was described as a "seizure of funds." Maturing railroad obligations, it was said, "are materially and severely affected adversely by this tax cloud."

In another move affecting railway labor, the Interstate Commerce Commission today asked power to protect employes from "undue financial loss" in connection with abandonments or unifications of rail lines.

In its annual report, the commission reiterated earlier opposition to proposals for its reorganization, citing that these have suggested an increase in membership and consequent increased costs of operation.

The report suggested, however, that congress authorize establishment of "appellate divisions" consisting of five or more of the present 11 members.

Other recommendations: That power be given to regulate minimum rates of water carriers; that penalties be provided against carriers failing to file accurate reports with the commission and that certain street, suburban and interurban lines be exempted from Interstate Commerce Commission jurisdiction.

DROP IN TEMPERATURE TO FOLLOW RAIN TODAY

Heavy Precipitation Hampers Work of Restoring Phones, Lights Here.

Occasional rains today, ending tonight with a possible invasion of colder weather was the forecast for Atlanta late yesterday from the Weather Bureau.

Reports from points along the Chattahoochee river yesterday brought easiness to many communities as waters which had mounted to dangerous stages showed promise of receding steadily.

Linemen, still working at top speed in their efforts to restore telephone and electric power service to Atlanta, were hampered by yesterday's rains, but officials of both companies promised a swift resumption of 100 per cent service if today's rains are not too heavy.

Atlanta starts today with approximately 2,400 telephones still out of order and 3,000 homes without electric lights. Yesterday's rains brought disaster to 800 more Atlanta telephones while yesterday morning a trolley line snapped on Peachtree, near Fourteenth street, delaying Peachtree street car service for two hours and carrying out with it a wire providing service to a number of homes in that area.

Georgia Power Company officials reported yesterday that practically all the principal distribution lines would be repaired by this morning and homes still without lights today will be victims of breaks in feeder lines into the houses. Repairs to these lines will be made as rapidly as possible, the power officials said, as crews will continue to work 24 hours a day until all homes are lighted.

Gregory C. Bowden, district manager of the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co., announced yesterday that 14,010 lines in Atlanta have been out of order at one time or another since storm trouble started.

Temperature in Atlanta will range between 40 and 45 degrees today, according to the Weather Bureau. Yesterday's highest temperature was 51 degrees. Yesterday's rainfall was officially recorded as .75 of an inch, which sets the rainfall records so far this month .28 of an inch above the normal fall for an average January.

AAA INVALIDATION TO HELP TEXTILES

Forbes Says Industry Will Speed Production as Result of Court Ruling.

The cotton textile industry in Georgia will be speeded up to peak production as a result of the supreme court's decision invalidating the AAA, T. M. Forbes, of Atlanta, secretary to the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia, said yesterday.

The Atlantan said the decision of the court removed the element of doubt over the future of the cotton textile industry and manufacturers who had been holding up projected increases in production could now proceed with plans for expanding their business.

In his statement, Mr. Forbes said, in part:

"As far as the cotton textile industry is concerned, the decision of the United States supreme court declaring the AAA, and with it the processing tax, to be unconstitutional, removes one more political obstruction from the road to normal economic recovery.

"The processing tax was unsound, both in theory and in practice, and it is not surprising that the highest tribunal in the land should sustain the views of those who have contended from the beginning that the tax is contrary to all fundamental economic principles.

"In removing the processing tax from cotton the supreme court decision relieves the cotton textile industry from a number of burdensome effects of the tax which have greatly handicapped its operation."

ATLANTANS AWARDED $5,000 BY HOUSE VOTE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The Ramspeck bill authorizing the payment of $5,000 to Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Mull, of Atlanta, who were seriously injured in an automobile accident involving a government truck, operating in Civilian Conservation Corps work, near Ringgold, Ga., in February, 1934 was today passed by the house and sent to the senate, where early and favorable action is expected.

Introduced in the lower chamber last July by Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Decatur, the measure provides full compensation for personal injuries sustained by Mr. and Mrs. Mull, an elderly couple, while they were driving in their automobile 10 miles north of Dalton. A CCC truck, being used for ambulance purposes, overtook their automobile, cut in too shortly and struck it with the right rear end of the ambulance with such force that the Mull automobile left the road and was catapulted into a ditch. The automobile was completely demolished and Mr. and Mrs. Mull were so seriously injured it was found by an army investigating board they would "never completely recover."

ONLY 2 CITY SCHOOLS TO STAY CLOSED TODAY

Only two Atlanta schools will remain closed today because of lack of proper heating facilities, it was announced yesterday by Thomas W. Clift, school business manager.

The recent freeze put electric distributors out in 14 schools, but the Georgia Power Company, working in close co-operation with Clift, has reinstated all but two, those at the Lee Street and Stanton schools.

Clift also announced that work on the first project to be prosecuted from the $1,100,000 repair and construction program was begun yesterday at Commercial High school. WPA, in cooperation with the school system, has begun the work and Ed S. Cook, president of the board of education, said yesterday he hopes other jobs will be started immediately and the entire program completed as projected.

Repairs to about 30 buildings and 15 major construction projects are in the list of contemplated school improvements.

Grant Breezes Through Second Round in Biltmore Tourney

Jimmy Walker (you remember him?) has been visiting Colonel Til Huston down at Butler Island, where the late Fanny Kemble lived in the years before the Civil War.

Jimmy Walker and Colonel Til Huston were friends in the good old days. That was when Jimmy Walker was Senator Walker, of the state of New York, and Colonel Til Huston was Cappy Ricks, of the baseball business.

They saw very little of each other during the period when Mr. Walker was mayor of New York city and earning a lot of international fame as mayor by being late to all engagements and wearing snappy looking clothes.

When they met down at Butler Island they talked not at all of the mayor business, but only of the good old days. I am sorry I did not get to see some of the good old days, because the picture of them intrigues me. I used to sit by the hour and listen to Colonel Huston and the late Wilbert Robinson talk of the good old days. They sounded pretty good to me, too. I used to sigh over them a bit.

Life did not seem too fast then and funny things happened. Such as, for instance, the time when Uncle Robbie dropped his lower store teeth down a grating. They yelled at the windows up above and the fellow came down at 2 o'clock and opened up his basement. It happened to be a bar, the place above, and when the owner found it was Wilbert Robinson and another one or two of the Old Orioles, he set up the drinks. They stayed there until dawn and forgot all about getting the teeth. Had to go back the next day. Or rather, later that same day.

It was Colonel Til Huston who, as half owner of the New York Yankees, insisted on spending money. They spent a half million dollars and got Babe Ruth along in the deal. The world knows what happened then.

The game of baseball changed.

BACK TO THE FARM.

The dope is Mayor Walker wants to go back to the farm. He lived in a thatched cottage in England for some years when the reform "heat" was on in New York. Now he wants a farm in New York state. He was looking over Colonel Huston's famous island and his herd of expensive cows just to get an idea or so about farms.

It's curious how the yen comes to get back to the soil. After one has been through the mill, so to speak, the big yearning is to get back to a spot that's peaceful where the cows moo and the horses neigh. The bright lights never look quite as good.

Somehow I never could get pained about New York's pain over Jimmy Walker's administration, which left the city deep in debt and other miseries. They elected the man for the very qualities he demonstrated—the art of being a good fellow, of spending money, of being late to engagements, of making wise-cracks, and that sort of thing.

He gave them that in great quantities and they loved it for a while. When they tired of it, they should have been willing to pay the bill. They'd ordered it all.

Well, he saw quite a farm at Butler Island. None of the old plantations of ante-bellum days had anything on Colonel Til Huston's island.

THE GOLDEN ISLES.

It's curious—when you come to think of it—how the Golden Isles of Georgia attract people. History lodged there a long time, long before it lodged along the California coast.

And when the frocked friars were gone, history still kept lodging there. Fanny Kemble, the great English actress, married and came there to one of the islands, and hated it quite cordially. That was Butler island. She hated what was on the island, not the island itself. There was slavery and some harshness, so she wrote letters back to England about it.

And when the Confederate States were asking for a loan and recognition in England, staid old parliament heard some of Fanny Kemble's letters, written here from Georgia, read into the records. As much as anything else they turned the tide and prevented the loan which might have meant recognition and thereby recognition by the north of an independent nation in the south.

Fanny Kemble went back home and the war swept over the islands and the dykes all went down and the mud and the tides and the marsh grass claimed most of them.

And then a baseball man came hunting in south Georgia and saw the islands and the rivers. He bought two of them, one being Butler Island.

It so happened he was an engineer. He rebuilt the dykes and tore down the house in which Fanny Kemble had lived.

He said, as he had it torn down, he thought Fanny Kemble was right in leaving. The house was pretty terrible for a great English actress who had had the world at her feet. So Colonel Til Huston, who had built roads for the American army in Cuba in 1898 and roads for the American army in France, built a warm, friendly house and the island bloomed into a tropical paradise again, with great gardens of figs and flowers and fruits and vegetables and great herds of cows.

And now Jimmy Walker comes there, back from his exile in England, to visit the place where Fanny Kemble felt herself to be an exile from England.

Even a terrible sleepiness and the calories from two bowls of excellent soupa avwa lemono, prepared by that excellent chef, Angelo Hanjaras, fails to prevent me from getting a great wallop out of the story.

It's curious how they come to the islands.

AN OLD CREW MAN.

Unless he has died in the past year, there is a tie with the old past down there on Butler Island, where the old Scots in their kilts used to come with their claymores and guns to help Oglethorpe.

When Fanny Kemble was there she had a 15-year-old colored boy as one of her servants. He's there yet—106 years old. He remembers Miss Fanny, the glorious Miss Fanny with a voice like music.

And he remembers the rice fields and the plump rice birds which could be sold for $1 a dozen. They are gone now. And so are most of the rice fields.

The old man is Liverpool Hazzard. He used to pull an oar in the boat races there when the planters raced their long boats down the Altamaha.

"Lawd, Lawd," says old Liverpool Hazzard, "them was the days."

And now Colonel Til Huston and Mayor Jimmy Walker stand there on the old, old island and talk about the good old days.

A GALLANT FIGURE.

A gallant figure, is Colonel Til Huston, the old baseball man, the old warrior and the old engineer, hero of two wars, producer of Babe Ruth and a new type in baseball.

One of the stories I like best about him is the story the

STONEHAM'S SON PROBABLY WILL TAKE DAD'S POST

Youth Is Expected To Become Majority Owner of Giants.

By Bob Cavagnaro.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Horace Stoneham, 32-year-old son of the late Charles A. Stoneham, is slated to succeed his father as majority owner and president of the New York Giants, thus becoming the youngest chief executive of a club in the history of major league baseball.

Young Stoneham is still in Hot Springs, Ark., where his father died last night. He was not prepared to make any comment on the situation, but officials of the club here indicated there is no reason to believe there will be a change in ownership.

The succession of young Stoneham to the ownership, a step deemed likely by Leo J. Bondy, the elder Stoneham's attorney and treasurer of the Giants, will mark the third time in major league history a father-owner has been succeeded by a son.

In 1931 when Charles Comiskey died the Chicago White Sox became the property of his son, Louis. The following year Phillip K. Wrigley succeeded his deceased father, William Wrigley, as owner of the Chicago Cubs.

Sam Dreyfuss was being groomed by his father, Barney, to take over the reins of the Pittsburgh Pirates, when the son died in February, 1931. The elder Dreyfuss died a year later. His son-in-law, William Benswanger, is now president.

An unparalleled instance of family ownership is scheduled for the Brooklyn Dodgers. Mrs. James Mulvey, daughter of President Stephen McKeever, is expected to succeed him shortly.

"There is no indication there will be any transfer of ownership of the New York Giants," said Bondy. "Horace is a capable young man and I believe the Stoneham family will follow 'C. A.'s' principles.

FOR GENERAL GOOD.

"Some of those principles were rarely known to those outside major league baseball's official family. Mr. Stoneham never thought of the Giants alone. He thought of his partners, the league and of the general good of baseball. That policy will be followed conscientiously."

The general belief in baseball circles is that Bondy, who was associated with the youth's father ever since the elder Stoneham gained control of the club in 1919, will increase his interest and activity in the organization.

For five years Horace Stoneham has been doing office work with the Giants. His main responsibility has been the supervision of tickets, but he also has worked on the opposite side of a desk from Jim Tierney, the club secretary. He attended Fordham University. He is married and has two children.

The Giants long have been one of the most valuable properties in baseball. Bondy said the club has averaged a profit over the entire period of Stoneham's ownership. The Giants' properties include the league franchise, players and the Polo Grounds. The Polo Grounds are leased from the Coogan estate.

Two years ago Stoneham said he would not consider selling the club unless an "unrefusable offer" was made. This was taken to mean a price in the vicinity of $3,000,000.

60 PER CENT OF STOCK.

Stoneham controlled approximately 60 per cent of the stock. The remainder is distributed among 100 others. Mrs. John J. McGraw, widow of the former manager and vice president of the Giants, owns 2 per cent which she inherited from McGraw's estate.

Stoneham's place as vice president of the National League will be filled when club owners meet here next month to go over the 1936 schedule. Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, is slated to fill the vacancy.

"Mr. Soneham was a tremendous power in baseball," said Ford Frick, the league president. "He was extremely thoughtful of fellow club owners. He will be missed deeply."

Private funeral services will be held Thursday morning. Interment will be Thursday afternoon in Jersey City, where Stoneham was born 59 years ago.

Stoneham's Body Homeward Bound.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 7.—(AP) The body of Charles A. Stoneham, president of the New York Giants baseball club, and vice president of the National league, who died here last night, was started homeward tonight by train.

It was accompanied by his son, youthful Horace Stoneham, presumptive heir to majority holdings in the Giants; Ernie Viberg, an associate in the management of the Polo Grounds, and a negro valet.

Only these three and attending physicians were at the bedside when Stoneham died in his hotel suite shortly before 9 o'clock last night, after an 86-hour coma resulting from bright's disease.

Routed by way of St. Louis, the party will reach Pennsylvania station, New York, at 7:30 a. m. Thursday. Bill Terry, of Memphis, manager of the Giants, who visited here with his chief before the Christmas holidays, was to join the group in St. Louis early tomorrow.

Funeral arrangements were in abeyance pending arrival in New York, where the baseball magnate's widow was reported ill. In addition to the widow and son, a daughter, Mrs. Mary Aufderhar, of South Orange, N. J., survives.

Commercial League Sees Action Tonight

Full of pep from a two weeks' vacation, basketball teams in the Atlanta Commercial league will hit the deck tonight at the Y. M. C. A. in the first series of 1936.

Kraft-Phoenix Cheese and Dixisteel are picked to give the best performance. Dixisteel has a chance to tie the Cheesemen for second place if they win. Both Kraft and Dixisteel have strengthened during the holidays, each anticipating a victory. Kraft signed Flury and Johnson and Dixisteel registered Red Wynne, all good players.

Warren and Cudahy remain at the top of the list as the first half nears the end. Only two more games remain before the halfway mark.

THE SCHEDULE.

Cudahy vs. Webb-Martin at 7 o'clock.
Kraft-Phoenix vs. Dixisteel at 8 o'clock.

JACKETS, BEARS TO PLAY TONIGHT ON MACON COURT

Mundorff and 11 Players To Leave City at 1:30 for Battle.

Eleven members of the Georgia Tech basketball team and Coach Roy Mundorff are scheduled to leave Atlanta today at 1:30 for Macon, where the Jackets battle the Mercer Bears tonight in their second encounter of the year.

Tech dropped its opening game of the season Saturday night in Jacksonville to the Florida 'Gators, 36-25.

In Tuesday's final practice at the naval armory the Jackets engaged in a long and much-needed scrimmage against the rserves. Coach Mundorff emphasized offense during the major part of the drill, but a sufficient amount of time was devoted to defense.

In the Mercer game, Mundorff hopes to play the older men a majority of the game, switching in the sophs at the appropriate time.

Ben Jones and Burtz Boulware at forwards, Bo Johnston at center, and Culver Kidd and Whack Hyder at guards, will probably open for Tech, with Hank Crawford, Fletcher Sims and Ed Jones expected to see plenty of service during the tussle.

The Jackets open their home schedule Saturday night at the naval armory against the Clemson Tigers.

Mundorff also revealed plans were being formulated for Tech to celebrate "Naismith day" in honor of the founder of the game. Additional information concerning this is expected shortly from the Tech mentor.

Sauer Tosses Strongberg In Final

Atlanta's wrestling and boxing fans were given stirring entertainment Tuesday night at the Atlanta theater in the opening of Henry Weber's 1936 wrestling programs. Pete Sauer, one of the country's ranking wrestlers, threw Rudy Strongberg, giant German, in straight falls in the main attraction.

In the boxing match, a grudge affair, Cy Williams, former University of Florida lineman, was given a three-round decision over Karl Davis. Failing to make any progress with his rights and lefts, Davis threw Williams to the mat with a body slam and kicked him several times. Referee Doc Lanford warned Davis for illegal wrestling tactics and disqualified him after Williams was knocked down and kicked again.

Roland Kirchmeyer won the opening match from Dick Lever in 18 minutes with a series of fore-arm blows and a body slam.

Sauer won the first fall from Strongberg with a back body drop, his favorite weapon, after 38 1-2 minutes. Sauer made quick work, winning the second in one minute.

The boxing match was interesting, with Williams and Davis swinging fast and furious. Both lacked the necessary timing and consequently missed many "haymakers." Neither was knocked down in the first two rounds, but in the third, first one and then the other went down.

Roy (Father) Lumpkin, former Georgia Tech fullback was introduced before the main match and challenged Davis, Sauer and anyone else to a wrestling or boxing match.

Parks-Chambers Meets Progressives

The Parks-Chambers quintet will provide the opposition for the Jewish Progressive Club quintet in the first of two tough games for the Progressives Thursday night on the Pryor street court.

The club takes on the Birmingham Y. M. H. A., perennial rivals of the J. P. C., for many years, in their second battle Sunday night also billed for the Pryor street court.

The Progresives have bowled over all opposition to date by one-sided scores, but the Parks-Chambers tussle will be far from a push-over, as the former lost a two-point decision to the Triangles Monday night after a hard battle.

Shep Lauter, J. P. C. coach, has corralled a ball club which bids fair to be the best ever to represent the Progressives.

Florida Sun Brings Joe Humphreys Back

LAKE WORTH, Fla., Jan. 7.—(UP)—"I feel great" said a booming voice familiar to millions of sport fans.

It was Joe Humphries, veteran sports announcer who only a few weeks ago was on the verge of death in a New York hospital.

Today he finished a quarter-mile tramp in the bright Florida sunshine and announced he is recovering rapidly. He has gained 10 pounds during the last three weeks, he said, adding he plans to remain here until May.

"There's the doctor for me," he said, squinting at the sun.

Sugar Bowl Tennis Champion

Arthur Hendrix (above), 23-year-old southern college student from Lakeland, Fla., surprised the tennis world when he scored a four-set victory over Wilmer Allison, national singles champion, and won the first Sugar Bowl tournament in New Orleans. Hendrix won his first two matches in the Miami Biltmore tournament yesterday.

Young Arthur Hendrix Has Alibi for Allison

Florida Lad Thinks Composition Courts Helped Him Beat Wilmer at New Orleans.

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—How does it feel to whip the nation's leading amateur tennis player?

"It feels just swell," young Arthur Hendrix, of Lakeland, reported, grinning, today.

He ought to know. He came to the Miami Biltmore tournament here fresh from victory, in the final of the Sugar Bowl tourney at New Orleans Sunday, over Wilmer Allison, national champion and ranked No. 1 in 1935.

A stunning upset it was as the 23-year-old Floridan, unranked nationally, blasted out the veteran Texan with hard-hit drives and accurate placements to win 6-4, 1-6, 9-7, 6-1.

He was modest enough about it, however, apparently only half believing he really had beaten Allison.

"He's a great player" Hendrix said. "I've never seen anyone that could volley like that. I managed to beat him by passing him at the net, but I still don't know how I did it."

He credited his victory, in part, to the fact that composition courts on which the Sugar Bowl matches were played slowed up Allison's fast serve, while doing no damage to his own heavily stroked, high-bounding delivery.

A pleasant, black-thatched lad 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighing 155 pounds, Hendrix has never had any tennis instruction—"just picked it up."

He has been playing in tournaments four years, never getting very far along until recently. In 1933 and 1934 he entered the national, going out in the first round the initial year and the second the next year.

Last year he reached the semi-finals of the western and, just before he went to New Orleans, the finals of the state tournament. His match with Frank Guernsey, Orlando player whom he beat on his way to the meeting with Allison in the Sugar Bowl, was rained out.

A flashing forehand—that he thinks "has too much loop on it"—and an accurate backhand are Hendrix's best weapons. Opponents say his spinning serve is not hard to hit, but hard to "hit on the nose." He smashes well, though his volleying, in his own opinion, "has gone off as my ground game got better."

He is tireless, hard to deceive, an excellent ball hawk, and spectators are looking for some fancy recoveries if he happens to meet "Bitsy" Grant, of Atlanta, last year's Biltmore winner who is famed for his ability to cover court, in the local tournament.

Hendrix, who finished at Southern College, Lakeland, last spring, plans to enter the University of Miami's law school here this week.

Haas, Howell & Dodd Gains Tie in League

Haas, Howell & Dodd last night defeated the Texas Company, 17 to 16, in the hardest fought game of the season on the Y. M. C. A. court and gained a tie for first half of the Civic league race. The losers had a chance to tie the score in the last few seconds of play. Oliver and Kindel, of the losers, and Day and Leide, led the scoring. The guarding of both clubs was way above the average.

Harry Taylor shot 13 points to be the big reason why Northside Aces defeated Opportunity School, 27 to 23. The Evening School defeated C. & S. Building, 33 to 29, in another good game. Gatlin, of the winners, hit the hoop for 17 points. WPA, with McCay shooting 17 points, pulled the series upset, defeating Dental College, 27 to 25. Cason led the losers in scoring.

ENRIGHT SEEKS MORE STRENGTH IN GEORGIA FIVE

Bulldog Coach Displeased With Showing Last Week Against 'Nooga.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 7.—Coach Rex Enright is casting about for a more effective basketball combination to throw at Chattanooga in the third and final game of the series Friday night in Chattanooga.

The Georgia mentor was displeased with performance of the Bulldog squad Saturday night, not to mention Friday night's showing against the Chattanooga Moccasins.

This week is being spent in hard drills while Coach Enright seeks the best men for the five positions. He does not know which players will compose the line-up for the Tennessee invasion. It is a certainty, however, that unless the starters last week-end do some tall convincing this week, they will not return intact.

In winning over Pop Keyser's 'Nooga quintet Friday night the Red and Blacks were not impressive. They were slow and awkward. Saturday night they lost to the Chattanooga team. On a holiday swing the Georgians lost to L. S. U. and split a two-game series with Tulane. This brings their win string to two and lost column three, with one conference victory included.

Jack Farren, lanky Macon center, should be ready to take over the duties at the pivot post this week-end. He has been suffering with a bad leg. Others ruling favorite to see plenty of service are Dan Bowden, Frank Johnson, Jimmy Moore, Olin Thompson and Andy Anderson. This is on the basis of their showing in early-week practice.

Herb Pennock Will Coach Red Sox

BOSTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Herb Pennock, veteran pitcher who ran the Red Sox Piedmont league farm at Charlotte, N. C., last season, has been engaged to coach Joe Cronin's mound staff at the Sarasota (Fla.) training camp.

Eddie Collins, who left Boston tonight for visits to New York, Philadelphia and Charlotte, has appointed George "Specs" Torporcer, former St. Louis Cardinals' infielder, as manager of the Red Sox's Piedmont league farm, which, he said, may be moved out of Charlotte for lack of Sunday baseball.

ROSS AND WOLF CLASH FRIDAY

Black Jack Ross, of Augusta, and Joe Wolf, of Chicago, two of the meanest wrestlers in the game, will clash in the main bout on a program of light-heavyweight matches scheduled at Ellis and Piedmont Friday night.

Fans have been eagerly awaiting this match. It brings together two villains, with the prospect of both absorbing plenty of punishment.

"Imported" talent will serve as the principals in the semi-windup, Louis Firpo, recently of Argentina, is slated to battle Lee Folsom of Hawaii.

Bill Ward and Bob Anderson clash in the opening bout. The card will begin at 8:15.

Omaha Starts Long Journey to England

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Along about dawn tomorrow morning that gallant thoroughbred Omaha, three-year-old champion of 1935, will be loaded into a van at Aqueduct race track for the first leg of the longest and most important journey of his turf career.

The van ride will bring Omaha to New York, where last year's Kentucky Derby winner will be placed in special quarters on a passenger deck of the Cunard liner Aquitania for an ocean voyage to England. As much as Omaha likes to travel, his trip abroad won't be a holiday. The big chestnut son of Gallant Fox-Flambino will seek the Ascot gold cup, a greulling 2 1-2 mile race which only one American-bred horse ever has won.

COLUMBUS LEADER.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Directors of the Columbus Redbirds baseball club of the American association elected Donald E. Beach today to succeed George M. Trautman as president of the club.

Dempsey Fails To See Stoefen As White Hope

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Lester Rollo Stoefen is deadly in earnest about his "white hope" business and he thinks he has a chance.

The square-shouldered, tennis-playing string bean from the west coast, here for the start of the indoor professional tour, refused to be daunted today when Jack Dempsey damned him with faint praise as a heavyweight prospect.

It was Dempsey who was to decide if lengthy Lester should pursue his dream of gaining riches in the prize ring. So Lester Rollo went to Jack. The former champ looked him up and down, made him put up his dukes, and then dismissed his subject.

"He's a real nice, boy," Dempsey said of the California handsome Dan with wavy blond hair, "a real nice boy, but he needs to fill out an awful, awful lot."

This doesn't bother "little Rollo."

"Sure I need to fill out. I knew that before I came east. I'm no more than 180 now and for six feet four that isn't enough. But I can put on the meat, okeh."

Stoefen was asked to take his hair down and admit the whole thing was a publicity gag. Did he really believe he had a chance of developing into a first-class heavyweight, with the possibility of a crack at Joe Louis, the Detroit negro?

"Nuts to that. It might have been jumped on as a gag by Bill O'Brien (promoter of the tour) but the idea was mine and I wasn't kidding. I'm not kidding now, either. Why I could go up to 220 or better in a few months of conditioning in the woods."

Richardson Retains Fielding Leadership

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(UP)—The only International league player to retain his fielding leadership during 1935 was Nolen Richardson, Newark Bear shortstop, according to official averages released today.

Richardson, in 136 games, made only 27 errors for an average of .961 to top the shortstops for a second successive year. Richardson is an Atlanta boy and will get a chance to stick with the Yankees in 1936.

Other leaders:

First baseman, George McQuinn, Newark, .997; second baseman, George Torporcer, Syracuse, .977; third baseman, Howard Meyers, Buffalo, .966; outfielder, James Ripple, Montreal, .987; catcher, George Spencer, Baltimore, .992.

Ken Ash, of Buffalo, accepted 69 chances without an error to head the pitchers. Twenty-one other hurlers also had perfect fielding records.

Newark led in team fielding with an average of .977.

HENDRIX TAKES TWO MATCHES; RAINVILLE BOWS

Russell Bobbitt, Marion Reese Also Advance in Florida Meet.

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Two seeded entries, one of them Marcel Rainville, Canadian amateur champion, tasted defeat today as eight others advanced into the third round of the Miami Biltmore tennis tournament.

A hulking, determined Minnesotan, Weston Painter, of Minneapolis, accounted for Rainville, ranked No. 1 in the foreign entries, in surprisingly easy fasion, 6-2, 6-4.

Painter, who won the Minnesota state championship in 1932 and the northwest clay court title in 1934, out-steadied the little Canadian to win. Balls came back with monotonous regularity off his backhand and forehand alike, and time after time his returns were hitting the line.

TURNER BEATEN.

Other seeded player to bow out was Carroll Turner, Miami, late starter who won the first-round match today with John Hendrix, Lakeland, Fla., 6-0, 7-5, but lost to Jack Reitman, Montreal, Canada, 6-3, 1-6, 6-2.

Bryan M. Grant, Atlanta, last year's winner, who was seeded No. 1; J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J.; Hal Surface Jr., Kansas City; Arthur Hendrix, Lakeland, Fla.; Gardner Mulloy, Miami; Martin Buxby, Miami; Charles Harris, West Palm Beach, and Ricardo, Cuban amateur champion, all progressed into the third round, some playing first and second-round matches.

Grant beat Searl Barnett, Miami, 6-2, 6-4; Hall eliminated Jack Delacorte, New York, 6-2, 6-3, and Bernie Frank, Miami, 6-0, 6-3; Surface turned back Bud Yahner, Coarl Gables, 6-0, 6-3, and went to the third round as Al Luck, New York, defaulted; Hendrix, conqueror of Wilmer Allison in the recent Sugar Bowl tournament at New Orleans, defeated Henry Fuller, Miami, 6-1, 6-2, and J. B. Ohlhaber, West Palm Beach, Fla., 6-1, 6-1; Harris won from Tom Calvert, Coconut Grove, Fla., 6-0, 6-1; Mulloy beat Bill Hardie, another Miamian, 6-4, 6-0; Buxby defeated S. C. Goldman, Miami, 6-4, 6-2, and Harold MacGuffen, Westchester, N. Y., 6-2, 6-2, and Morales topped Mose Monduli, Miami, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2.

PULLS MATCH OUT.

Morales had considerable difficulty pulling his match out.

After taking the first set from Mondull in fairly easy fashion, he let down slightly. Simultaneously the local youngster pulled together his game, and swept through the second set by virtue of beautiful overhead volleying.

In the final set, the Cuban titlist stiffened his fast, high-bounding service and put more steam behind his forehand drive, mixing it with chops and concentrating on Mondull's backhand to win.

Mopping his brow as the match ended, he commented "I almost got myself in trouble that one."

In addition to Grant, two other Atlanta players, Russell Bobbitt, the bantam's doubles partner, and Marion Reese, advanced to the third-round matches.

Bobbitt, Georgia junior champion, defeated George Andradi, New York, 6-3, 6-4, while Reese won from Larry Larson, Coral Gables, Fla., 6-2, 2-6, 8-6.

TENNIS EVENT UNDER LIGHTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Taking a lead from the profitable practice of the professionals who play their exhibitions at night, the last three rounds of the 1936 combined men's and women's national indoor tennis championship will be played at night in the seventh regiment armory here.

For the last two years the United States Lawn Tennis Association has failed to break even on indoor championships, which previously have not been "co-ed" affairs. Thus night competition, with the hopes of attracting a larger gate, will be attempted this year.

The plan is to put the men's and women's quarter-finals Saturday night, March 7, the semi-finals March 9 and the finals March 10. The semi-finals and the finals of the men's and women's doubles and the mixed doubles also will be worked in on those nights.

Amateur competition at night has been tried in the past in the form of an international team tournament for the seventh regiment cup between American and French contingents. The last series, played in 1934, was a flop from a spectator standpoint, owing to the weakness of the invading side. The United States won, 5-0.

The U. S. L. T. A. has opened negotiations with Jean Borotra, the veteran bounding Basque, to muster a tri-color team with a view to renewing the series in connection with the national championships.

Borotra annually comes to this country on business about the time the joint tournament will be played, February 29 to March 10. His entry for the doubles and mixed doubles event, as well as the singles entry of Enrique Maier, the towering Spaniard, are being sought by King Smith, chairman of the committee.

Oglethorpe Beaten By Dickinson Five

CARLISLE, Pa., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The Dickinson College basketball team defeated the Oglethorpe University passers from Atlanta tonight, 52 to 39, with substitute players taking a prominent part in the victory.

With Oglethorpe leading by six points, Dickinson's second team went into action and evened the count at 16-16 a few minutes before the first half ended. The varsity then returned to the court and the Dickinson team led, 23 to 17, at the half time.

The second team also contributed to the scoring in the second half.

Improved Red Sox Club Still No Standout in American

SIMMONS AIDS DETROIT CLUB FOR 1936 RACE

Boston's Recovery Plans Feature Power; Mound Help Needed.

By Alan Gould.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Despite extravagant investments in baseball "ivory," estimated to involve at least $2,500,000 within the past three years and shattering all records for player deals, the Boston Red Sox can get no insurance now on their project to establish a new championship dynasty this year.

The spectacular efforts of Tom Yawkey, Boston's youthful owner, featuring a wholesale shift of talent from the Athletics to Boston, are reminiscent of the sequence of deals by which the late Harry Frazee, a theatrical magnate, sold virtually all the stars of the last great Red Sox club to the Yankees back in 1919-23.

Whether or not the parallel ends there remains to be seen, but the contrast is worth pointing out. The post-war Yankees laid the groundwork for their first championship club by acquiring a great pitching staff. Babe Ruth was a pivotal figure, of course, but Miller Huggins piloted the team to pennants in 1921-22-23 mainly on the pitching prowess of Waite Hoyt, Carl Mays, Joe Bush, Sam Jones and Herb Pennock, all acquired from Boston. In each of these years New York had four flingers averaging close to 20 games apiece.

When the staff declined, Yankee power was not sufficient to keep the club on top. It took two seasons for Huggins to reorganize his curving corps and again capitalize the power generated by Ruth & Co.

RED SOX RECOVERY.

Boston's recovery program puts the accent on power. True enough, comebacks by Wes Ferrell and Lefty Grove, plus the recent acquisition of Johnny Marcum from the A's have fortified Red Sox pitching prospects for 1936 but the bulk of Yawkey's tremendous outlay has gone for outfielders and infielders. The power of such swingers as Jimmie Foxx, Heinie Manush, Joe Cronin and Doc Cramer will, of course, be no handicap.

Conceding they can rival the heavy wallop in Detroit's batting order, it remains to be seen whether the Red Sox will muster sufficient pitching defense to keep pace with the champions.

Aside from the fact the Tigers have answered part of Boston's challenge by acquiring Al Simmons, a former league batting champion, it appears the balance of pitching resources tilts in favor of Mickey Cochrane's crew. Grove, Ferrell and Marcum, Boston's prospective "big three," turned in an aggregate of 62 victories last year. Marcum, winning 17 games with a tailender, might take up the slack if either Grove or Ferrell fell off. Detroit's top trio, Bridges, Rowe and Auker, totaled 58 in the winning column. But the Tigers had the all-important fourth wheelhorse, in Al Crowder, credited with 16 victories, besides coming up with a recruit sensation in Roxie Lawson. Perhaps Welch or Ostermueller will provide the missing link for the Red Sox.

We may be taking much for granted in assuming the American league race will be a two-club affair. Obviously, Boston, which finished 16 games from the top last season, has done more than any other club to close the gap separating Detroit from the rest of the league. New York and Cleveland, however, must be rated contenders. Washington, Chicago and St. Louis all figure to be stronger and more troublesome. The Athletics have nominated themselves for cellar occupancy.

Cleveland, pre-season favorite to capture the 1935 flag, experienced a success on of disturbing developments. The loss of Shortstop Knickerbocker before the season opened, unexpectedly erratic pitching and subsequent discord leading to the withdrawal of Walter Johnson as manager all contributed to the rough passage of the Indians.

The Yankees "blew" a midseason lead and events contrived otherwise to make it relatively easy for the Tigers to hammer their way back to the top. This year the pressure on all concerned is likely to be more sustained.

"The Rajah" Takes Crack at Sox.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Tom Yawkey's cash may have turned the American league into a two-team affair, but outspoken Rogers Hornsby doesn't believe the Boston Red Sox have the pennant in the bag.

"Heck no," the Browns' manager said today. "They still only have three pitchers and maybe Marcum is not a first-division pitcher. Maybe he can go best when there's not so much strain. And don't forget that Ferrell and Grove ain't getting any younger. You don't see a club win often with three pitchers, do you?"

It's Detroit again for the league top, Hornsby predicted, with Al Simmons the reason.

"Detroit did more strengthening by getting Simmons than Boston did with all its buying," Rogers said. "Simmons will certainly help the Tigers. No matter what kind of year he has, he'll drive in enough runs to make a big difference."

Turning from the two standouts to survey the rest of the field, Hornsby said he culd see no pennant threat in either New York or Cleveland.

"New York shouldn't worry anybody," he declared. "If the Yankees don't do something to add strength, I wouldn't be a bit surprised to see them drop to fifth.

"I thought Cleveland would do something last year, but the club folded up. It looks like they can't take it on the road, and remember half the games are played away from home."

"How about the Browns?" brought a shake of the Rajah's head. "Any trades on the fire?"

"Nothing right now. Maybe later. You know me. I don't get a kick out of a humpty-dumpty team."

What Physical and Mental Fatigue Does to Men Past 40 . .

Many men at 40, in perfect health, without an ache or pain, wonder why they aren't as strong and as vigorous as they were 5 or 10 years ago. Mental and physical fatigue is the cause in the majority of cases. Fortunately this condition can be helped by the use of a recently discovered hormone. This hormone stimulates the glandular system to greater activity—helps build up lowered vitality.

This hormone is now available, together with other valuable ingredients, in Zo-ak Tablets and are sold and recommended by Taylor's Pharmacy, Peachtree and Cain, Jacobs Pharmacies, all modern drug stores. Zo-ak is the formula of a distinguished American physician who has written a booklet called "For Men Who Want To Live," a copy of which will be sent in plain sealed envelope by Zo-ak Co., 56 W. 45 St., N. Y. TO PHYSICIANS: Samples, professional literature and clinical data on Zo-ak will be sent gratis if requested on your letterhead or card.—(adv.)

Taylor May Put 'Nooga Around Top of League

But Ralph McGill Sees Crackers as Favorites Again in 1936 Southern Race.

By Ralph McGill.

It is quite possible those Chattanooga Lookouts will be up around the league's peak next season all on account of the fact of a purchase from Atlanta.

They will have Harry Taylor first basing for them. And Harry Taylor is quite an artist around that first base. Fact is, he is the best fielding first baseman the league has seen in some years.

And Clyde Milam, over at Chattanooga, played all last year without a first baseman. It is true he had a fellow standing around out there. And late in the year he had a young fellow from Atlanta called Bob Spurlin who did a pretty fair job.

But he needed a first baseman. He's got one.

When Harry Taylor broke an arm last season, it looked for a day or so as if the Atlanta pennant charge had been repulsed. But Earl Mann, by some sort of hokus-pokus on old man Connie Mack, came up with a first baseman named Alex Hooks. You now the rest of the story. The Crackers breezed in. There wasn't a ball club in their class. As they proved in the regular season and again by wiping out Nashville and New Orleans in the Shaughnessy play-off without losing a single game.

They went from that fast finish directly into the Dixie Series and got walloped by the Oklahoma City Indians, a club which seemed to be inferior, but which won the series.

CRACKERS BEST.

The race which begins in April will find the Crackers established as favorites again. And if the owners of the rival clubs do no better by their fans than last year, the Crackers will be favorites.

Nashville is trying to rebuild with a lot of veterans, including the former Clemson pitcher, Flint Rhem, who has been a great major league pitcher in his day.

Flint Rhem was the hero of one of the greatest kidnaping stories in the history of kidnaping, a bit of literature comparing favorably with Mr. Robert Louis Stevenson's story, "Kidnapped."

He was absent from duty one day and came up the next day with the story that three men had kidnaped him. Two of them, he said, held him while the third poured liquor down his throat. It was this that explained his absence. Lots of ball players visited the site of his kidnaping, seeking earnestly to become kidnaped by the same three men but they had no luck.

VOLS NOT THREAT.

The Nashville threat doesn't measure up as so much. Not as yet.

The Barons will be stronger with help from the Cubs and a real manager in Riggs Stephenson, the old Alabama football star. And later one of the finest major league players the game ever saw.

Likely the clubs will end up with Atlanta and New Orleans as the teams to beat if a pennant is to be won.

Ten Regulars End Careers At S. M. U.

By Felix R. McKnight.

DALLAS, Jan. 7.—(AP)—From riches to rags—that was the alarmists' outlook for Southern Methodist football in 1936 as the present squad, back from the Rose Bowl donned basketball togs today and settled down to classroom work.

Graduation of 10 regulars from the starting eleven of 1935 and no sign of a fleet threat to ease into Bobby Wilson's winged shoes, were chief causes of gloom.

But Coach Matty Bell worried a little more than usual over his next season's team.

"Naturally it's quite a blow to lose 10 regulars, but we'll come up with another tough team next year. We have some good squadmen left and the freshman team will give us some great prospects."

Two veteran backfield performers will be back, Johnnie Sprague, blocking halfback, and Bob Findley, a triple-threater, who was the "fifth man" in the Mustang backfield. The freshmen will chip in John Harlow, a 190-pound plunger; Johnnie Stidger, 175-pound runner and signal caller, and two 185-pound tackle drivers, Charles Bailey and Hoyle Graham.

The pride of the frosh team is Billy Dewell, 190 pound, six foot three inch end with glue on his fingertips. He stands out with Steve Crittenden, a 215-pound, six foot five inch tackle, as likely varsity material.

Squadmen and sophomores will plug the other gaps.

Four gridders plunged into basketball practice today. Maurice Orr and Truman Spain, giant tackles; Bill Tipton, end, and Pete Acker, sophomore end, gave Coach Jimmy St. Clair the nucleus of a team that must be ready for the season's opener against Texas Christian at Fort Worth Saturday.

L. S. U. Boxing Team Plans Five Matches

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 7.—(AP) Louisiana State University's boxing team has scheduled four dual contests and will participate in the Southeastern conference tournament and possibly in the Olympic trials.

Cronin Confident He'll Win Flag.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Joe Cronin, manager of the Boston Red Sox, predicted today his 1936 club would be "a real contender" for the American league baseball pennant and indicated he might try to convert a third baseman into an outfielder to make room for new talent.

Recent deals brought Jimmy Foxx, Eric McNair, Roger Cramer and John Marcum into the Red Sox fold from the Philadelphia Athletics.

Foxx will take over first base duties and Cronin regards himself as a fixture at shortstop. To make room for McNair, the Red Sox pilot may shift Bill Werber from third base to an outfield post. This would leave Oscar Melillo at second.

"We'll juggle the boys around in spring training and from the talent available I think the Red Sox will have the best infield in the league," Cronin said. "I've had Werber in mind as an outfield prospect for some time and yet we are well fixed in that department, with Cramer, Manush, Almada, Cook and Graham. McNair can play any position in the infield and Foxx can switch to catching any time we need him."

Louis' Next Foe

Retzlaff Says He Will Carry Fight to Louis

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Leaving his 2,000-acre farm in the wide open spaces of North Dakota, Charley Retzlaff arrived today to begin training for his 15-round battle with Joe Louis, January 17, with respect in his heart, but with a grin on his face.

"So they're calling me the 'condemned' man, are they?" he asked. "I hope to fool 'em just as I fooled 'em before."

The big raw-boned rancher, victorious by knockouts in 50 out of 70 fights, has seen the brown bomber in action three times, and is convinced he has figured out a way to beat him. He intends to gamble on his right hand which brought down Art Lasky twice and enabled him to score the first knockout victory over the veteran Tom Heeney.

"I'm going to fight Louis just like I hunt—go out and try to bring him down," Retzlaff said. "Louis can box and he can hit, but I figure he can be hurt if I hit him. Backing up, covering up, and letting Louis set the pace will not beat him. Louis has not been hit in his fights. He has had his own way. I'm going to gamble and let the old right hand go and if I connect I might change the entire complexion of the heavyweight situation. If I miss and get flattened, I'll have the satisfaction of knowing I shot the works first.

"Nobody's going to say I was beaten before I climbed into the ring, Retzlaff vowed. "I know if I am cautious against Louis he will knock my teeth down my throat, so I'm going to toss everything I have at him from the opening bell."

Aware that Louis is a murderous puncher, Retzlaff believes he can hit equally as hard as the brown bomber. He points with pride that he scored most of his knockouts in the first round.

The North Dakota rancher opens his boxing campaign tomorrow in excellent condition. His big frame is hewed down to 198 pounds due to the fact that he works from sunup to sundown on his farm. He is satisfied with his physical condition and figures that eight days of boxing will sharpen his eye and put him on edge.

Three Seats Sold For Cub Opener

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—(AP)—What cash value glory?

Chicago's Cubs won the National league pennant last season and, so far, have only three seats reserved for the opening game of the 1936 season.

Cincinnati's Reds finished sixth. They have a record 16,000 reservations for their opener.

BATH REFUSED LICENSE; BOUT FRIDAY IS OFF

New York Commission Defers Action on Californian.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The much publicized scrap between Heavyweights Hank Bath and Red Burman, with those old palsy walsies, Jack Kearns and Jack Dempsey whooping it up in rival corners, will not go on at the Garden Friday night.

The New York State Athletic Commission, in one of its famous surprise moves today, flatly refused to license Bath in time for a Friday night appearance.

Chairman John J. Phelan suavely explained the commission found it necessary to defer action on the Californian pending receipt of certain information from its west coast colleagues.

The nature of the information was not divulged. "We have asked for this data," Phelan said, "but it will not arrive here in time for Bath to fight Friday night. Therefore, gentlemen, the fight cannot be held."

Colonel John Reed Kilpatrick, Garden president, and Promoter Jimmy Johnston who were called downtown to receive the knockout in person, could hardly restrain themselves.

"It's both outrageous and high handed," said the indignant colonel.

Johnston was just as emphatic and a great deal more expressive.

Bath and Burman were being featured on Friday night's show largely because they are managed by Kearns and Dempsey, respectively. The Garden had advertised the two Jacks would appear as seconds.

While Phelan would not discuss what it is the commission wants to learn about Bath, other sources said it had to do with a recent fight in which Bath participated on the coast.

JACOBS LEARNS FATE NEXT WEEK

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission may decide next week whether it will fine or suspend Mike Jacobs, head of the 20th Century Sporting Club, for calling off the Joe Louis-Isidor Gastanaga fight, scheduled December 29 in Havana.

When Jacobs cancelled the fight several weeks ago, he was fined $500 and suspended by the Cuban Boxing Commission, which announced it would expect similar action by the New York commission under a working agreement.

Chairman John J. Phelan, despite previous statements to the contrary, said today the New York commission does have an agreement with the Cuban commission, dated July 30, 1930, in which each agrees to honor the other's action, subject to review.

Phelan said Jacobs and the negro's managers, John Roxborough and Julian Black, would be summoned for a hearing, probably next week.

Rose Bowl Shots Are Offered Today

Pictures of the S. M. U.-Stanford Rose Bowl football game, won, 7 to 0, by Stanford New Year's Day, will be shown at the Rialto theater for one week, starting today.

All the spectacular plays, showing the lone touchdown and the sensational S. M. U. drive which was halted on the five-yard line, are included in the "shots."

Down the Alleys

Five of Atlanta's top average bowlers will play a special duckpin team match in Gainesville, Ga., on Thursday evening of this week. The Gainesville team will be composed of some of the boys who compete in the Southern Duckpin league that bowls on the Atlanta alleys, with George Barron and Bill Jones providing the heavier scores for the home boys.

Atlanta's team will have A. J. Sossong, Carl Tidwell, Walter Lawson, W. F. (Carnera) Lowry and L. M. Tappan toppling the little wood. If the Atlanta team bowls according to the individual averages of its players, the games will average right around 600.

With the slate clean for the opening of the second half of competition, the Gulf Refining Company league members will be bowling for new high marks this afternoon with the games scheduled to begin at 4:30 o'clock.

Walter Lawson and John Hartken will go to Richmond, Va., on Saturday, January 18, to participate in the Virginia state singles sweepstakes.

Haygood Memorial bowled its first series in the Bible Class league Tuesday, taking a place that was vacated by the Jackson Hill Baptists.

Ralph Grist is topping the individual average list of the Bible Class league with an average of 105 for 27 games as he bowls with the Cascade Avenue Methodists.

The Business Men, Ladies' Commercial, Southern Railway Passenger Accounts, Hardware and Capital City Duckpin leagues resume active competition this evening.

5 Plans Studied as AAA Substitutes As Result of Supreme Court Ruling

New Deal Officials, From President Down, Caught Flat-footed by Sweeping Nature of Decision That Ended Crop Control.

By OWEN L. SCOTT.

(Copyright, 1936, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—After searching through the wreckage that was AAA before six justices of the supreme court sent that alphabetical agency to join NRA in the growing New Deal legal scrap pile, one affected official remarked "off the record":

"We find that the court will allow us to do everything for the farmer that our experience convinces us is unsound; nothing that we think is sound, if there is to be a continued farm program."

Others who attended the hurried and hectic conferences that immediately followed the action by which the supreme court wiped out nearly all of the New Deal farm experiment echoed the same view.

They were confronted with three principal questions:

1. What can congress do, if anything, to rebuild the machine through which 3,000,000 farmers have been practicing crop control for nearly three years?

2. What will be the effect of this most sweeping of recent court decisions, both economically and politically?

3. What does this thrust at the very vitals of the New Deal portend for the remainder of the experiments?

Answers still are not to be had from the White House or the executive departments. They may not be given officially, in the manner used by President Roosevelt following the death of NRA codes. But backstage, among those dealing with the problems raised, the answers are found taking definite shape.

First Question.

To the first question: At least five plans, all of them explored thoroughly, are under consideration to replace the now ended AAA crop control programs. Each one is thought to overcome the objections made by the supreme court to the plan applied in the past. But none meets the test of soundness as applied by Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture.

To the second question: No sudden or widespread economic effect is expected to flow from the decision. City people can expect little early reduction in the cost of living. Farmers can look forward to few violent price fluctuations. The reason for this official opinion is that supply and demand conditions are fairly well in balance. Politically, the situation may be filled with dynamite as checks cease to go to 3,000,000 farmers.

To the third question: The outlook is dark for the remaining portions of the New Deal that must face the supreme court. Sugar control, potato control, cotton marketing control and tobacco marketing control, in addition to the regular farm programs, are destroyed. Pay roll taxes to finance unemployment insurance and old-age insurance—just taking effect—are in grave legal danger. Utility holding company control, TVA, "Little NRA's" like the Guffey coal act, federal interest in labor relations, all go on the highly doubtful list.

CAUGHT FLATFOOTED.

New Deal officials, from the President down, were caught flatfooted by the sweeping nature of the decision that ended crop control.

Some had feared that the judges might deny the federal government authority to spend money to do things that the constitution did not say that it could do. But none really thought that the court would close the door to all use of the spending power, even indirectly, if that use led to controls not outlined in the constitution.

In other words, the executive branch of the government expected the court to leave loopholes to permit continuance of some form of the present farm program. They now are convinced that none was left.

Consequently, consideration turns to alternate plans that congress could enact to take the place of the AAA. All of the alternate plans are based on the premise that farmers, as a class, are at a disadvantage compared with city people, as a class, because they have little control over the market for their product, and much of that market lies in foreign lands.

But all, except one, differ from the AAA in failing to attack the farm problem from the angle of production control, based on the theory of production control as practiced by industry to gear output to probable market, with profit possibilities as the guiding factor.

Possible Substitutes.

The lineup of possible substitute legislation looks like this:

1. A farm board, modeled somewhat like the farm board under the Hoover administration. This agency attempted to stabilize, or put a bottom under, farm prices, but lost about $325,000,000 in the short attempt. Now congress could accompany price control of this type with a tax designed to raise revenue to meet possible losses. Deflation no longer is pressing downward the markets for farm products, and the AAA, with its price-fixing loans, has managed thus far to escape the fate that hit the Hoover stabilization plan.

2. An equalization fee, assessed against farmers, and used to finance the export of surplus farm products abroad. This fee twice was approved by congress in the old McNary-Haugen legislation and twice President Coolidge vetoed its use. The theory of his plan is that tariffs on farm products usually are not effective because there is surplus production that must be sold abroad. To meet that situation, the government would tax farmers to raise funds for use in dumping surpluses, thereby making tariff protection more effective.

3. An export debenture—or bounty—utilized by the government to finance sale of farm surpluses abroad. The principle is much the same as in the equalization fee, but general taxpayers rather than farmers would finance the scheme.

System of Subsidies.

4. A system of straight subsidies to farmers to make up at least part of the difference between the world price for their products and what congress would consider a fair domestic price. This is a straight domestic allotment plan, without the production control features of the AAA program. It has been pressed strongly by cotton interests of the south, and may get a trial. Money to pay the subsidies to farmers would come, under plans drawn, from an excise tax on the products concerned. Thus, a tax on cotton would be expected to provide money for the subsidies to cotton farmers, much the same as under the old processing taxes.

5. A system of state AAA's. The legal specialists are still uncertain whether they could skirt the supreme court decision by this scheme, but some of them think it is worth trying. The idea would be for states to set up systems for production control on farms and for bounty payments to cooperating farmers. Then the federal government would make grants to states that complied with federal stands, much as the government has done for more than 100 years in making grants to states for road-building. However, there is doubt about the constitutional authority of many individual states to undertake to control farm production, and doubt, too, whether the supreme court would permit the federal government to accomplish by indirection what it cannot accomplish directly under the constitution.

Then the question arises:

Not Same Way.

Why isn't it probable that the AAA will go the way of NRA and with no further repercussions? Might not congress allow the whole idea to die?

Not if the temper of individual congressmen is a gauge of sentiment. Unlike NRA, the AAA has shown results. Too, it has been accompanied by checks that have been received regularly and have taken their place in the financial planning of 3,000,000 individual farmers and their families. Those checks have totalled about $500,000,000 annually for the past two years. Unless congress acts, they no longer will flow out of Washington.

But for at least a year, the supply and demand situation in most farm crops is expected to prevent any sharp price upset.

Then why couldn't that situation be maintained by federal financing of exports under any of the several plans that are offered? On what grounds do the AAA officials regard them as unsound?

The reason that Mr. Wallace gives is that many former customers of the American farmer, in nations abroad, now are striving to produce their own farm products. To accomplish that purpose, they are restricting the volume of imports. The secretary of agriculture thinks that, in many instances, this country would be unable to sell its farm goods at any price. Other countries are giving their trade to those who will buy their goods and are less interested in what the United States has to sell in the way of products that can be had in other markets.

But even so, with foreign markets largely closed, there is little prospect of surpluses piling up here until a year from now.

It is that better balance between production and consumption which is expected by officials to lead the disappointment in cities over the price response to the supreme court decision. With processing taxes off, AAA officials think that city people still will be paying about as much for their meats, their bread, their textiles and other goods produced from farm products.

late W. O. (Bill) McGeehan, greatest of all sports writers, used to tell.

The colonel took a vacation to England after one of the Yankee pennants. And he and McGeehan and a cockney guide were seeing England.

They were on their way to see the spot where Mary, Queen of Scots, received the death blow. The guide was telling some perfectly scandalous stories about the old girl, when all of a sudden the colonel halted him.

"Pay the man what we owe him," he said. "I'll listen to no man criticize a lady, even if she is dead. She may have been a bad one, but she's dead, and maybe she couldn't help it. Pay this man off and we'll go."

His indignation mounted as they went back to an English club, there to meet Trevor Wignal, greatest of the English sports writers, who is read by a million people each morning.

As they reached the door, they found it guarded by a tall, giant of an Englishman in a brilliant uniform, the doorman.

"Hurrah for Mary, Queen of Scots!" said Colonel Til Huston.

"Quite so, sir, quite so," said the stolid doorman, as he swung open the door.

And when they talk of the good old days I feel, now and then, like saying, "Quite so, sir, quite so."

RAINFALL MAY FORCE BLACKSHIRT RETREAT

MORE ITALIAN TROOPS SENT TO ETHIOPIA

ROME, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini fed more man power to his war machine in Africa tonight. Several thousand members of famous Alpine divisions left for the plateaus of Ethiopia.

Four thousand Alpine troops were aboard the Conte Grande, which sailed last night, and it was followed tonight by the Conte Rosso with 2,500 Alpine artillerymen.

To replace them Il Duce created new militia units for duty in this country.

Italian anger toward President Roosevelt because of his message to congress simmered more quietly, but the press still took shots at the President.

The newspaper La Tribuna said the President had attempted something like fascism but failed "through the fault of the democratic regime."

Il Lavoro Fascista said: "It is absurd for Roosevelt to revive the Monroe Doctrine of European noninterference with American affairs while setting himself up as a judge of regimes he defines as 'autocratic.'"

Reliable sources disclosed that the attacks against Washington's neutrality program were made with the full knowledge of the Italian government.

Among those joining the attack were the Popolo d'Italia of Milan, Premier Mussolini's own newspaper, and Il Popolo di Roma. The latter said the President's address showed a "necessarily imperfect and not profound knowledge" of European problems.

BRITISH AND FRENCH MAKE MILITARY PLANS

PARIS, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Plans for instant co-operation by British and French land, sea and air forces comprising the entire war strength of the two nations if either is attacked were completed today.

France and Britain are ready for any emergency, whether an attack comes on the sea against the British fleet in the Mediterranean or against France from across her German, Austrian or Italian frontiers.

Technical plans have been completed in such great detail by the general staffs of the two nations, that if anyone attacks either, staff officers need only reach out to a pigeonhole and take down a definite, scientific plan of military co-operation which represents the last word in modern machine warfare.

Both nations were careful to stress that this co-operation is not a secret military alliance—merely technically getting ready for any emergency in full accordance with mutual assistance obligations outlined in the League of Nations pact. Six weeks were spent in perfecting the plan for joint action.

Defense Plans Made.

Under the plan, France has designated arsenals, ports, airfields, and concentration camps for the use of British forces in France. If, for example, Italy unwarrantedly attacks Britain in the Mediterranean or in Africa, British planes could land the next day on designated French landing fields, where provisions would be ready for housing and refueling and for accommodations for fliers and technicians; the British Mediterranean fleet would have designated for its shelter, refueling and repairs certain French naval bases on the Mediterranean, and any British troops bound overland toward an enemy objective could land at designated French ports and find waiting for them special trains with steam up.

In the same manner, if any attacks France, nothing is left to chance or last-minute arrangements. Britain would take over the lion's share of protection of French coasts, air protection of principal French cities and, if necessary, rush English troops to France to back up the frontier fortress chain.

LEAGUE MAY ABANDON VOTE ON OIL EMBARGO.

PARIS, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The League of Nations has virtually abandoned a plan to vote on oil embargo against Italy, it was reported tonight in diplomatic circles.

These sources said this decision was "practically certain," since a poll of League council members showed the belief that existing sanctions will soon bring an end to Italy's ability to carry on the war.

Military and naval activity in southern France increased while French and British military experts, officials said, carried on "normal conversations between two friendly nations."

Major General Gustave Gamelin, chief of the army general staff, completed a military inspection of troops and fortifications along the Italian frontier today. The ministry of the navy announced the Mediterranean fleet is scheduled to hold a series of three maneuvers off Corsica.

The Mediterranean maneuvers will begin January 20, when the League council meets.

France's Atlantic Fleet.

At the same time France's Atlantic fleet is expected to anchor at Casablanca on a 45-day cruise near Gibraltar.

Unofficial commentators here reported the British general staff was pressing for application of an oil embargo against the fascist "aggressor," in a move to stop the African war at any price.

The British general staff's motives for reportedly seeking to end the Italo-Ethiopian war quickly by means of an oil embargo were outlined as follows by Mme. Genevieve Tabous, writing in the newspaper L'Oeuvre:

That an overwhelming Ethiopian victory over the Italians, or a victory of blacks over whites, might seriously affect other colonial nations; that any reduction in Italy's military power would upset the balance of Europe and that postponement of a settlement might mean that rearmed Germany would take a hand in the controversy and openly demand her colonies back.

SWEET POTATO PLANT EXPRESS CHARGES CUT

State Entomologist M. S. Yeomans announced yesterday that reductions of one-third have been ordered in express charges for shipment of sweet potato plants, of which Georgia is the nation's largest producer.

In a notice for distribution to the state's 1,400 potato plant growers, Yeomans said he and Jud P. Wilholt, chairman of the Georgia Public Service Commission, "have been conferring with officials of both the Southeastern Express Company and the Railway Express Company for several months."

"After these conferences," he said, "I am pleased to advise that the agreed weights on sweet potato plants have been established at 16 pounds per 1,000 instead of the old weight of 23 pounds per 1,000.

"This amounts to approximately 33 1-3 per cent reduction in the cost of the movement."

OSCAR S. WEBB DIES; SOUTHERN EMPLOYE

Oscar S. Webb, a member of the electrical department of the Southern Railway and an associate of the company for 33 years, died yesterday at a private hospital at the age of 69. He lived at 831 Essie avenue, S. E.

Mr. Webb is survived by his wife; a daughter, Mrs. L. B. Milam; a son, Guy C. Epps; a nephew, W. D. Webb, and several grandchildren.

He was a member of the Martha Brown Memorial church, the Woodmen of the World and was active in civic affairs.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Seminary Cagers Open Play Friday

The Washington Seminary basketball team will play its opening game with North Fulton Friday night, January 10, at 7:30 o'clock.

The following girls have made the squad for 1936: Tommie Quin, captain; Georgia Adams, alternate captain; Elsie Dunnick, Mary Frances Broach, Pauline Stanverman, Marjorie Wright, Margaret Peavy, Mary Katherine Reeves, Grace Moore, Dorothy Kirby, Florence Jones, Carolyn Aycock, Sally Cobb Johnson, Mary Lee Davidson, Jane Franklin, Mary Harrison, Frances Cundell, Mildred Bracker, Betty Jones, Sally Rankin and Ann Atkinson.

FURTHER FUNDS SEEN FOR FLORIDA CANAL

Additional Allotments Depend on House Appropriations Body.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Immediate further federal outlays for the $143,000,000 Florida ship canal depend on decision of the house appropriations committee, it was learned today.

President Roosevelt has assured the Florida congressional delegation that additional funds will be forthcoming to carry on the work, aids of Senator Duncan U. Fletcher said.

It was reported authoritatively that the sum proposed for allocation is $12,000,000. The canal already has received more than $5,000,000 under the $4,000,000,000 work relief fund.

An official at that army engineer's office said that $12,000,000 would be a "pretty good guess" for additional allocations. Just what the apportionment will be under a congressional appropriation bill depends on verdict of the appropriations committee and what recommendation actually will be made will not be known until the budget bill is reported out to the floor.

Successful promulgation of a $12,000,000 appropriation for the canal virtually is certain to meet strong opposition from republicans. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, republican, Michigan, powerful minority spokesman in the upper house, yesterday introduced a resolution in the senate asking a $2,500 investigation of federal outlays up to now for the canal. Vandenberg last week protested strongly against allocations of federal funds to the project without specific congressional sanction.

Senator Fletcher, of Florida, however, conferred with President Roosevelt before the budget was completed and was assured sufficient funds for the development would be forthcoming.

SON-IN-LAW ATTACKS ANN CANNON'S FATHER

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Jan. 7.—(AP) F. Brandon Smith Jr., seeking $250,000 heart balm, charged from the witness stand today his wife was coerced into a divorce through her father's determination to retain custody of her baby daughter, heiress to a portion of the estate of her first husband, Smith Reynolds.

Smith is suing his former father-in-law, Joseph F. Cannon, millionaire Concord businessman, for alienation of affections. A verdict of $125,000 damages in a previous trial was set aside by Superior Court Judge W. F. Harding as excessive.

As the first and only witness of the day the young real estate man identified a score of letters written him by his former wife, Anne Cannon Reynolds Smith, years before her marriage to Smith Reynolds in November, 1929, all containing references to her love for him.

He said their romance continued until two months before her marriage to young Reynolds, was resumed hardly more than a month later, after she had left her first husband, and that they became engaged only a few weeks after her divorce from Reynolds late in 1931. They were married the next spring.

MRS. DOUGLAS DIES OF CRASH INJURIES

Widow of Retired Policeman Second Fatality in Accident That Killed Mate.

Mrs. H. W. Douglas, wife of the late Patrolman H. W. Douglas, veteran member of the police force, died yesterday morning in Memorial hospital, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., of injuries suffered a week ago Monday when the auto in which she was riding with her husband was struck by a bus.

Douglas was killed instantly and Mrs. Douglas suffered internal injuries. The accident occurred at North Miami.

Douglas had been retired about a month from the force after 25 years of service. At the time of his retirement he was a turnkey at the jail. He had served in many sections of the city and was well known.

The officer and his wife were on a fishing trip at the time of the accident. Witnesses testified at a coroner's inquest that Douglas had driven out of a side road on to a federal highway in the path of the bus.

The bodies will arrive in Atlanta at 5:50 o'clock this afternoon and will be taken to the mortuary of Awtry & Lowndes pending completion of funeral arrangements.

Recalling Struggling Days Latest Hollywood Fad

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 7.—(AP) The new fad for movie stars, who now earn four-figure salaries, is to recall the days when they were grateful for any kind of a salary, at all.

Clark Gable started it.

Gable recently found, in his records, a voucher for $5, paid him in 1929, for extra work in "Sporting Venus," a picture starring Blanche Sweet. He had it framed, and hung on the wall of his dressing room above the legend, "Remember, Mr. Gable."

Jean Harlow liked the idea, so she obtained from a studio the first check she ever received. It was for $3 for an atmosphere part in "Moran of the Marines."

PITTSBURGH WOMAN KILLS SELF IN MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Notes found today beside the bullet-slain body of Mrs. Nancy Sherrill Moses, attractive 28-year-old Pittsburgh, Pa., woman, asked forgiveness "for causing this trouble" and "for being so untidy."

Police, describing her death as suicide, said the notes apparently were written to the woman's husband, whose name they gave as D. D. Moses Pittsburgh.

Near the body was a pistol with the dealer's tag affixed. Investigating officers said they learned Mrs. Moses recently purchased the weapon at a hardware store after a man who said he was her husband instructed clerks to sell it to her for self-protection.

The husband, not located today, was believed by officers to have left Miami before Mrs. Moses bought the pistol.

No inquest will be held.

It was announced that Hughes will have special executive duties assigned by the president of the corporation; that Forbes will have supervision over by-product coke and its dispostion and Rhodes woud have general supervision over purchases.

MISSIONS SECRETARY TO SPEAK HERE IN MAY

Dr. Robert E. Speer, secretary of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions of the United States since 1891, has accepted the invitation of the Druid Hills Baptist church for a three-day engagement, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, May 3-5, Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor at Druid Hills, announced last night. Dr. Speer will be heard twice each day while he is in Atlanta with a special meeting on Sunday afternoon, May 3.

Dr. Speer's 44 years of continuous leadership of the mission agency places him in the forefront of Christian statesmen of the world. He has several times made extensive world tours, visiting not only the mission fields of his own board, but the mission stations of all religions. He has served on international commissions by appointment from our government and is now chairman of the committee on co-operation with Latin America. He is a past president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, and was moderator of the Presbyterian church in the United States in 1927.

PARLIAMENT DISSOLVED BY SPANISH PREMIER

MADRID, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Premier Manuel Portela Valladares today announced the long-expected dissolution of the Spanish parliament in a move to break a congressional deadlock.

New elections throughout Spain were set for February 16 and a new congress will be convoked on March 16.

French City Flooded.

NANTES, France, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A devastating flood covered large sections of this city today, causing damage estimated in tens of millions of francs here and elsewhere in this valley region. Streets and shops were flooded by the River Loire, mills were put out of commission and one large biscuit factory and a naval shipyard were forced to suspend operations.

NAVAL POWERS STUDY NEW LIMITATION PLANS

Exchange of Information On Tonnage Is Favored By Americans

LONDON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Some optimism that the international naval conferences may at last have found a pathway to success was evident tonight.

Delegates studied three markedly similar proposals for the exchange of naval information. These plans were suggested by the British, French and Italians in an effort to prevent failure of the parley.

The Americans and British, while aware that much depends upon the Japanese viewpoint, are hopeful, nevertheless, that some simple plan would be acceptable to all and could be used as a framework upon which to build a new limitation treaty.

General opinion appeared to be that the conference has reached a point where it is dealing with a subject on which it would be difficult for any power to refuse to co-operate.

Japan remained an unknown factor, her delegates keeping silent.

British Are Hopeful.

The Americans are known to favor the information exchange idea in principle, feeling it is a step in the right direction. The essential object of all three plans is to eliminate suspicion and distrust caused by secret building and to avoid the element of surprise which would contribute toward competition in armaments.

Britain's delegation is hopeful that an acceptance would unlock the door to further agreements, at least on limitation of the size of armament ships within various categories.

Any agreement on total tonnages is held up by Japan's unbudging demand for equality with America and Britain.

The three plans are secret but the British said all agree upon essential provisions, varying only in minor details which probably are adjustable.

The British proposal, embodying the exchange provisions of the expiring Washington and London naval treaties, also is understood to contain far-reaching requirements for further building details which must be communicated in regard to each ship.

It was predicted in authoritative quarters that the session would end within a fortnight if the current proposals fail.

COLUMBUS COUNCIL FAILS TO NAME MAYOR

COLUMBUS, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Columbus is temporarily without a mayor, the city commission having failed to elect one when Mayor J. Homer Dimon officially retired, his term of office having expired.

Apparently deadlocked over naming a new mayor, the five commissioners failed to take action yesterday when Mayor Dimon retired and Commissioner W. G. Bridges was sworn in as a new member of the board. Commissioner C. W. Mizell was named temporary chairman of the commission. Another meeting was held today but no action was taken.

Strange N.C. Marriage Makes Man Own Uncle

GASTONIA, N. C., Jan. 7.—(AP) C. D. Spake claims he's his uncle.

H e's how he explains it:

C. D. has a grandfather, Daniel Spake, until recently a widower, of Connelly Springs, N. C. On one of his visits to his grandson here, Daniel was introduced to Mrs. Cora Abernathy, of Gastonia, mother of Mrs. C. D. Spake. Daniel and Mrs. Abernathy were married.

Thus, C. D. Spake's mother-in-law became his grandmother and his grandfather became his father-in-law.

Too, Mrs. Spake became the daughter of Mr. Spake's grandfather and thus is the aunt of her husband.

Since his wife is his aunt, C. D. claims his children, James and Christine, are his own first cousins.

Finally, reasons C. D., since he is the husband of his wife, who is at the same time his aunt, he becomes his own uncle.

AT ATLANTA'S THEATERS

O'Neill's 'Ah, Wilderness' On Grand Screen Today

Two leading character players dominate "Ah, Wilderness," Eugene O'Neill's most recent play to be produced on the stage, and now filmed under Clarence Brown's expert direction. These players are Wallace Beery seen as the lovable, alcoholic Uncle Sid, and Lionel Barrymore in the role George M. Cohan played on Broadway and which Will Rogers filmed when "Ah, Wilderness" was staged on the west coast. "Ah, Wilderness' starts today at Loew's Grand theater.

Appearing with Beery and Lionel Barrymore are Aline MacMahon, Eric Linden and Cecilia Parker. Unlike several O'Neill dramas, "Ah, Wilderness" deals with the drama likely to arise in any American home, rather than with turbulent and psychological conflicts.

"Ah, Wilderness" takes us back 30 years. Its scene is a small New England village, and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer located just such a place—Grafton, Mass. Here most of the cast of "Ah, Wilderness" was transported, on one of the most expensive "location trips" in the history of films.

Lionel Barrymore is seen as Nat Miller, a solid citizen, middle-class, honorable, facing his problems with insight and integrity. Eric Linden is his son, just growing to manhood, and encountering the perplexities which come with man's estate. Cecilia Parker is the neighbor's daughter with whom the boy is passionately in love. Wallace Beery is an amiable ne'er-do-well uncle, and Aline MacMahon is a spinster who loves Uncle Sid but won't marry him.

'If You Could Only Cook' In Third Rialto Week

Today begins the third week of the run of "If You Could Only Cook" at the Rialto theater, the picture which by its rib-tickling comedy and heart-moving romance has delighted every audience that has crowded into that theater to see it since its opening on Christmas Day.

Made by Columbia Pictures Corporation the picture undoubtedly captures once again that illusive charm and snappy tempo that did so much to make such predecessors as "It Happened One Night," "The Whole Town's Talking," "She Couldn't Take It," such record-breaking successes.

This story of a millionaire auto manufacturer who didn't find his happiness until he took a job as butler to a gangster, is enacted by a cast headed by Herbert Marshall, as the millionaire butler; Jean Arthur as the girl who could cook, Leo Carrillo as the gang chieftain and Lionel Stander as his first lieutenant.

Manager W. T. Murray in announcing extension of the engagement for the third week said he was impelled to do so by the continued capacity crowds coming to his theater and their evident enjoyment of the story.

An added attraction on the program starting tomorrow will be scenes from the Rose Bowl football game at Pasadena. The shots of the scoring plays, both in normal time and in slow motion, are fascinating and the entire subject, running more than ten minutes, is one of the best pictures of actual football yet seen.

"Magnificent Obsession" Starts Fox Run Today

Starting today Fox theater patrons will have the opportunity to see the most popular love story ever transcribed for the motion picture screen. Lloyd C. Douglas' "Magnificent Obsession," fascinating story of two young people living, loving, fighting against the indomitable forces of life that tried to keep them apart.

No other book in years has created so much talk as "Magnificent Obsession," and Fox patrons are assured this magnificent screen adaptation will be remembered as one of the sweetest love stories ever produced.

Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor are co-starred in this powerfully stirring production whose cast includes such screen favorites as Charles Butterworth, Betty Furness, Sara Haden, Ralph Morgan, Henry Armetta and Gilbert Emery.

"Magnificent Obsession" is one of the sweetest romances ever told, yet it reaches into the realms of deepest drama. The story will pull tremendously at your heart strings as has no other motion picture you have ever seen. It is the crowning achievement of John M. Stahl, master of emotion, whose previous productions include such outstanding sucesses as "Back Street," "Only Yesterday" and "Imitation of Life." Be sure to see this remarkable screen play. You will smile through th tears, entranced by the charming love narrative and the splendid portrayal of its characters; you will have seen a tender, heart-warming motion picture that you will never forget.

BRUNO IS CONFIDENT DESPITE 'DEATH' NEWS

Plans for Execution of Convicted Slayer of Baby Go Forward.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 7.—(AP)—News of his death fate failed today to shake Bruno Hauptmann's calm and his belief he will escape the electric chair.

Colonel Mark O. Kimberling, principal keeper, informed Hauptmann today that unless the court of pardons intervenes he must die late next week for the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. He told Hauptmann the day and the hour—reported to be 8 p. m., January 17.

Hauptmann's set expression—deep peering eyes and a faint trace of a smile—never changed, Kimberling said. Neither did his story that he obtained the Lindbergh ransom money from Isidor Fisch, his furrier partner, who later died in Germany.

To his spiritual adviser, the Rev. John Matthiesen, of Trenton, Hauptmann displayed the same confidence.

Bruno Confident.

"I won't go out that door," Hauptmann said, nodding in the direction of the big thick steel door a few paces away, which leads to the execution chamber.

Smilingly, he turned toward the steel-grated front entrance of the little red brick death house, which he entered last February 16.

"I'll go out that one," he said.

Hauptmann also received visits today from his wife, Anna, and his lawyer, C. Lloyd Fisher, of Flemington. Mrs. Hauptmann, it is understood, has taken up residence in Trenton.

Execution Plans.

Plans for Hauptmann's execution went forward despite the convening of the court of pardons Saturday at 10:30 a. m.

Colonel Kimberlin sent out invitations to the 18 official witnesses.

The law provides a jury of 12, two of whom must be physicians, and six newspapermen must witness an execution. Most of the jurors will be newspapermen.

Coldly, the invitations said:

"You are hereby invited to be present as a witness at the execution by electricity of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, No. 17400."

Three doctors will be present to pronounce Hauptmann dead. They are Dr. John A. Connelly, prison medical director; Dr. Howard Wiesler, the resident physician, and Dr. Robert G. Stone, medical director at Trenton state hospital.

MRS. J. B. DYE PASSES; FUNERAL TOMORROW

Mrs. J. B. Dye, a widely known member of the Ponders Avenue Baptist church and a resident of the city for many years, died yesterday at her home, 765 Ponders avenue, N. W.

She is survived by her husband; three daughters, Mrs. A. L. Jessee, Mrs. J. R. Forbes and Mrs. S. O. Parsons; two sons, J. S. and J. T. Dye, and several grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Ponders Avenue church, with the Revs. G. W. Cox, P. L. Maner and E. L. Barlow officiating. Burial will be in Crest Lawn cemetery, with H. M. Patterson & Son in charge.

MISS BURNETTE HEAD OF WOMAN'S DIVISION

Miss Elma Burnette has been chosen president of the Woman's Division of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, it was announced yesterday following election of officers on Monday night.

Hutchins, Mrs. Alice Denton Jennings, Mrs. John D. Kelly, Mrs. Howard Pattillo, Miss Elizabeth Poole, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, Mrs. Mildred Seydell and Mrs. D. R. Stauffacher.

The first meeting of the board of directors for the new year will be held next Monday night in the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

Debbies Forget Their Sophistication And Enjoy Hilarious Kid Party

By Sally Forth.

NOT even a debutante can be sophisticated in a perky kid's costume, as was quite apparent at the children's party given last evening by Marjorie Carmichael, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Carmichael, in honor of her guest, Lila Womble, of Winston-Salem, N. C. The limited number of guests arrived with sand buckets and all-day suckers to have the time of their lives forgetting their dignity. Marjorie greeted her guests at the door attired in a swanky little girl's frock of brightly colored checked seersucker, worn with socks and a large hair ribbon to match.

Pinning the tail on the donkey and playing drop-the-hanky were the favorite games of the evening, and ice cream cones and lollypops were enjoyed. Guests at this hilarious occasion included a small group of the debutante coterie, their escorts, and Marjorie's guests, Plant Ellis, of Macon, and Lila Womble, of Winston-Salem, N. C.

Plant attended Agnes Scott College with Majorie, and Lila is Marjorie's cousin. Lila and Marjorie spent several weeks visiting in London together last summer, and these attractive visitors and their hostess will be central figures at many informal social affairs during their visit here.

IT HAPPENED on New Year's night. She is a popular debutante of several seasons ago and he is a well-known professional man. It was after the ball was over at one of the clubs and, as is generally the case, the spirits of the alcoholic type were present and he was slightly in his cups. The young belle, Sally hastens to say, never takes a drink, not even a mild cocktail.

The streets were glassy with ice and the car was minus chains. They slid and slipped, and the belle, fearing the worst was yet to come with her escort at the wheel, decided to drive. However, the elements were against her, too, and they continued their slippery journey. Not too much in his cups to realize his danger, the young man took the wheel again and they drove into a garage. He summoned the aid of the wrecker truck and had his lady fair sent home in it, while he remained in the garage.

When the truck returned, he climbed into the seat by the driver and rode in this style to his home, leaving his car to spend the night in the garage. Sally is now wondering what the young belle's reaction was on the midnight truck ride out Peachtree road and what the young man's thoughts were when the spirits left him the morning after.

TO KEEP the figure trim and to lose that excess poundage, pretty Constance Knowles advises that a trip to Washington is the "tops." This lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Knowles has just returned from the national capital, where she visited Doris Becker, and the two went at such a fast pace that Constance now tips the scales minus five pounds.

Doris, daughter of the C. H. Beckers, former Atlantans, is a student at Holton Arms and with her Atlanta guest they had the time of their young lives. It was Constance's first visit to Washington, but, she confides, it won't be her last. Impressed upon Constance is every detail of her thrilling visit, from ice skating on the Lincoln Memorial pool to tea-dancing at the Mayflower. Former Atlantans now residing in Washington played a large part in making Constance's visit a success. The William Nillers were hosts at a tea-dance at the Shoreham and the William Crams entertained at a tea-dance at the Mayflower for the two young belles. Doris gave a buffet supper at her home on Connecticut avenue for her Atlanta guest, to which were invited the younger college set of Washington.

TO HAVE your birthday fall on the shortest day of the year (December 22) may have its drawbacks as far as celebration is concerned, but it serves as a very convenient reminder of the auspicious occasion. The past December 22 witnessed the arrival of a future belle in the name of Mary Denny Rourk, daughter of John and Helen Gude Rourk. She is a representative of prominent families, and the future belle will possess charm, popularity and beauty, which will be hers by right of inheritance.

She bears the name of her maternal great-grandmother, Mrs. A. V. Gude, and also bears the distinction of being the only great-granddaughter of this prominent matron. One of little Mary's first gifts was a small cradle made entirely of roses and lilies of the valley, which was a gift of two of her contemporaries, little Howell Hardie and her brother, Sid Hardie.

DR. EDGAR FINCHER SR. DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Prominent Physician Stricken Suddenly; Funeral Services To Be Held Today.

Dr. Edgar F. Fincher Sr., noted physician, civic and church leader, died suddenly yesterday morning at his home, 715 Flat Shoals avenue, following a heart attack. He was 66 years of age.

Dr. Fincher had retired Monday night in apparent good health. He was stricken at 3 o'clock in the morning and died a half-hour later.

A practicing physician here since 1901, Dr. Fincher was widely known in the profession. For a number of years he was a member of the board of trustees of Grady hospital and at the time of his death he was a member of the staff of Piedmont hospital.

Dr. Fincher was a native of Gwinnett county, where he was born in 1869, the son of Thomas H. Fincher and the former Miss Elizabeth Anne Bryson, Gwinnett county pioneers.

He attended the old Emory College, graduating in the class of 1895, and then entered the Atlanta School of Medicine, from which he was graduated in 1901.

He had been a resident of East Atlanta for 35 years, settling in that section before it was a part of the city. There he contributed considerable time to the development of adequate schools and was associated in the development of several financial institutions.

He was a member of the Martha Brown Memorial Methodist church and took an active part in the church's affairs. He was a member of Yaarab Temple of the Shrine and of the E. A. Minor lodge No. 608, F. & A. M.

He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Mrs. W. H. Trimble; a son, Dr. Edgar F. Fincher Jr., and a brother, Dr. T. H. P. Fincher.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Martha Brown Memorial Methodist church, with Dr. H. C. Emory and Dr. W. T. Hunnicutt officiating.

Pallbearers will be Dr. Charles Hill, Dr. Paul West, W. A. Thompson, L. V. Kennerly, J. C. McWilliams and John W. Zuber. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

The flag on the city hall remained at half staff until after the services and all city offices were closed from 11:30 until 1 o'clock.

In the meantime the condition of Mrs. Tatum, who also was burned in the fire which followed the explosion, remained serious at Grady hospital. Attaches reported she appeared to be resting slightly more comfortably, but complications are still feared.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Simple Probability.

A blind opening lead cannot always hit the bull's eye. As I have said before, the supermen of bridge reach double-dummy perfection in this important department only about 80 per cent of the time. Considering the obstacles to be overcome, this is a magnificent record.

On those comparatively rare occasions when they go astray, it often is possible for their partners, after the dummy becomes exposed, to rechart the proper course before real damage is done. That was what North did in today's hand.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 spade	Double	Red'ble	2 hearts
Pass	Pass	2 no tr'p	Pass
3 no tr'p [final bid]

The bidding was not particularly bad. North's take-out double was weak, of course, but against vulnerable opponents, and with a conservative partner, not greatly to be criticized.

South, with little information from the bidding, tried to hit his partner's probable suit by opening the eight of clubs. Dummy played the jack and North's king won.

At this point a shift was clearly indicated. Few players, indeed, could fail to recognize the opening lead for a short-suit opening, but even fewer, I fear, would have made the proper return. A heart lead to dummy's weakness was superficially persuasive but, on close analysis, unsound. In order to make three tricks in hearts, South would have to hold two honors. In diamonds, however, three tricks could be made by finding South with only one specific card—the queen. On this good reasoning, North shifted to the ten of diamonds, and the jig was up for declarer. Now no line of play could deprive the defenders of three diamond and two club tricks, for the contract's defeat.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Has dummy the right to warn declarer he is about to play out of the wrong hand?

Answer: No. Dummy has no right to direct the play in any way.

HOLDUP MAN ROUTED BY WOMAN'S SCREAMS

Screams of Mrs. L. T. Hallman, of 1039 Greenwich avenue, frustrated a holdup attempt Monday night at Peeples street and Lucile avenue, in which she was struck over the head by a young white man, she reported to police yesterday.

She was struck, she reported, when she refused to comply with an order to "stick 'em up." When she called for help the man ran.

Merchandise valued at approximately $35 was stolen from a store at 1180 Gordon street Monday night, police were informed. The thieves gained entrance by throwing a brick through a window after the door had resisted their efforts to break it in.

RAILROAD MUST PAY $75 FOR DOG'S DEATH

Asserting that railroads owe the owners of animals ranging on their rights of way "the duty of exercising ordinary care both in discovery of their presence on the railway tracks and avoiding their injury," the court of appeals yesterday affirmed a $75 verdict in favor of the owner of a dog killed by a train.

The owner of the dog was T. H. Nelson, of Wheeler county. The judgment was given by a justice court and affirmed by the higher court.

An another case appealed from the Tallapoosa superior court, the court of appeals held that the seizure of an automobile belonging to F. C. Thompson was illegal in that it was not proven that Thompson was transporting whisky.

On the Air Today

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH. The address of President Franklin D. Roosevelt at the Jackson Day dinner in the Mayflower hotel, Washington, D. C., will be heard over WGST at 9 o'clock tonight.

Jackson's Day is the popular name given to the anniversary celebration of the defeat of the English at New Orleans on January 8, 1815, by General Andrew Jackson. It is observed by democrats throughout the United States on the year preceding presidential elections as the official opening date of the campaign.

BURNS & ALLEN—Gracie Allen, whether Georgie likes it or not, will toss away her New Year's resolutions and sing—loud, if not good. George Burns and Gracie Allen will take stock of the first week of the new year and exchange their usual pleasantries blended with a bit of high explosives now and then over WGST at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Gracie has tossed all her resolutions aside and will sing without any gyves or fetters whatever. Whenever they get a chance Jacques Renard's orchestra and Ted Husing will jump into the fray. Renard has promised to lead the band in "All's Well" and "Beautiful Lady in Blue."

RAY NOBLE—Another outstanding feature will be that of Ray Noble and his orchestra who will be heard over WGST at 8:30 o'clock tonight with Connie Boswell adding the vocal touches.

EASILY MADE SELF-HELP FROCK SAVES TIME AND MONEY.

Pattern 2534.

"Rich man, poor man"—teach her the rest of the rhyme and she'll love buttoning and unbottoning those five bright buttons which make her daintily printed frock so smart. Nine o'clock scholars or two-year-old toddlers will fare best if their frocks are of this easy "self-help" type. Mother—or the one who makes the frock—is thankful in more than one way, for it's an unusually easy pattern to follow, and easy to keep freshly laundered and ironed, later. What kiddie wouldn't be pretty proud of such a noble fronting of pleats—crispy starched, and ever so roomy? Make it up in some irresistibly bright challis, pique or broadcloth and you'll find it's her favorite.

Pattern 2534 is available in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 takes 3 yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions including.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

A young miss writes that she has a bunch of boy-friends from whom to choose her partner for the long road of matrimony. She would like to know what traits of character make the most satisfactory husband.

First of all a woman has to be proud of the man she is married to. If she is to be truly contented and happy in her marriage. Honesty and ambition are two traits that contribute more to a wife's pride in her husband than any other. Honesty will keep him out of jail and ambition will keep him out of the poor-house. Honesty will insure his loyalty to her and ambition will put meat in the pot. Honesty will make other people respect him and ambition will make him respect himself. Oh, how a woman swells with pride in possession of a man who is known for his clean business record, a man about whom people say: "His word is as good as his bond." How she glories in his spunk, when she sees him climbing steadily up the success ladder through ambition and hard work.

There are many other traits that make a wife proud of her husband, traits that are attractive to all women, traits that make for a good, companionable marriage. A young woman remarked the other day that your modern miss had much rather have a husband who knew his way around than one who was a paragon of virtue. She delights in the position of being wife to a man who is well-mannered, well-dressed and altogether "accustomed." She likes her public to believe that she has made a swell match. But the day comes when she is much more concerned with what the man puts up in the privacy of their home than she is with his front before the public.

Generosity is another trait that wives cry for. A doctor through whose office passes a never-ending stream of ailing, wailing women, says the vast majority of them make money complaints against their men. Husbands are stingy and won't loosen up. They won't tell their wives what money they have and won't give their wives credit for any judgment in dispensing the cash. Men waste their substance in riotous living and let the wives suffer the consequences. Says this doctor: "A woman who can't get her hands in her husband's pocket, or write checks on his bank account, is always unhappy."

Yet another trait that makes a man a good husband is his ability to play and enjoy life when work is done, and the ability to amuse and entertain himself without his wife's asisstance. A middle-aged mamma who is nurse-maid to her husband snorts: "These golf widows don't know how well off they are! At least they have some time to themselves in which to do what they want to do."

But how is a girl to know if the boy-friend has these qualities? Simply enough, if she looks and listens. Honest, he comes clean about all the little and big things; where he's been, what he's done and what he's said, what he earns, what he spends. Even if he is shy and reserved the truth leaks out. Dishonest, he turns fast corners habitually. He puts up phony excuses for broken dates and generally gets caught. He hands the same line to several girls; they compare notes on him and trap him. He tells one he has to work while he dates another and next time the other way around. These are only little straws but they show which way the wind blows and a girl has only to watch them to get the direction.

How is she to know if he is ambitious? Simply enough if she observes how he regards his job, how his employer regards him. Ambitious he never lets anything interfere with his work. He doesn't have to show a big pay check to prove his ambition. He doesn't have to weave fancy stories about the castles he is building for the future. If he is putting his heart into the current job and counting on his hard work to advance him there's the proof of his ambition. Unambitious, he's a clock-puncher without any other sort of punch. When the boss' back is turned he's out and gone. His plans for the future don't reach beyond 6 o'clock of the present day. He spend what he earns, doesn't take out any insurance and doesn't start a savings account.

There is no difficulty, either, in appraising his manners, his attitude toward money or his ability to roll his own. Every date is a movie short, a living picture of the man himself. If he is stingy he brings a small bit of candy or none at all. He sits out the date with never a mention of a movie or a meal up town. If he has bad manners he exhibits them to the family and the friends that happen in. If he has no hobbies, no interests beyond his work and his girl, his conversation will betray it. All she has to do is to stop, look and listen.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

CITY GROUP TO PROBE JURY POLICE CHARGES

Ordinance Creating Special Committee To Be Approved, Key Indicates.

A special council committee of five will probe grand jury charges of "inefficiency, incompetency and connivance with criminals" against the Atlanta police department, it was indicated yesterday, when it was reported Mayor Key will approve an ordinance setting up such an investigation group.

The mayor will take the position that the charges have been made and that the public is "entitled to know the truth about the whole matter."

Alderman J. Charlie Murphy, of the eleventh ward, and himself a former chairman of the police committee, presented the ordinance Monday night at the organization meeting of the 1936 city council. There was some speculation as to whether the mayor would sanction the measure since Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant also was under fire of the grand jury and Sturdivant and Key are close personal and political friends.

The ordinance will not reach Key's desk until after the adjourned meeting of city council at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon to select a successor to the late City Clerk J. Henson Tatum.

Under the ordinance Mayor Pro Tem. Ellis B. Barrett will select the personnel of the committee, and himself will serve as a member.

Councilman G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the police committee, was confined to his home yesterday by illness, but is expected to be out again within the next few days. Key fired three members of the 1935 police body and gave Bridges Councilmen J. Allen Couch and Horace M. Rantin and Alderman William H. Joyner as successors.

It appeared yesterday the policemen found guilty of drinking intoxicants on duty or off or in uniform or out of uniform may expect to be ousted as members of the department.

CHEST BUDGET GROUP BEGINS ANNUAL WORK

Careful Study of Needs Is Started To Insure Maximum Efficiency.

Careful study of the work of the Community Chest agencies to insure the maximum efficiency during 1936 in their five fields of service was begun this week by the budget committee.

The committee will allot the funds raised in the recent campaign after a survey of the welfare needs of the city and the manner in which the 37 agencies of the Chest are meeting them.

The January 1 audit of the results of the recent campaign showed total subscriptions of $345,800, a gain of nearly $8,000 over the amount in hand at the official close of the campaign. This is the amount on which the work of the budget committee is based.

T. Guy Woolford, chairman of the committee, has named subcommittees, one of which is responsible for budgeting in each of the five fields of Chest activity.

Based on Actual Needs.

All allotments will be based on actual needs and service rendered, and a constant check of efficiency will be maintained through the year by means of monthly service reports.

"Budgeting of the fund is one of the most important functions of the Chest," Mr. Woolford said. "It involves constant study to keep every agency doing the maximum amount of good for every dollar spent.

"The work of the Chest in the fields of prevention, development and family and child care are more important this year than ever before, and with a better understanding of the work of the Chest by the men and women who support it, the leaders are looking forward to one of the most effective years in Chest history."

Members of Committee.

Members of the subcommittee working on the budgets are:

Child Care and Protection—C. L. Emerson, chairman; Mrs. Harold Wey, Miss Ernestine McGill, J. S. Roberts, Joseph Horacek, Mrs. Harry M. Gershon and G. K. Selden.

Family Care, Transients and Homeless—James L. Wells, chairman; T. G. Woolford, Mrs. Arthur I. Harris, Aubrey Milam, W. Stanton Hale, Rev. Herman L. Turner, J. W. Lee.

Character Building and Education—Oliver M. Healey, chairman; Miss Rhoda Kaufman, Hurd J. Crain, L. D. Sharp and Edgar Neely Jr.

General Community Service—T. G. Woolford, chairman; James L. Wells, G. K. Selden.

NO TRACE OF ACKERLY FOUND BY SEARCHERS

While relatives of Paul Ackerly, president of the Acworth Mills, missing since December 9 in a small boat off the Florida gulf coast, pointed out yesterday that the mill executive was an experienced skipper and had food supplies for a month aboard his sailing craft. No trace had been found last night of Ackerly or his boat.

Mr. Ackerly, who lives at 30 Inman circle, left Carrabelle for Tampa on December 9. Two days after his departure a storm swept through the area and he has not been heard from since. He was last reported seen by a fisherman at Spring Creek, Fla.

Mrs. Ackerly is in Florida directing the search. Relatives were informed last night by Mrs. Ackerly that several encouraging reports had been received.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

(Posed by Gail Patrick.)

A Lipstick That Is What You Have Long Been Hunting For

By MIGNON.

There is one thing that no woman can be without for more than half a day and that is a good lipstick. She wants one that will last well and one of creamy substance, a good natural color and one that will not make her go without lunch in order to buy it. I am good to you, because I have found just that for you. The case is as attractive as can be. It is silver or chromium—I never can tell which—with colored lines around it. The one I have is dark blue. It is really quite a handsome looking affair.

I always have to smile when a woman asks me for a permanent lipstick. It is like a permanent wave. You go out and get another one every little while. I think it is smart to call a lipstick permanent, because it gets over the idea that is what I would call "lasting." I never believed in dyeing hair and I do not believe in dyeing lips, eyelashes, fingernails or eyebrows. I think God knew pretty well what he was doing when he made women and he turned out some very beautiful jobs. If women would only correct a few little defects instead of trying to dye themselves into a permanent picture, they would be much better off.

After all, styles change and while you may want to be a sun-tanned beauty from Florida some night it may strike your fancy to be a pale, interesting somebody the next night and you cannot do it if you are dyed. Believe me, "my friends," there isn't any such thing as a permanent lipstick and thank your lucky stars that there isn't. Try one of these that I am telling you about. You will not be wasting your money.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph.D.

We use the expression "sweet as sugar" as though sugar were the sweetest substance known. The truth is: There is a great difference in the sweetness of different sugars, and some are not sweet at all. But there are many other things much sweeter than even the sweetest sugar known. One chemical substance has been found that is 2,000 times sweeter than cane sugar. It is called "per-ill-alde-hyde-alpha-anti-ald-oxine," and it only takes a microscopic quantity of it to sweeten several cups of coffee. But if we had to call for it by name, it might be asier to stay with the old standby, sugar.

BREAKING INTO PRINT WITH SOMETHING NEW.

The story is much too good to keep. Besides, its only 73 days to spring! So you might as well know right now that you're getting an advance peep at what will be a spring fashion leader both as to fabric and design. A long slimming panel extends full length from collar to hem, accented by side pieces which come to high points in the blouse, front and back. A soft and graceful cowl collar—ever becoming—opens at the back, and long set-in sleeves fall loosely to the wrists. There is just enough gathering at the upper portion of the blouse to effect a stylish fullness and just enough at the waistline to take away the bulge.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1792-B is designed in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 (34) requires 4 3-8 yards of 39-inch material.

My Day

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

THE WHITE HOUSE, WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 7.—Someone sent me a most amusing present. It came to my room this afternoon and as I looked at it I thought I was being visited by a zoo, for it was surrounded by four miniature polar bears.

On closer inspection, however, I found that the polar bears were guarding a goldfish bowl, with three lovely lilies growing out of the center and a red rose floating to the surface, and the goldfish swimming around.

The donor certainly had a sense of humor, for to me and to various and sundry others, a goldfish bowl is certainly suggestive.

I doubt if anyone living in the White House needs such a constant reminder. Whether they write themselves, or just trust those who write about them, no goldfish could have less privacy from the point of view of the daily happenings of their existence.

There is, however, one consolation to anyone who lives in the public eye. Namely, that while it may be most difficult to keep the world from knowing where you dine and what you eat and wear, so much interest is focused on these somewhat unimportant things, that you are really left completely free to live your own inner life as you wish.

Thank God, few people are so poor that they do not have an inner life which feels the real springs of thought and action. So if I may offer a thought in consolation to others who for a time have to live in the "goldfish bowl," it is:

Don't worry because people know all that you do, for the really important thing about anyone is what he is and what he thinks and feels, and the more you live in a "goldfish bowl," the less people really know about you.

NANCY PAGE

A Sleeveless Blouse Helps a Cast On an Arm.

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

Shortly before Nancy had fallen off her chair and broken her right arm, she had purchased some new clothes. One of the outfits must have been selected with a foreknowledge of what was to happen. The dress had a skirt, and a bolero jacket of black wool. The jacket was fastened at the neck by means of two long buttons with a connecting link of braid that fastened in the two buttonholes.

The blouse was a gilet, or really, a modified halter blouse. The collar of silk fastened at the back. In front there was attached a triangular piece of material which had ties of self material attached as a belt and sash. There was no back, no armholes, and no sleeves. This made it very easy to wear with the arm in a cast. When the gilet was tied, the lower part of the front of the gilet formed a noose or cradle in which the forearm could rest.

Nancy's mother sent one of the maids from her own house over to the Page home as soon as she heard of the accident. Joan, Peter Jr., and Susan all promised Nancy they would be good as gold and do as they were told.

Nancy found that she saved herself much wear and tear by having her hair done at her accustomed beauty shop. The operator did it up close to her head and protected it with a net. This same operator suggested that Nancy have a dry shampoo. The chair with its back rest, used in wet shampoos, was of the wrong shape to fit the cast on Nancy's arm. The dry shampoo could be given in the regular marcelling chair.

While she was having her hair done, another operator took care of the nails on her left hand. She suggested that Nancy rub a litle olive oil on her right hand to keep the skin more flexible. The hand was swollen and hot most of the time.

The doctor told her that there would be quite a bit of pain for two weeks after the break. By piling two sets of pillows at right angles to each other, and making them firm, Nancy found she could lie back in the angle formed by the two sets and get some ease for her shoulder and arms.

COLORFUL CROCHET'S A BRIGHT IDEA. Pattern 5509.

Colorful crochet's a "bright idea" indeed, when it helps you make as beautiful a bedspread—as lovely a scarf and table mat as these. It's something different in string crochet—a flower in a pastel color—a lattice in unbleached and leaves in green—the colors all in rounds. Make each flower a different color, using up your scraps or do them the same color throughout. When completed, you've an heirloom of tomorrow.

In pattern 5509 you will find complete directions for making the square shown; illustrations of it and of all stitches used; color suggestions; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Household Arts Dept., The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

The party will be given at her home on Pelham road and the calling hours are from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Cannon Forbes and Miss Kitty Wooten were hostesses for Miss Burnette last Sunday afternoon at the home of the former on Virginia circle. A color motif of yellow and white was expressed in the floral decorations of snapdragons, calendulas and sweet peas. The same colors were featured in the ices, cakes and favors, which were miniature brides carrying bouquets of yellow flowers.

The hostesses were assisted in entertaining by Misses Anne Johnson and Jane Love Rutledge. Top-score prize was won by Mrs. Tom Callaway and Miss Burnette cut the consolation.

Mrs. Forbes wore black crepe with gold trimmings and Miss Wooten was gowned in black velvet with rhinestone trimmings. The attractive honor guest chose for the occasion a gown of black velvet with a hat to match and a shoulder bouquet of sweetheart roses and valley lilies.

POWER, LIGHT SHARES LEAD CURB UPSWING

Metal Issues Sag; Mart Records Gains of Two Points.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Led by a brisk demand for power and light issues, the curb market displayed a strong tone today.

Although metal shares lagged, advances of fractions to 2 points predominated at the close. Transfers approximated 692,000 shares compared with 688,000 the day before.

Gainers of around 1 to 2 points included American Gas & Electric at 39 7-8, Electric Bond & Share at 18 1-2, Aluminum Company of America at 89, Gulf Oil at 75, Sherwin-Williams at 126, Pan-American Airways at 48 and Montgomery Ward "A" at 143. Fractional improvement was shown by American Superpower, Cities Service and Niagara Hudson Power.

Among non-ferrous shares, Newmont Mining lost nearly 2 points while Lake Shore and Sunshine Mining were fractions lower.

LOCAL HOG PRICES SHOW SLIGHT GAIN

Atlanta Values Rise 30 Cents Per Hundred on Better Stocks.

Atlanta hog prices failed to react to the nullification of the AAA by the supreme court Monday as did values in the Chicago market.

While better grades of hogs were bringing from $9 to a $10.25 tops in Chicago trading centers, Atlanta prices fluctuated only to an increase of 30 to 50 cents for the better grade of hogs.

Atlanta livestock dealers attributed the sudden upward trend of the Chicago market prices to market confusion over the death of the AAA intermingled with expressions of joy and disappointment over the supreme court ruling.

Conservative buyers on the Chicago market were not to be had in great quantities. With asking prices all out of line, most big meat packers who had moderate hog supplies direct, decided to ride out the spurt in sellers' demands and await a return to the normal supply and demand status.

An Atlanta livestock spokesman intimated Tuesday that a hint in a lowering of Chicago hog prices was seen by the slight decline in lard quotations.

The big Chicago mart was entirely disrupted and at one time the trading was entirely at a standstill.

Speculation as to what effect the AAA ruling would have in the market was rife in Atlanta with dealers refusing to be quoted before they had studied the tribunal's decision more.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Raw sugar was unchanged today with no sales reported. Buyers continued to hold aloof, but there were additional offerings at the last paid prices of 3.30 for spots with indications that some holders were willing to accept less.

The advance followed the announcement by the Department of Agriculture that it believed the decision of the supreme court on the AAA did not affect the sugar program.

This buying carried active positions 14 to 19 points above the previous close when realizing checked the upturn causing partial reactions, with final prices off a little from the best but still 10 to 19 points net higher. Sales 73,200 tons.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—The strength in the utilities throughout the session brought the market back from a weak opening to a strong close, which should carry through the greater part of Wednesday's session.

FENNER & BEANE—On a selective basis, immediate indications would appear more to favor the steel stocks and some of the groups that have been more or less neglected in markets of the past week, such, for example as the motion picture, machinery and building issues.

DOBBS & CO.—While the situation is still very uncertain, it was noticeable Tuesday that a feeling was created similar to the lifting of pressure.

BEER & CO.—In our opinion Tuesday's action was very encouraging to those bullishly inclined and conclusive to the thought that higher prices will be witnessed before long.

COTTON OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—As load stocks, pool stocks and contract bounties were not affected by the decision, cotton is no more plentiful than heretofore so that adjustment in new cloth prices should be the signal for a rapid advance.

FENNER & BEANE—We believe prices are low enough to stimulate buying.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO. TO DOBBS & CO.—For the immediate future we would be prepared for further nervous and irregular fluctuations, but the trade is beginning to find itself and foreign interest have been showing rather more interest in our early new crop months as prices approached the 10-cent level Tuesday.

BEER & CO.—While we are still favorably inclined toward March and May, the decision is so broad in its implications we feel the trade needs a longer time to thoroughly digest time.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—Nervous markets should be expected until millers have solved the readjustment in processed prices.

FENNER & BEANE—We favor working on the long side.

DOBBS & CO.—We still feel that May wheat will show further strength and will meet with good support on any easy spots.

BEER & CO.—We expect to see a sharp improvement in flour business shortly, which should be reflected in higher prices for May wheat.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Nearly normal trading conditions returned to the grain pits today, and in some cases fresh downturns of prices were more than overcome bby late rallies.

A fair demand from milling interests helped to bring about a moderate advance of May wheat at the last, and served also to steady new crop months. Under such circumstances, less attention was given to misgivings about market effects of the supreme court's decision to abolish process taxes and thereby eliminate government control of domestic grain crop acreage.

Wheat closed irregular at 3-4 of a cent decline to an equal advance, compared with yesterday's finish, May 1.02 7-8 to 103, corn unchanged to 3-8 off, May 61 7-8 to 62, oats unchanged to 1-4 up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 cents.

Switchboard Operator

REP. ZIONCHECK

ZIONCHECK GUILTY ON DRUNK CHARGE

Democratic Solon, Fined After New Year's Celebration, Plans Appeal.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Representative Zioncheck, democrat, Washington, today was convicted by Judge Walter J. Casey, of District of Columbia police court, of drunk and disorderly charges growing out of a New Year's celebration.

Zioncheck remained at liberty on $15 bail after motion for a new trial was denied. He gave notice of an appeal.

The representative was arrested early on the morning of New Year's Day. He was accused by the switchboard operator of a Connecticut avenue apartment of having plugged in all the house telephones when he was unable to get into the apartment of friends there.

The representative denied he was drunk. He said he had attempted to operate the switchboard when he was unable to raise his friend at the door.

The maximum penalty for which Zioncheck would be liable is $100 fine or 30 days in jail on the intoxication charge and $7 fine or 25 days in jail for disorderly conduct.

Market Outlook

By MAX BUCKINGHAM.

(Copyright, 1936, by United Press.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Share prices bounded one to more than three points on the New York Stock Exchange today as traders became convinced the long-term business outlook had been improved by scrapping of the AAA.

Commodities, however, were irregular. Cotton broke to levels not reached since 1933. Wheat futures were mixed. Hog prices in Chicago soared. Sugar prices after early weakness jumped 25 points—limit of fluctuations—to close 11 to 19 points higher as Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace indicated the supreme court decision would not affect sugar quotas.

On the stock exchange, railroad and utility shares started the advance. Dow-Jones averages for each group went to a new high since 1934. Industrials staged a later spirited advance—led by steel, electrical equipment and motor shares—and the average almost two points.

Some persons believed scrapping of the AAA might cause a lull in agricultural buying, which has been particularly strong in farm equipments and automobiles, but that over the longer run the situation was improved inasmuch as artificial price levels will be destroyed.

The sharp improvement in railroad and utility shares was traced to the AAA supreme court decision as follows:

Utilities—The TVA legislation is before the supreme court. Many believe the AAA and NRA decisions serve as a precedent which will bring invalidation of the TVA project. In addition utility earnings are increasing.

Railroads—Carriers expect improvement in farm product hauls. In addition, 135 railroads filed suit in Washington to test constitutionality of the railroad retirement act.

Also there was the ICC report during the day indicating plans for greater control of all transportation while plans for reduced fares are likely to bring increased passenger travel. Railroad earnings are increasing.

The AAA decision continued to be the dominating force behind all market transactions and probably will be for the remainder of the week.

TARVER SEEKS FUNDS TO FIGHT SCREW WORM

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Representative Malcolm C. Tarver, of Dalton, Ga., said today he had asked the Department of Agriculture to submit an estimate of funds needed this year to continue screw worm eradication work in the southeast.

Congress provided $280,000 for the work in 1935 and Tarver said the money was "effectively used."

The worm, hatched from eggs deposited by a fly, bores into the flesh of live stock, attacking vital organs and causing death. Tarver said it was "vitally necessary" that additional funds be appropriated. The infestation, he said, was spreading throughout the southeastern states.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton sagged Tuesday, closing quiet 25 points lower at 11.85.

By FRED WILLIAMS.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Cotton broke sharply today on the overnight reaction to the AAA decision and while futures worked up a few points from their lows the session ended with active months from 21 to 31 points lower.

An accumulation of selling orders, coupled with a poor foreign response to the United States supreme court ruling, brought a sharp decline in active positions at the start of trading. During the first half hour prices dropped $2 a bale in less than 10 minutes before short covering and profit taking halted the decline.

For the rest of the day the market staged a slow point-to-point recovery back toward the previous closing levels, but limited buying interest kept futures far below Monday's final prices.

March closed at 11.11, off 21 points after touching 11.00, while a final price of 10.60 for July compared with a low for the day of 10.44 and a previous close of 10.84.

The far-reaching influences of the adverse decision on the agricultural adjustment program began being felt today. While reports from cloth markets were that a tremendous volume of business was offered at 33 1-3 per cent under previous levels, a discount which approximated the processing tax, mills were refusing the business until the court's ruling was more clarified.

What disposition will be made of the 12-cent loan cotton, pool cotton, the Bankhead act and other phases of the federal program for cotton were questions that beclouded the trade.

The prospect of heavy mill buying of cotton, now that the processing tax is removed, was offset by the possibility of a return to unrestricted cotton production, with crops of 16,000,000 bales.

The trade was eagerly awaiting news from Washington on the uncertain position in which cotton finds itself. One wire to the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, quoting a high government official, said that the loan cotton and pool cotton would not be affected by the court's ruling.

A concrete bit of information was provided today when exports for the years reached a total of 3,536,606 bales and are now running more than a million bales ahead of 1934-35.

In observance of the anniversary of the Battle of New Orleans the exchange will be closed Wednesday.

Port receipts, 19,665; week, 66,719; season, 5,608,399; last year, 3,534,997. Exports, 34,510; week, 101,402; season, 3,536,606; last year, 2,532,499. Port stocks, 2,724,307. Stocks on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston were 162,299; last year, 73,336. Spot sales at southern markets were 14,954; last year, 7,784.

NEW YORK COTTON TAKES TUMBLE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The cotton market tumbled today under liquidation and scattered selling brought in by overnight consideration of the supreme court AAA decision.

March sold off to 11.05, rallied to 11.18 and closed at 11.13, with the general market closing steady at net declines of 25 to 36 points.

The market opened 17 to 29 points lower in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables. The extreme decline ranged from 33 to 40 points but selling then subsided and there were moderate rallies in the late trading.

Exports today, 34,510, making a total of 3,705,906 for the season. Port receipts 19,665. United States port stocks, 2,716,513.

Small Town Girl

BY BEN AMES WILLIAMS

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE: Just out of Wellesley, Kay Brannan takes a job as advertising assistant to Chick Rantoul, determined never to go back home and vegetate. Kay promises Genevieve, her roommate, that she will put a stop to her drinking and partying but when Chick Rantoul taxes her with neglecting her job, she impulsively quits. That night she escapes from a wild yachting party in Bob Dakin's rowboat. But motoring back to Boston, he drunkenly insists that they get married. They sleep in the car but next morning Bob is horrified at his rash deed for he is engaged to Priscilla Hyde. At Bob's home in Boston the Dakins are unexpectedly kind. They insist that Kay stay for a few weeks to quiet scandalous gossip. NOW GO

INSTALLMENT XXVII.

At the shipyard, Pat gave last advices and instructions. "Getting the anchor up is the only thing that will bother you alone," he said. "But there's a ratchet gear on it. You can manage it all right, with Kay at the wheel."

"Oh, we'll manage," Bob agreed. Haste was on him now. They had come off to the "Lark" in a motorboat from the yard; he let Pat help him get the anchor apeak, and then Pat made a flying leap into the motorboat, and the sails filled, and Bob ran back to take the wheel from Kay. They caught the wind and began to move, and Genevieve and Pat and Felicia were calling their farewells.

Bob put the "Lark" on her course down the river toward the harbor. The wind was offshore; and they were at first somewhat blanketed, but when they emerged into more open water, the "Lark" bowed before the breeze and glided swiftly ahead.

Bob looked at Kay, here beside him, and grinned uncertainly. "Well, here we go," he said.

Kay nodded. "I shall probably be desperately seasick," she decided. "I feel funny already."

"Well, I feel a little funny myself," Bob agreed. "But it's not seasickness!"

But Kay did not ask him what he meant; so they sat together without speech, and they reached the channel and turned seaward, till, clear at last of the outer marks, they took their northerly course. The shore seemed already infinitely remote; and Bob pointed out distant landmarks and Kay looked where he pointed, and sat trembling.

"You are cold," he said.

"I'll get a sweater," she decided. In the cramped cabin below, she stood for a long minute, her hands pressed to her mouth as though she stifled an impulse to cry out. Their bags were on the bunks in the fo'c'sle; and Kay slipped past the butt of the mast into the narrow angle there. The skylight overhead was closed, and the place was stuffy, but Kay unfolded blankets and prepared the lower bunks for occupancy. Afterward in the cabin she examined the small kerosene stove on which their cooking must be done, and cleansed the wicks and lighted them experimentally. She unpacked their groceries, sorting her purchases of the morning until she knew where everything was. She stayed so long at these tasks that Bob called at last:

"Right," Kay assured him. She remembered the sweater she had come to seek, and found it and put it on. On deck again she said:

"It's stuffy down there! I'm going to open the windows up front."

"Skylight, lubber." Bob grinned. "And 'forward.' Careful you don't fall overboard!"

Kay found hand-holds and clung to them and reached the forward deck; but the skylight fastenings were stubborn and her fingers could not move them. Bob called: "Here you take the wheel. I'll do that."

So she went aft again, and he made her sit beside the wheel and gave her strict instructions.

"Hold her as she is," he directed. "The idea is to keep the sails full of wind. We've a good steady breeze now, so it's easy." He waited, watching her; and the "Lark" started to veer, and Kay turned the wheel desperately, and then had to spin it the other way, and their course became increasingly erratic. He chuckled. "When you steer a boat, it's steered all the time!" he commented; but sure at last that she could do well enough, he went forward and opened again.

He sat down with the wheel between them, and she released it; but he said: "No, you've got to learn! Might as well learn now."

So she labored stubbornly at the task; and he bade her watch the colors deepen in the west where the sun presently would set, and she exclaimed in amused protest:

"How can I watch sunset and do this too?"

He chuckled. "You're making too much of a job of it," he told her. "Don't try to correct her every time she swings. You're overdoing it." And he remarked: "You look hot!"

"I'm burning up, she agreed.

He watched her thoughtfully. Her cheeks were bright, her hair flying; and her eyes were glowing as though with wine. He uttered an exclamation.

"I'll bet there isn't a thing to drink, aboard," he said.

"Pat told me the tanks were full," she assured him.

"I mean—to drink!" he retorted, and she understood and said:

"Oh! I didn't bring any liquor, no! I didn't think of it!"

"Not trying to wean me, are you?" he asked in a half-angry, half-derisive tone. She shook her head.

"I just didnt think," she repeated.

He said thoughtfully: "As a matter of fact, neither did I. And that's funny, if you like."

She said hurriedly: "You take it now. I'll go cook supper."

When she came on deck again, the sun was setting. She brought scrambled eggs for them both, and toast, and—she had consulted him on this point—tea. "But one of us will have to hold the cups, all the time," she pointed out. "With the boat tipping so."

He nodded. "I don't think we'll put into Gloucester," he decided. "There's a half moon, and this wind is going to hold. We can be off Portland by morning."

She looked at him doubtfully. "But the boat can't go by itself, can it?" she protested.

"If I get sleepy, you can spell me for a while," he explained. "You can tuck in early, and I'll call you if I need a relief. And we can always change our minds and find shelter, if we want to stop. Let's go on for a while, anyway. You don't get a sailing wind as good as this every day!"

She saluted him elaborately. "You are the captain," she agreed.

He grinned. "Proper answer is: 'Aye, aye, Sir,'" he said; and she repeated after him:

"Aye, aye, sir!"

Later, Kay took their used dishes below and washed them; and then it was dark; and the shore was a low shadow, broken by many small lights here and there, and by a few brighter ones. He made her sit in the cockpit by his feet, thus sheltered from the wind; and at his bidding she fetched a blanket from below and wrapped it around her shoulders, drawing it like a hood over her head. She was sleepy and at peace; and she dozed now and then, to waken at some word from him, till at last he asked:

"Asleep, weren't you?"

"You go below and roll in," he directed. "I'll sing out when I want you."

She hesitated; but in the end she obeyed him. She left the blanket for him in case of need. In the head of the companion she pauseu, said uncertainly:

"Good night!"

"Oh, I'll see you before morning," he assured her; and she nodded in the darkness and went below. She chose the bunk on the lee side, so that there might be no danger of rolling out; and only loosening her clothes, lay down, slept almost instantly.

She spoke icily, "But of course ladies in haste can't pick and choose."

Sometime in the night she roused to a long call from him that came muffled down through the cabin; and she made haste on deck.

"Sorry to wake you," he said. "But we've a fair course now for hours. Think you can take her, while I get 40 winks?"

"I'll try," Kay promised.

"Got plenty of clothes on?" he asked. "You'll want to keep warm!"

"Oh, yes."

He yielded her the wheel. "See that light, way ahead?" he asked; and she said she did. "Keep it on your left," he directed. "When you pass it—it will take you better than two hours—wake me up. Or if anything happens, of course, you wake me anyway. Or if you get sleepy."

"Will you hear?" she asked, her voice shaking in spite of herself. "I'm not very sure of myself at this, yet!"

"Oh, I'm going to sleep right here," he explained. "You can kick me awake any time." He fetched another blanket and a pillow from below, made himself comfortable in the cockpit at her feet.

"Aren't you cramped?" she protested. "I'll try not to need you. You can go down and really sleep."

But he assured her he was comfortable; and presently she heard his regular breathing. She sat with wide eyes staring into the darkness and the loneliness of the night and of the sea; and her hands shook as though with the palsy, and the light far ahead on the water seemed to dance from side to side as though it sought to escape her. She tugged at the wheel, this way and that, and the "Lark" staggered under her unskilled handling; and once Bob woke and asked:

"All right, are you?"

"Of course," she said, breathlessly reassuring him. "Go back to sleep!"

III—Earth, Sun and Planets.

Old Greek legends told about a giant named Atlas who was forced to hold the sky on his back by order of Zeus, king of the gods.

The giant grew tired of his task, and asked the hero Perseus to hold the head of Medusa in front of him. Atlas looked at the ugly face, and was turned into stone, as he wanted to be. The old Greek story-tellers declared that the Atlas mountains in northwestern Africa were the remains of the giant!

Sir Isaac Newton

In modern times, a book of maps is called an "atlas" in memory of the giant of the legend. Sometimes an artist pictures Atlas with the round earth on his back, but that is a mistake. The giant was supposed to hold up the sky, not the earth.

A small number of the Greeks believed the earth to be round, but most of them thought it was flat. The tales of giants and heroes were made up by persons who supposed they lived on a flat earth.

Among the learned Greeks was one by the name of Ptolemy. He dwelt in Alexandria, Egypt, during at least a part of his life. Several kings of Egypt had gone by the name of Ptolemy, but this man was a thinker and scientist, not a king.

Ptolemy believed in the roundness of the earth. He couldn't tell what held it up and why it didn't "fall down" through space, but neither could those who supposed the earth to be flat. That was a mystery until an Englishman, Isaac Newton, told the world about gravity, many hundreds of years later.

Ptolemy wrote a famous book which came to be known by the Arabic name, "Almagest." In this book he told his ideas about the earth and planets. He said that the moon, the sun, the planets and the stars moved around the earth. He was right about the moon, but was wrong about the sun, planets and stars. They may seem to move around the earth, but they do not.

It was more than 1,400 years after the death of Ptolemy that men learned of his mistakes. Copernicus, Galileo and Newton are the men who did most to bring forth the truth about our solar system. We shall speak more of them later in this series.

TARZAN AND THE LEOPARD MEN No. 9

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

As Orando stood with spear poised, the foliage moved again, and the head of a tiny monkey was thrust up through the tangled vertdure. The little creature voiced a scream of fright and disappeared again. Presently it reappeared in a tree, shrilling its wrath at the black tribesman.

The hunter paid no heed. His interest was centered in that bronzed leg. Cautiously Orando stooped to gaze beneath the boughs and leaves that concealed the rest of the body. He saw a giant white man, naked except for a loin cloth of leopard skin, pinned to the ground by a fallen tree.

From the face turned toward him, two grey eyes surveyed him. The man was not dead. Orando had seen few white men. They had been clothed in strange garments and carried terrible weapons which vomited flame and metal. But, except for the color of his skin, this man might have been a native.

Nevertheless the stranger was white, and therefore an enemy. It was possible that he might extricate himself from his predicament and become a menace to the village of Tumbai. Naturally, then, there was only one thing for a dutiful warrior to do. Orando fitted an arrow to his bow!

So Says
Mr. McCollum—
How does 1936 look to you?

WHEN the bills come in for your Christmas shopping, will you need a little extra cash to clean everything up and balance the budget?

IF you do, then—LISTEN TO THIS —Don't run the risk of damaging your credit by letting scattered obligations drag. Start this year right with your finances in good shape.

I'LL show you how to do it. I can furnish the needed cash, and work out a plan for repayment to suit your income — ONE TO TWO YEARS—and remember my rates are less than 1 per cent per month per annum. See me at Seaboard Loan & Savings Co., 12 Pryor St., S. W.

OLD BATTLE FLAG BACK HOME AGAIN

Ancient Banner Has Been in Boston Since Capture by Sherman Here in 1864.

A tattered flag of the Confederacy, captured by Sherman's army here on September 2, 1864, was in Atlanta again last night after a 71 years exile in Boston.

The flag was in possession of Dr. George S. Barnes, who is en route to his winter home at Bradenton, Fla., Dr. Barnes said that later he might present it to a Georgia historical society or museum. Dr. Barnes has been a collector of objects of note for 25 years.

The Confederate flag belonged to General J. B. Hood's army and was among the southern treasures seized by Sherman during his fighting in and around Atlanta.

The Yankee general presented the flag to Joel H. Hills, the grandfather of Dr. Barnes' wife. Mr. Hills was a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company of Boston and after months of persuasion Mrs. Barnes prevailed on that organization to turn it over to her husband in order that it might be returned to the south. For years it has been on display in the artillery company's trophy hall in Boston.

The flag is made of silk and the seven white stars in the center are stitched by hand.
